8,000 Acres of Land

THE GREATEST PORTION BEING HEAVILY wooded with Pine, Oak and Hickory, and the balance consisting of rich Rice, Cotton and Corn land, located about Twenty Miles From Savannah,

Are offered for sale. The timber on this tract has never been "saw-milled" or "boxed," and being of virgin growth is very valuable to either mill men or turpentine getters.

The products of this land, which have amounted to 45 busheles of rice, a bale of cotton or 40 bushels of corn to an acre, can be marketed at a minimum cost for freighting

By Railroad or by Water Transportation.

The improvements in the way of dwellings, barns, rice mill and machinery are substantial and ample. There are advantages peculiar to this property which render it valuable for a CATTLE RANGE, TURPENTINE FARM, RICE, CORN, COTTON or FUEL PLANTATION.

One corner of the land is only one-fourth of a mile from Fleming Station, on the Savannah Florida and Western Railway.

LIBERAL TERMS

Will be given to a responsible person, or an exchange may be negotiated for city property or city or railroad bonds. Plats will be furnished on application to

THE CHAT ABOUT

WITH THE PRESS AND PEOPLE OF GEORGIA.

A Horrible Tragedy at West Point—Mr. Morris Kills His Brother-in-law in Self Defense—Washington Cogswell an Artillery Company—Thanksgiving Day in Rome.

Dr. J. A. Beasley gives the following account of a tragedy in West Point, in which one man was killed:

Beauregard Satterwhite had been dismissed from his place in the spinningroom of the West Point mills because he was unable to keep up his work. He attributed his discharge to Mr. Ivey Morris, the boss of the cardroom. Becoming very much incensed against Morris, who was his brother in-law, he procured a pistol, followed Morris up, who had gone hunting, and, presenting the weapon, informed him that one of them had to die, then and there. The former had his gun and, having to choose the alternative of killing or being killed, mutually decided to save his own life, rather than become a sacrifice to the fury of his antagonist, and fired upon Satterwhite, the shot taking effect in the neck and severing the jugular vein. Satterwhite fell dead in his tracks. These facts were testified to by two witnesses before the coroner's jury and they returned a verdict of justifiable homicide. Satterwhite was quiet a young man and leaves a wife.

Troup county has three life convicts in the penitentiary, viz: Raymond Dawson, Charles Ramsey and Emma Kirk. All were convicted of murder. Tobe White is a twenty year one, for rape. Henry Veal, Alford Haiden, Billy Reese and William Stinson are serving a term of ten years each for burglary. Aaron Cook, for attempt to murder, has four years more in which to expiate the offense by hard labor. Charley Tatum and Jim Wood, for burglary and larceny, respectively, have a contract with the state for four years apiece. With Henry Robinson, white, killed in the attempt to escape, there was just a baker's dozen in the stockades. Since Robinson was released by a bullet, there are eleven of the brethren in back left. To these have been added, at this session of the court, Tom Trammell, the youthful West Point incendiary, who goes in for life; Harry Levejoy, who will serve for ten years; M. M. Willoughby (white), four, and Susan Hill, one year.

The Jackson Herald expects $25,000 to be put in building in Jefferson next year.

The Oglethorpe Echo says:

On a most every hand we hear of threats to lynch those house breakers and horse thieves who infest this county, should they be caught. While in most cases this test to let the law take its course, yet there are instances where immediate punishment should be given by the laws, is necessary, and we don't know but what in this instance it would be excusable. But Judge Lynch should be sure he has the right culprit.

Collector Amason, of Oglethorpe, says that while the tax levy of that county was $17,000 he had collected only about $8 000 up to date, but that he would get all but a hundred or so dollars before he closed his books, as hardly any of the big tax-payers had paid. He named six or eight men whose aggregate tax was near $6,000, one of the number paying $700.

Hawkinsville News: Mr. Robert V. Bowen has purchased a half interest in the steamers C Irvine and Mary Deloy. The latter boat is at present and the Corvine has just been thoroughly overhauled and supplied with a new hull. The two boats will hereafter be run by Messrs. Bowen & Russell, and just as soon as the river get in boating condition, the steamers will make regular trips between this point and the landing known as the old steam boat landing in Irwin county. The East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroad has held a track from the depot to the boat landing for the shippers may feel assured that their freight will be handled expeditiously.

At George Sims' gin near Subligna, close to the Walker county line, last Thursday, Newton Hailgood was putting the band on a wheel. By some mistake the water was turned on too soon, and he was caught and whirled over several times. He lingered till saturday and died. He leaves a wife and four children to mourn their sad bereavement.

It is said that the first piano or organ Blind Tom ever touched was in Forsyth, when he was but a small boy.

Litigation is on the decrease in Bartow county.

The laborers at Magruder mine had their liens foreclosed on all the personal property to be found there on last Tuesday. Mr. E. T. Shubrick represented the laborers.

Rev Mr Martin an Episcopal minister, is expected to hold services once a month in Camilla.

There is a movement on foot in Washington to get four guns and organize an artillery company. The matter is being worked up by men who will accomplish the end in view if it is within the bounds of possibility.

After thanksgiving services at the Episcopal church in Rome there was distributed to about twenty families, 500 pounds of flour, four bushels potatoes, a bushel of fruit, 75 pounds of meat, besides turkeys, chickens, grits, tea, coffee, sugar, coal, wood, clothing, etc.

Greensboro Herald: Levi Copelan and George Burgess, two negroes, confined in the county jail, the former for murder and the latter for cattle stealing, attempted to escape on Friday night. Levi Copelan complained of being quite unwell and requested sheriff Norton to put a chair into the cell for him to sit on. His request was granted. During the night the prisoners broke the chair to pieces and used the legs to break the lock on the cell door. On saturday morning when the jailer went down to give them breakfast, they were standing, one on either side of the door, concealed from view, armed with the legs of the chair, doubtless intending to strike down the officer and make a break for freedom. Fortunately their foul plan was defeated. The lock was repaired on Saturday and the cell made doubly secure, and the prisoners shackled.

Mr. Overton, of Sharon, was in Augusta on Monday, and got to frolicking with the boys. The next morning he accused one of his comrades of robbing him, and had him brought up before the authorities, but the case was dismissed. His money in full, over one hundred dollars, was turned over to him by the hotel clerk, who had taken care of it for him.

GOODEN.
JAMES A. ANDERSON.

The body of a white man was found in Fishing creek in Lincoln county, about a half mile below the bridge on the Lisbon road.

Mr. B. S. Right has a family relic in the shape of a peculiar little barrel holding not quite as much as a quart. It is made out of three pieces of wood into the two heads and the body. His grandfather, Mr. Benjamin Samuels, who was a revolutionary soldier, got it in 1780, and he takes it to be a powder keg.

Mr. H. N Jenkins, solicitor of patents, Washington, D. C., officially reports to THE CONSTITUTION the following complete list of patents granted Georgia inventors for the week ending November 25th, 1884: E. R. Young, Thomasville, pea and bean sheller; M. Herzberg, West Point, inkstand.

THE FIRE FIEND.

The barn of Mr W. P. Walton in Lincoln county was destroyed by fire last Friday. He lost his press and some cotton and other produce.

A few nights since an unknown fiend set fire to Mr. J. A. Haskin's gin house in Franklin, Ala Mr. H will lose about $600 above his insurance.

The dwelling house of Mr. Wacaser, postmaster at Pond Town, Miller county, was destroyed by fire one day last week.

Mr. John R. Waters, an honest, hard working citizen of Schley, happened to the misfortune to get his dwelling, crib and smoke house, together with two or three bales of cotton and most of his wearing apparel, burned last week.

Mr. M H. Arnold, of Oglethorpe, paid all those who had cotton burned at his gin, full value for the same, while he was neither legally nor honor bound to do so.

The Old Golden Ducat.

From Life.

How dear to his heart is that yellow-backed bank-book,
His busted condition recalls to his view,
The pages all dog-eared; the general lank look;
The money he's lost it save ducats but two!
Ah, many's the time he has drawn from its pages
And stirred with the principal, interest as well!
But now it ere is left him so long after ages
Two old golden ducats that cling to the swell.
Those fulsome old ducats; those clip't edged ducats,
Those old golden ducats that clung to the swell.

FROM THE FARM.

Remarkable Stories of Thrift and Progress in Georgia.

From the Hawkinsville, Ga., News.

Mr. Elbert Paulk, of Irwin county, is entitled to the premium on fine potatoes. He rolled into our office the other day nine yams which tipped the beam at twenty-one pounds.

Mr. Henry B. Mann, of this county, made this year, on a five-mule farm, 58 bales of cotton and 365 bushels of corn.

The Hawkinsville oil company commenced their third search of operations some weeks ago, and the mill is now running day and night, with a larger supply of seed than it has had at any season heretofore. A large quantity of seed is being shipped to the mill from distant points and the farmers of this and surrounding counties are beginning to their seed and encouraging them for cotton seed meal, as they have learned from actual tests and experiment that the meal pays better as a fertilizer than the raw seed, besides being more easily handled and applied.

From the Ogletharpe Echo.

The cotton crop of this county is sufficiently gathered and sold to a pretty correct estimate to be made of what is is, and it would seem that all the hue and cry of a short crop is unfounded. Last year this county made 8,750 bales. This year, with 600 acres less planted, 9 350 will be the record, or an increase of 1,000 bales.

Mr. Ind Appling, living about a mile from town, brought to Lexington on Saturday last a beet that will certainly count one. It was 20 inches in size of a gallon pot, and weighed seven pounds.

A negro living on Mr. J. T. M. Haire's place near Lexington, this year made from about three-fourths of acre of land 150 bushels of fine yam potatoes. It sold at the market price would bring the owner $75 or $80, and yet it is said that there is no crop that pays like king cotton.

From the Meriwether, Ga. Vindicator:

Mr. Eli Blount has made this year from about seven-eighths of an acre of land forty seven gallons of sorghum syrup, sixty-four gallons of ribbon cane syrup and saved two thousand five hundred stalks of cane for seed. This is at the rate of $100 per acre.

From the Lincolnton, Ga., News.

Mr. L. B Myers, of this county, has home raised hogs for sale, and they are as fine as any Kentucky raised we have ever seen. He sold four in Lincolnton this week that weighed over a thousand pounds. This is a new thing in Lincoln, and we hope to see more of it. Nearly every farmer is trying to raise his meat.

Hon. J. W. Barksdale runs one of the largest farms in the county, and besides he has a public gin, a grinding and saw mill. Mr. Ed Beard informs us that Mr. Barksdale bought the other day from Sutton & Anderson, of Danburg, 10,000 pounds of meat at 6 cents.

The farmers of Lincoln are more and more going about making their own manures. This is a most hopeful sign. When they come to manuring every foot of land they plant with homemade fertilizers then will a truly prosperous era open up for the country, and not till then.

From the Hawkinsville, Ga., Dispatch.

Hawkinsville has received to date 16,400 bales of this year's crop of cotton, being an increase of 2,500 bales over the receipts for the same time last season. The season for picking has been very favorable, and the crop is nearly all gathered.

The Silken Bond.

Several golden and silver weddings took place throughout the state during the past week.

The most notable nuptial event in Georgia this year was that in Savannah last week, in which three handsome couples—Jew, Catholic and Protestant—were ushered into the realms of conjugal bliss.

The Fort Valley Mirror says that Mr. Charles LeConte, of North Carolina, was married to Miss Rosa Duffy, of Crawford county, on 17th inst., at 11 o'clock, p. m. The marriage took place at Elmwood, and was witnessed by Mr. H. B. Pope and several friends of the bride. It was an unexpected affair, the bridal party having come to the Elmwood place to find the minister, the Rev. Mr. Parsons. After the ceremony, the groom saluted the bride with a good, old-fashioned kiss, and the party went off in great glee.

The Thomasville Enterprise says that a double wedding occurred on John I. Parker's place, in which an old colored man and his granddaughter were married on the same night. One of the old fellow's sweethearts became somewhat angered at the old man's marriage and said: "It was nobody marrying nothing."

At the residence of the bride's mother, on Bush street, November 26th, Mr. Thomas A. Barrett to Miss Cora Freeman, Rev. H. C. Hornady, D. D. officiating.

By the same, at the house of Mr. Moorfield on Cone street, November 26th, Mr. William J. Garner to Miss Ellen L. Jinks.

In the Baptist church at Senoia November 27th, in the presence of a large congregation, Mr. Willis S. Travis, of West Florida, to Miss Estelle B. Vining, of Senoia. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. B. Hornady, D. D. The parties left on the afternoon train for the home of the bridegroom.

At the residence of the bride's father, S. S. Loveless, of Buchanan, Mr. Pearce Chandler and Miss Lizzie Loveless, Rev. T. W. M. Brown officiating.

NOTEWORTHY PERSONALS.

Hon. Samuel Barnett is on a business trip to Baltimore. He is accompanied by Miss Lulie DuBose, who goes to visit friends.

Captain J. G. Royal died suddenly at his residence near Perry, Friday, of heart disease. He was a gallant ex-confederate soldier.

Mr. John Hanas, formerly sheriff of Marion county, died at his home in Chattahoochee, aged over 80 years.

Mr. Ellis Johnson, one of Washington county's best farmers and most esteemed citizens, with his family, has moved to Jefferson county.

Aunt Jennie Penn, a negro woman living with the Widow Penn, near Trion, is said to be [illegible] old. She is an old servant [illegible] years Judge Russell [illegible] of that family.
[illegible] Park, of Hoschton, never missed a [illegible] election since he cast his first vote for Andrew Jackson, and he has cast but one vote that he regretted, and that was for Horace Greeley. He has never missed voting at every state election and only one county election.

Says the Carroll Free Press:

Mr. S. T. Lewis, of Randolph county, who was in our office on last Wednesday, informs us of the suicide of quite a prominent citizen of that county, Thursday of last week. The name of the gentleman who suicided is Thomas E. Head, at the time of his death a justice of the peace, and once a member of the legislature from that county. He committed the awful deed by hanging himself in his barn, the act having been committed in the fore part of the day, though his body was not found until about 1 o'clock in the evening. The deceased had not been for several weeks properly at himself, on account of financial embarrassments, and his neighbors and friends think he was insane when he suicided. Mr. Head was held in high esteem in his county. He leaves a wife and eleven children.

BOOKS AND LIBRARY.

The library agitation in Griffin is meeting with great success.

Nothing has lately been heard from the Cedartown library project.

The Catholic library books in Atlanta, have been removed into the new parochial residence.

It is said that Bremen is thinking of a library among its new enterprises.

Charlie Herbst may now be regarded as one of the permanent fixtures of Macon. He keeps the library in perfect order.

The young people of Oglethorpe are getting up a concert to buy books for a library. It will come off some time in December.

Concerning the Thomasville library, the Enterprise says:

It is a disagreeable fact, but nevertheless it is a fact that unless the new board of directors have better support by the people that some of the old boards the institution will soon fall into decay and ruin. Thomasville cannot afford this. It is the object of the new board to try and infuse a new life into the concern. To do this they must have outside help and aid. The new board held a meeting at the library hall last Thursday night. The following officers were elected: K. T. McLain, president; W. R. McIntyre, vice president; J. H. Merrill, secretary, and L. H. Jergens, treasurer.

GEORGIA BY WIRE.

THE NEWS OF THE STATE BRIEFLY CHRONICLED.

Rebuilding the Euharlee Mills—Death in Conyers—The Day in Athens—A Disappointed Crowd—Festivities for Rome During the Week—Other News All Over the State.

CARTERSVILLE, November 29.—[Special.]—The Euharlee mills, which were burned down about a year ago are being rapidly rebuilt.

Death in Conyers.

CONYERS, Ga., November 29.—[Special.]—Miss Katie Anderson, daughter of Mr. S H. Anderson died at her residence yesterday morning at 3 o'clock. She was taken ten days ago with diphtheria and literally choked to death.

A Member of the Phonetic Society.

COLUMBUS, Ga., November 29.—[Special.]—Mr. Fred A. Clark, the son of Superintendent W. L. Clark, to day received his certificate of competency in phonetic short hand from Mr. Isaac Pitman, of Bath, England, and is now a member of the Phonetic society. Mr Clark acquired the art under the tuitiage of Mr. E. M Walsh, of this city, by an untiring application of 12 months.

The Day in Athens.

ATHENS, Ga., November 29.—[Special.]—The senior class will plant their class tree next Friday evening. P. H. Adams is the orator for the occasion.

Policeman Joe Holcombe is in a dying condition. The physicians say he cannot last many hours longer.

The Oconee county trappers passed through Athens yesterday, riding up the Oconee river to trap beavers. They had a great deal of beaver meat and skins, which they sold in the city.

The university has forwarded two exhibits to the New Orleans exposition. One was drawing of a dwelling plan and elevator, by Mr. M J. Nicholson, and the other the drawing of a horse truss by Mr Neal Wilson. They were sent by Professor Barrow.

A Disappointed Crowd.

CONYERS, Ga., November 29.—[Special.]—A great many people were sadly disappointed here yesterday. They had congregated in numbers at the station to board the fast train for Atlanta. When she drove in sight all was excitement and confusion, each one trying to get the best place so as to be certain to get on. When the engine crossed the switch the engineer commenced blowing the whistle and the crowd raised the yell, which was continued until it was seen that the train would not stop. She passed through at the rate of forty miles an hour. Such a look of disappointment on each face you never saw! Each one seemed disgusted with themselves and everything else. Every one felt as if they had been sold. Those who had not contemplated going had the laugh on them and used it.

Festivities for Rome.

ROME, Ga., November 29.—[Special.]—Various committees having in charge the fair of the Hill City Cadets met to-day and arraigned a fine programme for the week. On Thursday evening the festivities will reach a climax, the grand military reunion taking place that night. Several companies from abroad are expected to be here at that time.

The annual supper of the Rainbow and Mountain City fire companies takes place Monday evening, and that of the Citizen's hook and ladder company occurs December 12th.

Rome is justly proud of her fire department our gallant firemen being at all times as ready to fight the flames as they are to engage in social festivities.

COLUMBUS SPORTSMEN.

The Fall Meeting of the Baseball and Driving Association Closes.

COLUMBUS, November 29.—[Special.]—The fall meeting of the Columbus baseball and driving association closed to-day and was a successful one. The trotting race, three minute class, mile heats, best three in five, was won by C. H. Bracket & Co.'s b. g. "Headlight," who won the second, third and fourth heats; time 2:34¼, 2:33¾ and 2:41. J. H. Thayer's "Fannie Allen" won the first heat in 2:34½, and was second in the other heats. Purse $150. The running race, three-quarter mile heats, best two in three, was won by C. W. Weddington's b. m. "Miss Payne," winning the last two heats; time 1:20½ and 1:20½. S. C. Streeter's b. m. was second. S. Dusch's b. g. Gwen the first heat; time 1:20½. "Alcina" second, "Miss Payne" 3d. Purse $100. The trotting race free to all mile heats, best 3 in 5, entered 'Joe Davis" and "Bascap," the former winning the first three heats and the race. Time, 2:32½, 2:31½ and 2:31¾. Purse $200.

A one half mile dash of two pair of horses—riders standing—was an exciting and enjoyable feature of the day, as was also Miss Nellie Barks's exhibition of her chariot race with an opponent, for horses abreast to each chariot. Miss Nellie won the race. Nothing occurred to mar the pleasure of the meeting. There was only two days of doubtful weather, and it was a grand success.

GEMS FROM THE PRESS.

From the LaGrange, Ga., Reporter.

There is a little eleven year old miss in LaGrange who is a great aunt. She should be proud of the distinction at so early an age.

From the Toccoa, Ga., News.

Not long since a lady advised her "better half" to attend a Canning school in order to appear graceful in prayer meeting.

From the Washington, Ga., Gazette.

A young lady of this place sent for a physician to see her cat a few days ago. She said it was a common cat, as it was a fine Maltese, and it should not lack for attention.

From the Cedartown, Ga., Advertiser.

Persimmons are not abundant, but the 'possum seems to be no less plentiful in search of the "fruit" than usual, and 'possum hunting as a sport has its wonted number of successful devotees this season.

From the Sandersville, Ga., Herald.

Two Hall county wagons on the streets on Monday vending chestnuts and apples, recalled the days of "Auld Lang Syne." Before the railroads were so common in the state, wagons from north Georia, loaded with apples, leather and tobacco, were often seen in middle and south Georgia.

From the Montezuma, Ga., Record.

Last Sun lay we noticed [illegible] that several young men [illegible] tobacco juice on the floor of the Lord by spitting to church. [illegible] puddles on the door of the Baptist [illegible] The use of tobacco is a dirty, filthy habit, and users should not disgust decent people by using it in church. Stop it, young men, and never be guilty of the offense again.

From the Camilla, Ga., Clarion.

What a delightful serenade the rain gave us all through the latter part of Saturday night. The writer happened to be spending the night with a friend who lives in a log house and one of the great advantages of these good old houses is the music of the rain as it patters on the roof. The rain was slow, but abundant and now oat sowing is the order of the day. Sow on till the first of February.

From the LaGrange, Ga., Reporter.

Mrs. Maria A Hall has twenty-seven grandsons, eighteen granddaughters, and eighteen great grandchildren, making a total of sixty-three descendants of the second and third generations. Of all her sons and grandsons only one is addicted to the use of tobacco. There are grandchildren dead three and great grandchildren dead two. She is still very stout, has never used glasses, and her hair is not yet gray.

From the Jackson Herald:

We regret to learn that there is a bar room in Clarkesboro district that is doing a rushing business under the gallon law. It is the resort of the community and has been the scene of a great number of rows already. As long as liquor was kept out of the district Clarkesboro had a good name and her citizens were prosperous and in a great many ways showed evidences of progress and improvement, but now that the evil is abroad in the community we may expect a backward movement. We sympathize with the large number of good and law-abiding citizens of that district who have tried so hard to get rid of this evil, and hope that they will yet be able to secure good order and sobriety. We shall endeavor, and know that all good citizens will join us, in giving them all the assistance possible.

A Dream Dispelled.

From the Dawson, Ga., Journal.

Last Thursday one of Jim Grier's lady friends from the country stepped in at J. D. Laing's to purchase a piece of calico. Jim advanced with his face wreathed in last year's smiles and at once proceeded to display the goods, at the same time discoursing upon their merits. Everything was moving along nicely and Jim was happy in the expectation of making a good sale; but, alas! everything is attended with its disappointments, and suddenly Jim's smiles were banished and his heart turned into sorrow by the lady unceremoniously turning her quid of tobacco on the other side and relieving her mouth of a large quantity of amber, which found lodgment on one of Jim's feet. She then spit on the calico and rubbed it to see if it would fade; but Jim didn't press the sale any further, and she finally left without purchasing, and Jim sorrowfully replaced the goods, mumbling "Ding a woman that chews tobacco."

WONDERFUL.

A Faith Cure—Balm Found in Gilead—Mrs. Elizabeth Beavers Healed.

From the Cumming, Ga., Clarion:

Sunday evening last, in company with Mr. E. C. McAfee, we visited the residence of Mrs. Elizabeth Beavers, in Milton county, to obtain the facts relative to the recent marvelous cure of Mrs. Beavers.

She is the daughter of Mr. Joseph R Thompson, who was once a resident of Gwinnett county, but who, for years before his death, was a citizen of Forsyth county. Among Mr. Thompson's children were Mrs. Emily McAfee, Mr. Beavers and Mrs. Jane Spence, wife of Mr. James Spence, county treasurer of Milton county. There are Methodist preachers yet living who will recollect Mr. Thompson's house as the home of preachers, as a house of prayer, religion and Methodism, some of whom no doubt will remember Elizabeth, bright, winsome and pious, adorned with many of the graces of Christianity.

Mrs. Beavers was born in the year 1815 and consequently is now nearly seventy years old. She joined the church at the age of 11, since when she has been a consistent, active praying member.

Her first husband was a Doss, the second a Beavers. Poor in this world's goods until 4 years ago, she had a hard struggle to raise her children and keep her head above want.

Mrs. Beavers has never been well since she had a severe spell of typhoid fever 32 years ago, which left her system a wreck, with dyspepsia and its attendant horrors as a heritage of that dread malady. When exhausted from pain and labor she would pray for more strength.

About six years ago she became sorely afflicted with something like chronic tympanitis, from which she has been a constant sufferer, frequently having spells which caused excruciating physical agony. So severe were her afflictions that for a long time she had not been able to set up all day at a time. Near the middle of October last she had a hard spell which continued for a week without relief. Her sufferings were intense, though she could get up and walk about a little.

During the many years of her afflictions she had prayed God for grace to enable her to bear them, but, on the 22d day of October, she went to a secret place of prayer and prayed fervently—not for grace to bear them—but to Jesus Christ to cure her bodily ailments.

In the evening of the same day she was sitting in her room knitting. Of a sudden so nothing said to her as distinctly as if in spoken words, though she heard no sound: "If you'll believe you'll be healed." Instantly she responded: "I believe." A strange, singular calm-like feeling instantly came over her. She felt at ease, painless, and so has been ever since.

She sat for some time enjoying the calm, peaceful feeling and then asked her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Caroline Doss, formerly Caroline Wills, daughter of Mastin Wills, who was in his day a Methodist and Christian of the devoutest and straightest kind, if she believed Jesus had the same power to heal diseases now that He had when on the earth. Mrs. Doss replied, "Yes, on the same condition of faith." Mrs. Beavers then told her of the inaudible voice that she had heard, what it said, her reply, and also of her entire freedom from pain.

Ever since the day of her faith-cure she has been hale and hearty, cooking and doing other things incident to home life in the country, without an ache or pain, except such feelings of tiresomeness as any well person of her age would feel from exercise and labor.

She is now walking and living day by day by faith, with absolute trust in her Savior, that He will keep her moment by moment in health, and in the "light as He is in the light."

After noting the facts, as related by Mrs. Beavers herself, the writer asked her to pray with and for those present, and never have we heard a sweeter or abler prayer. We felt that it was, indeed, good to be there, to rest even for a night beneath the roof of one so wonderfully blessed of God.

The Railroad Commission's Report.

From the Savannah News.

The railroad commission of this state, in the report which they have just submitted to the governor, dwelt at considerable length on the statement that the existence of the commission is a hindrance to railroad building in the state.

They combat this idea, and, apparently, very successfully, and present figures, showing that in the five years since the establishment of the commission, six times as many miles of railroad have been built within the state as during the five years that immediately preceded the commission. While this showing is not conclusive in favor of the commission, it is a remarkably strong argument in its favor. To overcome it the opponents of the commission would have to show that the five years preceding the commission were not years of such prosperity as to encourage railroad building, and that if it had not been for the commission many more miles would have been built than have been since the commission became a power. It is doubtful if they could do this. The commission marshal a good many more facts in their support, and are apparently ready to meet any attack that may be made on them.

There isn't anywhere, however, any wide-spread hostility to the commission itself, though there may be a good deal of opposition to the extent of the power which it seems agreed the commission exercises. The chief complaint of the railroads is that there is no appeal from the decisions of the commission, and that although the decisions may in the main be right, there may be occasions when they will work injustice. An effort is being made in the present legislature to have the railroad commission law so far modified as to allow an appeal to be taken from the decisions of the commission.

Unless the commission entertain different views from what they did when their semi annual report, previous to the present one, was published, they will not resist this effort. [illegible] proposed modification of the law is so worded as to secure prompt action upon the appeals. If the right to appeal from the decisions of the commission were granted one of the strongest objections to the commission would be done away with. From present indications the commission will be one of the institutions of the state for a good long time.

Confounding Bad English.

New York Corr. Indianapolis News.

One of the laughed at beaus has disappered from the daintiest circles of our society. He called himself Lord Abercrombie, and he was a fraud; but the well attested Lord Mandeville, for devitry or some other reason, countenanced him so openly that the people did not go further than to doubt him, and he was in vogue until Mandeville himself got into debt and difficulty, when he fell flat into the mud of contumely. There was a shrewd, bright belle who, while convinced—as anybody who investigated the subject at all was bound to be—that the chap was a pretender, did not deem it becoming to denounce him. However, she determined that he should cease to pose in her parlor. When he called again he saw one of those dictionary holders which are commonly used in libraries. "Ah!" he drawled, with a bit of sarcasm in his tone, "another odd American custom. Well, there's nothing like having an authority at hand to confound people's bad English." "O, it isn't a dictionary!" the girl responded, with the bitterness of her remark all sugar-coated with a sweet smile, "it's a copy of 'Burke's Peerage.' Still, I do keep it handy to confound the bad English." The impostor knew that his falsity was apparent in that book, and he never called afterward.

A QUESTION ABOUT

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS Answered.

The question has probably been asked thousands of times, "How can Brown's Iron Bitters cure everything?" Well, it doesn't. But it does cure any disease for which a reputable physician would prescribe Physicians recognize Iron as the best restorative agent known to the profession, and inquiry of any leading chemical firm will without doubt substantiate the assertion that there are more preparations of iron than of any other substance used in medicine. This shows conclusively that Iron is acknowledged to be the most important factor in successful medical practice. It is, however, a remarkable fact, that prior to the discovery of Brown's Iron Bitters no perfectly satisfactory iron combination had ever been found.

IRON

Brown's Iron Bitters does not injure the teeth, cause headache or produce constipation—all other iron medicines do. Brown's Iron Bitters cures indigestion, biliousness, weakness, dyspepsia, malaria, chills and fevers, tired feeling, general debility, pain in the side, back or limbs, headache and neuralgia—for all these ailments Iron is prescribed daily.

Brown's Iron Bitters, however, does not cure in a minute. Like all other thorough medicines, it acts slowly. When taken by men the first symptom of benefit is renewed energy. The muscles then become firmer, the digestion improves, the bowels are active. In women the effect is usually more rapid and marked. The eyes begin at once to brighten; the skin clears up; healthy color comes to the cheeks; nervousness disappears; functional derangements become regular, and if a nursing mother abundant sustenance is supplied for the child. Remember Brown's Iron Bitters is the ONLY iron medicine that is not injurious.

DEATH AND DESOLATION

THE DREADFUL PLAGUE IN EASTERN KENTUCKY.

A Whole Section Without a Living Human Being—A Thousand Deaths Within Two Weeks—Cattle Dying on Parched Fields—A Terrible Story of Desolation and Death.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., November 29.—Arthur A. Loomis, traveling representative for a New York firm, was in this city to-day, having just returned from a trip through the plague-stricken district of eastern Kentucky. Mr. Loomis said he was four days in Manton county without disposing of a single article. The people are absolutely crazy. They have no use for anything but coffins. In an interview on this subject he describes in picturesque language the situation as being a great deal worse than has been heretofore published. He describes the streams, wells and cisterns as having dried up; sheep and cattle dead upon parched fields, and every human being in the entire neighborhood dead. Thousands of persons perished within a few weeks. Starvation, Mr. Loomis says, has been the chief agent of death in the stricken locality.

THE CAROLINA LEGISLATURE.

A Bill to Regulate the Railroad Commission of South Carolina.

COLUMBIA, S. C., November 29—In the senate to-day the most interesting item was the introduction of a bill to regulate the railroad commission of the state. Mr. E. H. Bobo, of Spartanburg, is the father of the bill and he will work earnestly to push it through the legislature. The proposed measure seeks to reduce the railroad commission down to one member. It now is composed of three—Messrs. Bonham, Walker and Duncan. Mr. Bobo thinks the commission should be abolished in toto, but he regards it as very doubtful whether at present a bil could be passed abolishing it. He thinks the passage of his bill will pave the way for its abolition at the next session of the legislature. He, in common with many sagacious legislators and long-headed business men, thinks that the railroad commission has proved a signal failure, while many others regard it as a fine institution. Bobo's bill will occasion a bitter fight when it comes up on its merits.

Both branches of the legislature are now in excellent working order. All the committees are organized and much preliminary work has already been accomplished. Several bills of importance have been introduced, some of which will elicit a warm discussion when they reach a debatable stage. Mr. Leitner, the senator from Kershaw county, has introduced a bill to repeal the "lien law." This will encounter much opposition. It is admitted by our most intelligent people that this odious law is a curse to the state, and thousands of good citizens have petitioned the legislature to repeal it immediately. The patrons of husbandry and the state grange, the South Carolina agricultural society and several other important bodies of farmers have demanded its repeal. It is prejudicial in a hundred ways to the best interests of the people, and it should be summarily repealed. It is questionable, however, whether the general assembly will at this time deem it expedient to repeal the law.

Several important railway bills have been introduced. It is likely that three new railway companies will get charters to construct new lines in this state. The bill to charter the South Carolina Midland railway has reached its second reading and will go through without any trouble. It is said that the railway companies will make another fight at the railway commission and try to secure the repeal of some of the railway laws. An attempt will doubtless be made to abolish the commission. A number of railway magnates are here watching the law makers.

It is too early in the session to indicate what course legislation is likely to take, for the business has scarcely been mapped out as yet. The members of both houses, however, appear to be industrious and wide-awake, and the session will likely be short and lively. Work will begin in earnest next Monday morning.

CONGRESSMAN RANDALL.

His District Likely to Remain as it Now is —Republicans Afraid of Him.

HARRISBURG, November 29.—One of the important measures that must engage the attention of the legislature that meets here in January, is the congressional, senatorial, and representative apportionment. For some time the democratic opponents of Mr. Randall have been covertly claiming that the congressional district now represented by him would be made so strongly republican as to prevent his return to congress, and that such being the case it would be the wise thing for Mr. Randall to go into President Cleveland's cabinet as secretary of the interior.

Upon its face it seemed like a scheme to get Mr. Randall out of congress, so that the "revenue reformers" of the Morrison school would not have the great protectionist thwarting their plans; but it does seem to work smoothly, for the reason that the republicans, being in a large majority in the legislature, don't propose to retire Congressman Randall from a position in which he is of such great benefit to the people of Pennsylvania and the whole country.

Practical republican politicians, like Senator Cameron and Chris. Magee know that for the republicans to cut Randall out of his district would make a martyr of him, which would be followed by his election to the governorship of Pennsylvania two years hence; and who could predict what would be the future of the democratic statement that overcome an adverse majority of 81,000? The republicans of Pennsylvania have a high regard for Mr. Randall, but they are not engaged just now in making available and dangerous democratic candidates for 1888 Corruption Among Mahone Henchmen.

RICHMOND, Va., November 29.—The general assembly to-day passed over the governor's veto the electoral board bill. This is the second time this year that the legislature has had to do this, the court of appeals having decided the first bill passed last winter to be unconstitutional. The committee which has been investigating for some time past charges against Attorney General Blair of exacting illegal fees from the state submitted a report to-day, in which among other things, they disclose the fact of discovery of defalcation in office of the auditor of public accounts, the books in that office failing to show proper credits for taxes paid by clerks of the county courts on law processes. The amount involved so far is $1,500, but if these irregularities show up in the same proportion in all counties the amount will reach from $20,000 to $30,000

As soon as the discovery of irregularities was made known to Auditor Marye he suspended his chief clerk, William R. Smith, who had charge of the books in which the entries of payments made should have been recorded, and who audits all such accounts. Smith has been in the auditor's office over twenty years. He claims that a full investigation will establish his innocence in the matter. The legislature has appointed a special committee to make a thorough examination of the auditor's office after the adjournment sine die, which will take place Monday.

Marriage of a Congressman's Daughter.

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C., November 29.—Miss Sadie Green, a daughter of Congressman W. J. Green, was married last night to Mr. Pembroke Jones, Wilmington, N. C. Many circumstances combined to attract the attention to happy and to dignify the occasion. The bridegroom is a young man of fine attainments. The bride has been a reigning belle for several seasons past at Saratoga, at White Sulphur springs, of Virginia, and at the federal capital. Mr. Jones is the son of Captain Pembroke Jones, up to the late war a distinguished officer of the United States navy, and afterwards of the confederate service. At the residence of Colonel Green, eighteen months ago, Judge David Davis married Miss Burr, a cousin of Colonel Green. Mrs. Davis was present at the ceremony.

A WOMAN'S HEROISM.

A Young Lady From Little Rock Saves a Passenger's Life.

CHATTANOOGA, November 29.—[Special.]—The east bound express train on the Memphis and Charleston railroad was thrown from the track near Somerville last night by a broken rail. The Pullman sleeper turned over twice down an embankment and landed upside down. The lamps in the car exploded, and before the horrified passengers could recover from the shock the car was a mass of flames. Mr. Sam Creze, of Memphis, was badly injured and would have been burned to death, but for the heroism of Miss Jean Verner, of Little Rock. She assisted him in making his escape at the risk of her own life, as she was the last to crawl through the window rash. The seven persons who occupied the car barely escaped alive and lost all their valuables.

CLEVELAND TO THE ACTORS.

He Appreciates Their Always Ready Generosity and Accepts an Invitation.

NEW YORK, November 29.—[Special.]—President elect Cleveland was waited upon in Albany by a delegation from the Actors Fund society to-day and invited to attend the annual performance for the benefit of the fund, to be given at the Academy of Music next Thursday afternoon. The governor replied that he had been compelled to decline many invitations of many kinds, but he appreciated the always ready generosity of actors when other people were in trouble, and as this was the only charity actors had for themselves he would accept the invitation.

President Arthur, Mayor elect Grace and other prominent gentlemen will be invited.

COMSTOCK, THE CRANK.

A Lively Scene Yesterday in the New York Police Court.

NEW YORK, November 29.—Charles Conroy was to-day arraigned in the police court, charged with having expressed and sold indecent photographs and pictures on the streets. Anthony Comstock made the complaint. Conroy's counsel made a vigorous appeal to the court for his clients' release, and Comstock argued in opposition. Conroy's counsel handed the court a book issued by the New York National Defense association. The book contained sayings from Thomas Jefferson, Henry Ward Beecher and others concerning what was and what was not immoral. The pamphlet was compiled in opposition to Anthony Comstock and his labors. Its presentation to the court made Comstock angry, and he denounced Professor Rabon, the publisher of the book. Conroy took this for an attack on himself, and sprung forward and aimed a blow at Comstock which an officer averted. Conroy's counsel demanded an examination which was set down for next week.

Neiville, the Murderer, Guilty.

TOLEDO, O., November 29.—The Neiville murder case came to a sudden termination this morning. At the adjournment of the court, last evening, the opening argument for the prosecution had been made, and it was expected that this morning the jury would be addressed on behalf of the prisoner, but when the court opened his counsel remarked that they did not care to say anything to the jury, whereupon Judge Lemman delivered his charge, and the twelve retired only to return in about fifteen minutes with a verdict of guilty. Neiville took the matter very coolly and had nothing to say further than to thank his counsel for the able effort they had made in his behalf. An effort will be made to secure a new trial. The extent of the punishment in such cases is seven years in prison. Neiville will probably not be sentenced until near the close of the present term of the court.

THE DEATH RECORD.

Death of a Prominent Physician.

BALTIMORE, Md., November 29.—Dr. Harvey L. Byrd died at his residence, in this city, this morning at an advanced age. Dr. Byrd was a native of Georgia for many years, and was professor in the medical college of Mobile, but at breaking out of hostilities in 1861, he joined the confederate army and was attached as surgeon to Rylander's battalion of Northern Virginia, and was thence transferred as post surgeon to Mobile, where he remained until the close of the war. After the war he came to Baltimore, and was one of the originators of the college of physicians and surgeons, subsequently he helped in the organization of the Baltimore medical college. He was one of the executive committee of the Aryan order.

Death of Mr. Joel T. Johnson.

COLUMBUS, Ga., November 29.—[Special.]—Died in this city this evening at 6 o'clock, Mr. Joel T. Johnson, a prominent citizen and clothier of this city, the father of M. W. O. Johnson, the local editor of the Enquirer-Sun. Mr. Johnson was an active deacon in the First Baptist church here and was highly esteemed as a man of proority and pure Christian character. A wife and four children survive.

The Death of General Mott.

NEW YORK, November 29.—General Gershom G. Mott, of Bordentown, New Jersey, was stricken with heart disease on New Church street to-day, and was carried into a neighboring office and died before physicians could reach him.

Death of Colonel Robert Crawford.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., November 29.—[Special.]—Colonel Robert Crawford, a prominent lawyer, of this city, recently from St. Louis, died here this morning of rheumatism of the heart.

A Fatal Freight Collision.

MEMPHIS, November 28.—Freight train No. 14, going east, which left here at 1:30 o'clock this morning on the Chesapeake, Ohio and Southwestern railroad, collided with freight train No. 9, going west, two miles east of Henning's station, and 48 miles east of Memphis this morning. Engineer Jack Moore, a brakeman and Robert Neely, of No. 9, were killed outright. Pat Welch, fireman of No. 9, and the fireman of No. 14 were both buried beneath the cars. It is thought that they will die. Eight freight cars and both engines were badly wrecked.

Mother and Daughter Perish.

OCONTO, Wis., November 29.—Mrs. John Wattaconnit and her twelve-year-old daughter attempted to walk twelve miles in returning from the funeral of the mother's sister, on Saturday. They lost their way and perished by severe cold in an extensive swamp surrounding Shaw Lake. Their bodies were discovered by searching parties yesterday afternoon, and were frozen stiff.

An Engineer Killed in a Collison.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa, November 29.—The Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Northern line stock train of eight cars of hogs, this morning ran into the northwest railway train, causing a bad wreck. Fireman Fred Phillips was instantly killed and Joseph Benjamin, engineer, was badly injured.

Terrible Boiler Explosion.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., November 29.—A special to the Courier-Journal from Elizabethtown, Ky., says the boiler of a saw-mill about seven miles from this place exploded to-day, tearing the building to pieces and killing John and James Morgan, Richard Brown and four others whose names are not known. Two others were probably fatally injured.

Two Hangings to Occur in Washington.

WASHINGTON, November 29.—Frank Minor, colored, who was a few days ago convicted of the murder of his wife, Victoria, in October, 1882, was to-day sentenced to be hanged on the second Friday after the close of the next term of the court in general term.

John Langster, who killed Police Officer Fowler, will be hanged at the same time.

Convicted of Embezzlement.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., November 29.—John Stanley, a prominent politician, and late treasurer of Norwegian township, in this county, was convicted of embezzlement and conspiracy this morning after a trial lasting several days. Sentence was deferred.

A Georgia Schooner Ashore.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., November 29.—The schooner, "Henry D. May," from Brunswick, Ga., is ashore in the Delaware river below Gloucester.

THE BUSINESS WORLD.

THE NATIONAL DEBT SHOWS AN INCREASE FOR NOVEMBER.

How the Mills and Factories of the Country are Running—Wages Being Reduced in Some and Others Resuming to Full Work—The Failures of the Day, Etc., Etc.

WASHINGTON, November 29.—It is estimated at the treasury department that there has been an increase of about $750,000 in the public debt during the month of November. Payments have been unusually heavy and receipts comparatively light. The principal increase in disbursements was on account of pensions, which amounted to over $80,000,000, receipts were about $40,000,000, less than for the month last year.

In that month there was a decrease in the debt of $1,700,000. This is the first time since July, 1879, that the monthly statement has not shown a decrease in the public debt. In that month there was an increase of $6,000,000. The increase at that time was on account of the heavy payments of arrears of pensions. The surplus now in the treasury is $141,000,000.

The Middletown Banks.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., November 29.—The run on the savings bank yesterday drew out about $20,000. It still continues to-day, but is much smaller. The bank is abundantly able to pay the demands, and published in the local papers yesterday a statement that they were ready to pay all depositors, waiving 30 days' notice. No fears are entertained about its safety by the mass of depositors.

President King, of the broken National bank, is in bed and cannot be seen. There are no new developments in the matter.

The comptroller of the currency has been sent a telegram from Bank Examiner May, in charge of the Middletown National bank, saying that it will be necessary to place the bank in the hands of a receiver.

A Prominent Carpet Mill Shuts Down.

YONKERS, N. Y., November 29.—Alexander Smith & Sons' extensive carpet mills here will shut down to-day, and will not resume for an indefinite time. The mill is one of the largest in the state, and employs between 3,000 and 4,000 hands, with a monthly pay roll of about $150,000. The shut down is no surprise to the hands, and it has been expected since their wages were cut down ten per cent some two weeks ago. The suspension is due to the depression in trade, and the fact that the mills have been running on full time when other mills were only running on three-quarters time.

A Receiver for Wilbur F. Storey's Estate.

CHICAGO, November 29.—Judge Tully in the circuit court this morning decided the application for the appointment of a receiver for the estate of Wilbur F. Storey, granting the petition and naming Thomas A. Hurlburt as receiver. The receiver is enjoined, however, from interfering with the editorial staff or policy of the Times, unless under special order of the court.

Another Carpet Mill Embarrassed.

BOSTON, November 29.—The Bigelow carpet company at Clifton, which employs nearly 1,600 hands, will, on December 10th, reduce the wages of its operatives on an average of 7 to 8 per cent.

Bank Statement.

NEW YORK, November 29.—The weekly statement of the associated banks shows the following changes:

Loans decrease	$3,025,100
Specie increase	520,700
Legal tenders increase	1,102,900
Deposits decrease	62,100
Circulation decrease	68,200
Reserve increase	2,021,025

The banks now hold $42,267,175 in excess of legal requirements.

A Reduction of Wages in New Jersey.

EASTON, Pa., November 29.—Notice was posted at Warren foundry, at Phillipsburg, N. J., to-day, announcing that on Monday the wages of all employes will be reduced 12 per cent. The foundry employes about 300 men, all working on full time. When asked for the cause of the reduction, one of the officials said: "We had to cut wages because others did, and in order to compete with other manufacturers.

Important Bank Suit Decided.

JACKSON, November 29.—In the federal court to-day the suit of the Hanover National bank, of New York, against the Mississippi Valley bank, which has occupied the attention of the court for several days, was concluded, and the arraignment was set aside in view of attaching creditors. The case will be carried to the supreme court of the United States.

Encouraging Sign.

PITTSBURG, Pa., November 29—The general feeling among business men here is daily growing more hopeful. Some large orders for railroad supplies have been placed this week with manufacturers, and bids for others have been asked for. The feeling among the iron men is decidedly better on account of receipts of fair orders for the products of their mills.

A Protest from Cigar Makers.

NEW YORK, November 29.—The cigar makers of this city met this evening and protested against the adoption of the pending treaty between the United States and Spain. The cigar makers claim that if the treaty be ratified a reduction of fifty per cent on the duty of manufactured tobacco will go into effect and the makers of them would be deprived of work.

Opposed to Mexican Reciprocity.

SAN FRANCISCO, November 29.—The state board of horticulture, at a meeting yesterday, adopted resolutions opposing the execution of the Mexican reciprocity treaty, and favoring a repeal of the Hawaiian reciprocity treaty.

A Big Attachment in Texas.

GALVESTON, November 29.—The News Dallas special says: In the United States circuit court to-day the attachment suit of Dallas, the real estate buildings, and other city property belonging to Adams and Leonards, the bankers, who recently assigned and proceedings in garnishments on the Dallas Real Estate Building Association, the Esquella Cattle Co., and W. H. Flippen, assignee of the bank, were entered by the Missouri Pacific railroad company, who set forth that company, made deposits with Adams & Leonard amounting to $86,500, which they sue to recover. Other smaller attachments have also been instituted against the bank's property. The court records show that Adams & Leonard, about an hour before filing their assignment, filed a deed of trust on the bank building to L. W. Golboldi as trustee in consideration of a promisory note of $10,000 held by H. R. Hearne, of Hearne, Texas. The assets of the suspended firm, as shown by the schedule filed, are $814,600, being nearly double their liabilities.

Burnside's Property Attached.

WASHINGTON, November 29.—By direction of the solicitor of the treasury, the property belonging to Colonel J O P Burnside, late disbursing clerk of the postoffice department, valued at $5,000, has been attached to satisfy part of the claim of the government against Burnside for default.

The Fall River Mills Will Run.

FALL RIVER, Mass., November 29.—The print cloth mills will continue to run next week as usual, and there is no immediate prospect of another shut down. A reduction of 10 per cent in wages is announced at the American print works.

London Failures.

LONDON, November 29.—Several small failures on the stock exchange are announced. The most notable is that of Mr. Douglass Petrie, of 14 Angel court, E. C.

A Brewing Establishment Fails.

NEW YORK, November 29.—The failure of Burr, Son & Co., brewers, No. 227 West 18th street, was announced this morning, with preferences amounting in aggregate to $117,618 and hand

A GEORGIAN KILLED.

A Former Resident of Milledgeville, Himself the Slayer of His Father, Killed.

SHREVEPORT, La., November 29.—[Special.]—Charles A. Devereaux was shot and killed last night by John O'Neal at Boughton Bossier Parish. The cause of the tragedy is not known. Devereaux was a man of extraordinary courage, and had served many years as deputy sheriff. He came from near Milledgeville, Ga., where he killed his step-father and had to leave the state.

SEDUCERS SHOT.

Two New Orleans Girls of Good Families Shoot Two Young Men.

NEW ORLEANS, November 29.—Georgiana and Josephine Conway, aged 20 and 22 years respectively, nieces of ex-Mayor Conway, shot two young men on Canal street to-night. Georgiana shot John D. Logan, son of ex-Alderman M. D. Logan, and Josephine shot Joseph A. Devonshire, United States deputy marshal. The young ladies claim that they were seduced by the men they shot. Logan was shot in the back and face, and dangerously, if not fatally, wounded. Devonshire was but slightly wounded in the back. The ladies and their brother were arrested. The wounded men were sent to the charity hospital.

HORRIBLE ACCIDENT.

A Woman and Her Mother Burned Fatally in Chattanooga Yesterday.

CHATTANOOGA, November 29.—[Special.]—Mrs. Julia Pettis, a young colored woman, aged 22, met with a shocking fate to-day. She was standing over a hearth, when her dress ignited, and in an instant she was enveloped in flames. She rushed into a room where her invalid mother was lying. The sick woman attempted to extinguish the flames, but fell exhausted to the floor. She managed, however, to dash a bucket of water over the burning woman. The flames were not extinguished until nearly every shred of clothing was burned off. The young woman will die, and it is feared her mother will also die from the excitement.

Irish Societies Increasing.

DUBLIN, November 29—The earl of Spencer, lord lieutenant of Ireland, has abandoned his intention to prosecute the United Ireland newspaper for libel. English executive department of Dublin continues the reports and speaks of differences among the people of the city and the great activity of sects and societies in recruiting their numbers. The nationalists make open boast of their great increase, and young Ireland societies are multiplying rapidly. Numerous public meetings are being held by the young Ireland societies in the provinces, in which considerable display is made of Irish, American, French and Boer flags.

Giving a Skeleton 50 Years.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, November 29.—Samuel Wannemaker, aged 50 years, of this county, who uttered fifty forged notes amounting to $25,000, was taken from the city hospital this afternoon and sentenced by Judge Arrell to 50 years imprisonment in the state penitentiary. Wannemaker is a mere skeleton, and cannot live longer than a few months. He will be taken to the Columbus penitentiary Tuesday.

THE RECORD OF THE FLAMES.

A Baltimore House Burned but the Loss Covered by Insurance.

BALTIMORE, Md., November 29.—A fire this morning in the large four story clothing house of Rosenfeld Bros., at Baltimore street, and center market, damaged stock $30,000. It was fully covered by insurance. The building was damaged $5,000, but was insured. The fire originated in the cutting department in the the fourth floor, and is supposed to have been caused by mice cutting matches.

Fire in London.

LONDON, November 29.—A fire broke out at midnight last night in the brewery of Barclay Perkins & Co., in Park street, Barrough, south east. Much damage was done and the central office destroyed, but business will not be interrupted.

More Texas Attachment.

DALLAS, Texas, November 29.—Wm. Carroth, a wealthy cotton planter, to-night filed an attachment in the district court against Adams & Leonard, of a deposit of $12,000. An officer of the bank gives it as his opinion that if attachments continue, the bank will be prevented from resuming business. Bishop Garrett had on deposit about $10,000 towards building an Episcopal church. The Methodist church had between $6,000 and $7,000 for the same purpose.

Fire in Montgomery.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., November 29.—[Special.]—A fire at Wharton's furniture store to-night destroyed and damaged several thousand dollars worth of goods, etc., partly insured. The fire came near extending to McDonald's opera house adjoining, but not Montgomery's excellent fire department, by superhuman efforts, stayed the conflagration.

Heavy Suit at Indianapolis.

INDIANAPOLIS, November 29.—Late this afternoon Hill and Lamb, attorneys for the First National Bank of Indianapolis filed with the county clerk, a suit against the Western elevator company. B. S. Brown, president, on a note given by the latter to the bank for $80,000, the demand of plaintiff being for $90,000. The note was made October 13th, 1883, payable on demand. It shows that interest was paid on it until November 1, 1884, at the rate of $333 per month, payment being secured by a chattel mortgage. At 4:30 p. m., yesterday this chattel mortgage was filed. It bears date of July 25, 1884. The property mortgaged to the Indianapolis bank to secure the payment of the note, if suit be brought, consists of an elevator in this city, also those owned by the elevator company in Paris, Newmno, Hammond & Weldon, Illinois.

In Pursuit of Indians.

GALVESTON, November 29.—A dispatch from San Antonio to the News says: The department commander has been notified by the authorities at Washington of the renewal of the reciprocal agreement providing for crossing the international boundary line by troops of the United States, and of the republic of Mexico, in pursuit of hostile Indians. Lieutenant Eggleston has thereupon crossed into Mexico in pursuit of the band of Indians who recently scalped Petty.

Contesting a Woman's Will.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., November 29.—The relations of Carrie J. Welton, the Waterbury girl who was frozen to death on Pike's Peak, have determined to contest her will on the ground of mental unsoundness. There is no dispute that she signed and duly executed the will which was offered to probate at Waterbury, but the heirs at law claim that they have been wronged by legacies and bequests out of family. Henry Bergh's society will gain if the present will is sustained.

Escape of Prisoners.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., November 29.—A special to the Appeal from Helena, Ark., says: Seven colored prisoners confined in the Phillips county jail this evening overpowered the jailer, T. M. Brickey, and escaped. Brickey recovered in time to fire and two bullets struck Pate Walton, who is charged with rape. Walton was recaptured. He will die. All the others have escaped and are still at large. A posse is in pursuit of them.

United States Deputy Marshals.

WASHINGTON, December 29.—Representative Follett, of Ohio, has prepared a bill which he will introduce in the house next week providing for an abolition of the present system of deputy marshals and supervisors of elections. He will also introduce a resolution to authorize the committee on expenditures in the department of justice to investigate the conduct of United States marshals and their deputies in Ohio during the October election.

Convicts to Make Clothing.

ALBANY, N. Y., November 29.—Superintendent of state prisons, Baker, will set 450 convicts at work in Dannemora prison on Monday, making clothing in the interest of the state.

Murder and Suicide.

OMAHA, Neb., November 29.—At Osceola, Polk county, a man named Smith on Thursday night fatally shot his wife and while in jail cut his own throat.

FOREIGN FLASHES.

CHINESE GORDON FORCED TO WITHDRAW HIS LINES.

18,000 Reinforcements to be Sent by France to China—Burning Hussey's Home in Ireland—A $175,000 Fire in Scotland—Verdict against Dr. Winslow—Items of News, Etc.

LONDON, November 29.—Private letters have been received from English officers who are stationed at Wada Halfa, which state that there is considerable sickness prevalent among the men forming the Nile expedition. Whole boats have been forced up the Nile at an incredible cost of time and labor. The letters also state that General Wolseley intends to abandon the river route and try the land march from Debbah. The collection of munitions of war and provisions for the army at Dongola is so slow that an advance on Khartoum is considered entirely improbable before February next. It is reported at Wady Halfa that General Gordon and his forces are in the most imminent danger, and want of munition, and that he has been consequently obliged to withdraw his advanced lines of mines in order to act strictly on the defensive. The Jesuit Priest Vincertivi, has left Dongola upon a mission to the Mahdi to obtain the release of several priests and sisters of charity, who have been detained at El'Obeid

SCHURZ'S OPINIONS.

He Pays a High Tribute to the United States Senate.

LONDON, November 29.—Carl Schurz has written a letter to Professor Brice upon the double working of the chambers of legislation in America. Schurz says that the popular judgment is right in regarding the double chamber as necessary, and on part of American political institutions, any proposal to abolish these legislative bodies would find no consideration in the United States The Americans are justly proud of their senate, which does not represent any privileged class or any separate interests, but is extremely useful as part of the American legislative machinery. The letter from Carl Schurz on this topic arose from a reference made by Professor Brice, asking him if he considered it advisable for England to continue the house of lords as a legislative body.

Captious Canadian Students.

MONTREAL, November 29.—The LaVal university students are again in difficulties with the rector, Rev. Mr. Hamil. It appears that after they had received concessions from the rector regarding gown confession and other regulations, the reverned father called each student before him and intimated that, although he had made these concessions in public, he could not do so in private, and consequently the rules must be insisted upon. The students have refused to accede to this request, so that the old trouble has again broken out.

Firing Hussey's Home.

DUBLIN, November 29.—Samuel Hussey, of Traile, whose house was partially destroyed with dynamite night before last, says that he was intending to leave Traile very soon. Indeed, he had already sent some of his servants away. He believes that the perpetrators of the outrage were aware of this intention, and thought that now was their last chance to injure him. Hussey has lodged a claim for £1,500 as compensation for malicious damage to his property.

15,000 Frenchmen to Go to China.

PARIS, November 29.—After the votes in chamber of deputies yesterday favoring the vigorous prosecution of the Chinese war the government issued orders quickening the dispatch of reinforcements to Admiral Combet and General De L'isle. The Telegraph says: The cabinet has obtained certain knowledge that China intends to continue the war. It is probable that 15,000 reinforcements will be sent to China.

Dispatches from General Gordon.

DONGOLA, November 29.—A messenger from General Gordon, who was reported yesterday to have reached Merwai, has arrived here. He brings dispatches from General Gordon eight weeks old. After leaving Khartoum the messenger was captured and was detained for some time at Shendy.

Resigned From Parliament.

LONDON, November 29.—Edward Mulhattan Marum, member of parliament for Kilkenny county, has written to his constituents resigning his seat because he does not enjoy the confidence of Mr. Parnell.

Earthquake in France.

LONDON, November 29.—Slight earthquake shocks were felt yesterday at Rome, Marseilles, Lyons, and in the department of the Maritime Alps.

Conflicting With Town Authorities.

MADRID, November 29.—The government is in a conflict with the municipal authorities It threatens to suspend the town council, and several passed votes of sympathy with the university students. Many of the sub-mayors of the city have resigned.

More Troops Demanded.

LONDON, November 29.—General Wolseley has applied to the war office for more troops and officers. The Army and Navy Gazette states that he urgently demands thirty subordinates The authorities do not know where to find them.

Coleridge Wants to Settle.

LONDON, November 29.—Bernard Coleridge, the son of Lord Chief Justice Coleridge, is endeavoring to arrange a compromise with F. M. Adams, the barrister to whom the jury lately accorded a verdict for $15,000. Coleridge has offered to pay all costs of the prosecution and $5,000 cash to Adams to finally settle the matter.

Fourteen Persons Killed.

HONG KONG, November 29.—The report that the boiler of the French man of war "Rigault Genouilly" had exploded off the coast of Formosa, where she was performing blockade duty, is confirmed. There were fourteen persons killed. The injuries to the Genouilly are not of a character to prevent her performing active service.

The Tannery Fire Loss.

DUNDEE, November 29.—The fire which broke out last night in the Stephenson Arctic tannery, was subdued to-day after strenuous efforts. The loss will amount to 35,000 pounds,

A Federal Council to be Appointed.

LONDON, November 29.—The government has prepared a bill to be presented at the next session of parliament to enable the Australasian colonies to establish a federal council, which will be authorized to deal with subjects of common interest to the different colonies, apart from the questions involved in colonial institutions.

An Archbishop's Unselfishness.

LONDON, November 29.—Archbishop Trench, of Dublin, who has just resigned his seat, declines a pension. He is entitled to receive 2,500 pounds yesterday.

The Depression in France.

PARIS, November 29.—M. Waldeck Rousseau, minister of the interior, has issued instructions to the various prefects of departments to furnish reports upon the condition of the local industries and agriculture, adding thereto the opinions of local leaders of the public as to what means and measures can be adopted to remedy the present depression.

Austrian Anarchists Sentenced.

VIENNA, November 29.—The twenty anarchists, who were convicted of secretly printing and circulating [illegible] pamphlets, have been sentenced [illegible] and imprisonment var[illegible]

THE PARIS SENSATION.

Mme. Hugues the Recipient of Great Attention in the French Prison.

PARIS, November 29.—Public sympathy for Madame Hugues, who shot her traducer day before yesterday, is intensified by the fact that both M. Hugues and his wife devotedly nursed the sufferers from cholera during the prevalence of the epidemic at Marseilles. Paul De Cassagnac, editor of Le Paris considers the lady a heroine, and urges the entire press to uphold her. M. Hugues says his wife proposed to partake of a "Lovers breakfast" before going to court. She was in excellent spirits during the meal. Before leaving her home she prepared a bundle of clothes for use during her stay in prison. She has asked the prison authorities that she may be provided with material for modelling in clay. Mme. Hugues has a daily reception at St. Lazzire prison. Hundreds of cards from members of all political sections in Paris, and a large number of floral offerings have been sent to her. Her two young daughters have also been permitted to visit her. M. Hugues states that his wife kept him in ignorance of the cause of the tragedy, as she was absent from her home, telling him that she was preparing a bust for the salon. Public interest in the affair overtops, for the time, even political questions, and the newspapers teem with extended details of the imbroglio.

A Five Hundred Pound Verdict.

LONDON, November 29.—The action for damages brought by Mrs. Weldon against Dr. Winslow, for attempting to confine her in his private lunatic asylum, was concluded to-day. The jury brought in a verdict for the plaintiff, giving her 500 pounds damages. Dr. Winslow expects to appeal the case.

Election of Railroad Officers.

MONTGOMERY, November 29.—[special.]—The twenty-seventh annual meeting of the stockholders of the South and North Alabama railroad (branch of the Louisville and Nashville system, running from Montgomery to Decatur, Ala.,) was held here to-day. The following directors were elected: J. W. Sloss, Josiah Morris, Bolling Hall E. B. Joseph, J. W. Durr, W. O. Baldwin F. M. Billing (in place of J. W. Harris deceased), M. P. LeGrande, in place of J. E. Washington, Merrill E. Pratt, in place of Judge Bibb, deceased. H. F. Debardleben, Luke Prior, John C. Orr and John T. Milner of New Castle. The latter has attended every meeting since the road's incipiency during the last twenty-seven years. At the director's meeting J. W. Sloss was re elected president. M. H. Smith, vice president, and H. M. Bush, secretary and treasurer. The following satisfactory annual financial statement was submitted: Gross earnings, $1,643,587.44; expenses, $1,112,979.69; net earnings, $530,607.75; net earning last year, $468,341.45; increase this year, $62,266.30.

Points From Montgomery.

MONTGOMERY, November 29.—[Special.]—The Masonic grand lodge of Alabama meets here on Monday next. The delegates are arriving already.

John A. Calvin is appointed general package agent of the union depot at Atlanta, to take effect the first proximo.

Congressman Thomas Williams, of the 5th Alabama district, left for Washington to-night. Two popular railroad men visit New Orleans to-morrow, Mr. Wadsworth and Dick Brade—the handsome captivating Louisville and Nashville railroad conductor.

General Shelley, of the 4th Alabama district, and Van Manning, of Mississippi, both congressmen, departed for Washington to night.

An Editor Secures an Injunction.

DETROIT, November 29.—Lloyd Breeze, formerly the proprietor of the Evening Journal, last Saturday bought the Morning Times, a united press paper. Editor Tomlinson, of the Journal, this morning secured a preliminary injunction, restraining Breeze from publishing the paper as an afternoon paper, as had been announced. The injunction was conditional, Breeze was allowed to publish the paper if he furnished a $3,000 bond to reimburse Tomlinson in case the suit now pending finally goes against him. The first issue of the paper came out at 3 p. m. to-day as a 32-column folio with full associated press reports.

The Brand-Leman Contest.

CHICAGO, November 29.—A conference of a number of democratic politicians which was held here to-day, resulted in Rudolph Brand sending a telegram to General Palmer, his attorney in the Brand-Leman contested election case, requesting him to dismiss the manner of proceedings directed against the state canvassing board. Mr. Brand desires to await the decision of Governor Hamilton before taking any further action, but says he does not intend by this to waive his claim to a seat in the Senate.

The Oklahoma Colonization.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., November 29.—Peter Hayden, formerly treasurer of the Oklahoma society of this city, state that the death of Captain Payne though a matter of sorrow among his friends, will not interrupt the progress of the colonization scheme. In an interview he says, "We are only waiting for action of congress in this matter, and as

"GNAWETH A FILE."

SOME SAGE REFLECTIONS FROM BILL ARP

The 'Boomerang a Dangerous Weapon in Careless Hands—Good Advice for Mr. Blaine and His Followers—A Trip in Hunt and Rest of His Search.

And he gnaweth a file. Well, it is right hard vittels, I know, but sometimes it helps a man to explode, and thrash around under great disappointments. It sets the pent up bile to working, and when he gets rid of it he feels better. Mr. Blaine feels better now, I reckon. May be that Augusta speech saved his life, for I heard folks say that he was a very sensitive man and if he got beaten he would kill himself. But the danger is all over now and the crisis is past. Let us have pity on him. Let us pass resolutions of sympathy, for a great man has fallen this day in Israel. Well, he fell several years ago, but he didn't fall so far nor so suddenly, and the whole nation did not see him. It was an awful shock this time, and he had to say something. He had to abuse somebody. He had Beecher and Burchard and Nast and the Harpers and the Times, but he was afraid of them, and so he takes the solid south for his victim—the old martyr that has stood the brunt of a thousand slanders and still lives. Thank the good Lord, she still lives! They have thrown boomerangs at her for twenty years, but the boomerang is a dangerous weapon in careless hands. They tell me that a man can throw it clean round a house and it will come back and hit him if he don't dodge. Better quit throwing boomerangs. They threw one at us when they gave the negro the vote and it has just got back and hit them a terrible blow. It hit Mr. Blaine in the pit of the stomach and hurt an he gnaweth a file. And it hit Murat Halstead, and he gnaweth a file. And that Milwaukee feller gnaweth a file. I'm afraid that files will be scarce up there, and as they seem to like such vittels, I think I will send them a few old ones from my blacksmith shop—I reckon they are good eating to folks who like them.

But I am sorry for Mr. Blaine—I really am—and I hope our folks will give him the charity of their silence. Say no more about Mulligan, or Hocking Valley, or Joy, or Fisher. Don't kick a man when he is down. Don't punch a poor coon just to see him bite the stick. They punched us after they whipped us and I never could understand it unless it was like the fellow who killed a dog for biting him, and after the dog was dead he kicked him and mangled him and cursed him until a man who stood by said, "Dont you see that brute is dead—what are you kicking him now for?" "Dog on him," said he, "I want to teach him that there is a little hell and punishment after death."

But now let us all have peace. Let us return good for evil. We have got friends up there, and for their sakes let us forgive and forget. I wish we had invited Mr. Blaine down to our jubilee and got him to make another speech. Maybe our sunny south and our hospitality would have affected him and set his liver straight. We could have given him some S. S. S. besides and sent him home a better and a happier man.

I wonder what office he would like under Mr. Cleveland—some little thing to taper off on—a consulate to South America, Brazil or Terra Del Fuego, or maybe the Cape of Good Hope. Good hopes are good things for a disappointed man. There would be a wide field for his philanthropy down there, for the people are black—sound black. I think it would harmonize Halstead and company to give them an office, and we will have lots of offices. I was afraid we wouldn't have enough people to fill them, but I reckon we will. Our boys seem to be right patriotic. There are fifteen volunteers already for the Cartersville postoffice, and I feel encouraged. They are all good men and willing. I hear that one man came a hundred miles to take it as soon as it was vacant. Such patriotism ought to be rewarded. I was thinking about a snug little sinecure myself, and went down to Atlanta to see about it and offer my services, but a man tackled me as soon as I lit off the cars and took me away off round a corner and said he was after an office, and wanted me to help him get it, and told me how that he had worked for the party for 20 odd years, and never had had nothing, and he was poor and needy; and when I asked him what office it was, he named the very one I was after. Well, I am easily overcome by a friend in distress, and so I promised to do all I could, and in ten minutes after I left him I met another friend who wanted it, and so I promised him, and before I left town I had promised six, and I felt relieved to think that I was regarded of so much influence and could do so much good in helping the needy. It is a good sign to see that so many are volunteering, for it will give Mr. Cleveland plenty of choice. It is going to be right hard on our members of congress. They have got to play a new role now. When the fifteen applications for the Cartersville postoffice are sent up to the postmaster-general he will do like that officer always does. He will refer the whole lot to Mr. Clements, and Mr. Clements will look over the names to the petitions, and after considering who is the best man for the office and for the people, and for Mr Clements too, he will recommend one, and thereby make one friend and fourteen enemies. So, there is going to be the dickens to play in the district and all over the state, and lots of disappointed patriots are going to get fighting mad. But I hope they will have sense enough to spell the word "acquiesce," and not go to gnawing a file. I'm sorry for our members of congress. A man told me in Atlanta that Governor Brown's mail was now about a bushel a day, and it took two clerks to read them and file them and make out a tally sheet, so that the governor could get an idea without reading them. Governor Colquitt got 47 letters in one mail, and 45 of them were applications for office. It is very encouraging to think that we have got so many who are fitten, for I know they are all fitten; their friends say they are.

Sometimes I think I would like to get a good fat office like Mr. Cleveland has always got his. That is, have it shoved on me. I was ruminating over his wonderful career. There is nothing like it since old Father Cincinnatus was called from the plow to govern the Roman empire. But they don't call them from the plow now. I have been looking up the road for seven years for a committee to come after me and take me from the plow, but they don't come, and so I have quit plowing. The shaving process seems to be unpopular, as a general thing, and now the feller who works the hardest and has the longest pole generally knocks down the persimmon.

So, wade in, boys, and fortify yourselves. Combine deonfederate, make promises. It is no sin to hold office. It is honorable, but if you can do anything else and make a living you had better do it, for fear you may be disappointed and have to gnaw a file.

BILL ARP.

He Now Always Says Brandy or Ale.

From the Boston Saturday Evening Gazette.

A newly arrived Englishman, the other day, expressed surprise at the difficulty he experienced in understanding the language of the country. "Why, you know," he said, "a very nice fellow, the other evening, asked me if I didn't feel like 'listening.' I didn't like to confess my ignorance, and so I said I did feel like it sometimes. Then he asked me what my weakness was. Of course, I at once came to the conclusion that 'listening' was a complaint, and I answered that I thought my weakness was principally in my stomach. He at once said he would fill me plumb full of the old stuff, and make me feel like a daisy. You can imagine my surprise when I found out he only wanted me to drink with him. Why couldn't he say it, you know, at once? Another awfully jolly fellow asked me the other morning if I would'nt toss a ball before breakfast and when I expressed my willingness to have a little exercise before eating, I was staggered by discovering that tossing a ball was drinking a gin cocktail. Now, whenever they ask me something I do not understand, I always reply brandy or Ross's ale, and I find I hit the mark every time."

[Copyright 1884. All right Reserved.]

The dock got to Tige Millinger quick as his critter could take him, and Bill Amos got Abe Madison's waggin, and they brung him to the house then Bill he went after Tobe. The dock never left old Squire Amos's house that night; he 'lowed he couldn't tell for sartin how it was a gwine to turn out with Tige, but he would advise Moses Gant to make his self skase. By the time they got Tige to the house old Miss Amos had done simmered down and quit a talking about the law. Poor Tobe sot by his brother Tige all night and never blinkt his eyes to sleep; he was mighty concerned; he thought it looked monstrous hard that Tige should die by the hands of sich a feller as Moses Gant. "But laws, laws," says he "po' boy, this is what he got by his smartness, he have talked big manish all his life about killin' of folks, and Mose must er heard sumpin he said about killin' of him, or he wouldn't er tried to git the fust pop at him."

Renny in the shed room didn't know nothin that was a gwine on, didn't know that them thin planks was all that was betwixt her and the man she had flung her-sef in the Coosy river to git away from, nor how nigh he had come to losin' of his life on her account. Her fever had riz higher and higher and her tongue flew like a flutter mill.

She thought she was still in the river and was a beggin' of Tobe to pull her out, and not let Tige kill her. Tobe he wondered in his heart if Tige had went so far as to threaten to kill her. Tige had his eyes shot and Tobe was in hopes he was asleep and didn't hear her, but Tige hearn it all; hearn her say she didn't love him and had flung herself in the Coosy to git away from him, but he didn't know how nigh the truth it was, he thought it was the fever that made her talk so; he didn't know how nigh she had come to death's door, nor who had snatched her out. The dock told Tobe all about it, and told him not to tell Tige, kase Tige must'n't have nothin' to pester his mind. Some folks dont see no use in keepin' of things a secret. Old Miss Amos and Cindy is like Bill they loves to be the fust to tell the news, so quick as Renny's fever cooled and she waked up they both talked at once't and told her how Mose had shot Tige. She layed thar and cried, and Tobe hearn her say "Poor Tige," and wondered if after all she did love Tige. But he had made sho' that she was in love with the dock, he wore store clothes and had a fine horse, and talked like a book, and then she seed him all the time, and thar was whar he had the advantage of tother fellers. Tobe hadn't never got his mouth to go off to tell Renny that he loved her. He knowed that Moses Gant loved her, and Tige loved her, and Pat Loonis loved her, and in cose the dock stayin' thar all the time was found to love her too. It was mighty natral for Tobe to think bekase he loved her that ever body else did too, and most all the boys in the settlement did love her; but the biggest half of the gals was jealous and would n't er keered if she hader went to the bottom of the Coosy and never riz agin.

As Tobe sot thar by Tige's bed that night his heart was monstrous full, peared like ever thing had worked agin him that day. His old rifle, that he loved next to Renny and his dog, had done him a mean trick. Hit was a plenty, and a big plenty, to keep him from gwine to sleep, then here lay his onlyest brother, and as old Squire Amos had said, "in the very jaws of death as it wair," and under the same shelter was the onlyest gal he had ever loved, and she had done tuck the fever, that was a totin' off so many to ther graves.

As luck would have it Renny's folks wasn't no ways uneasy about her, for she had 'lowed to stay all night longer one of the gals over the river, and Secesh made sho' when they was a axin' for her at the rocks that she had done went, so they never looked for her home that night. The dock borrid a buggy from one of the neighbors next mornin' and 'lowed to git her home 'fore her folks found out any thing about it. But Bill Amos was too much in love with Secesh to miss a chance of gwine over to old man Rodock's, and was too anxious to tell it fust to let any body else git a head of him. Bill didn't know whether to be jealous of the dock or no, for he didn't know which one of the Rodock gals was the occasion of him a stayin' thar so long. He was a turrible friend to Mose Gant and wanted to help him git Renny, and he didn't low no body else should tell Renny's folks how the shootin' tuck place but him. But it mought er been better for Bill and Mose too if Bill had er got some body else to er told it, for as I said afore Bill he dont know how to break news easy and so after he told it they all thought it was monstrous cold blooded in Mose to shoot Tige down without givin' him a minutes warnin', and they told Bill so.

The dock got Renny home and her fever riz, and her tongue turned loose agin, and she told 'em how nigh she had come to marryin' of Tige Millinger, and after she had done said so much the dock he had to tell 'em how it all happened, for he knowed they'd hear it from some body and mought not git the straight of it. Bill had done told 'em any how. The old folks was so thankful to the dock for savin' of Renny's life they couldn't do nothin' but shake his hands and cry. The old man tuck a holt of his right hand and helt on to it a long time and busted out in a cry and never said a word; he couldn't speak. The old 'oman can most inginnerly git her tongue to go off, she grabbed up his tother hand, and thar they both stood a holdin' of his hands and a cryin', and she 'lowed, "'Intertain strangers witain yer gates, and you thar by intertain angels on-a-wars.' Them words has done come to pass dock, and you sir the angel; you have fetched us good luck, you 'lowed you did'n't want to fetch no bad luck to the 'horse-shoe-house' and we'uns did n't have the fore cast then to see the good luck that you would fetch us; you mus'n't think no ways curis er me for a cryin so when I had orter laugh, and you know in reason that I am ten thousand times obleege to you, and dock I say it, and I mean it, ef ever I've got anything in this world that you want, all you've got to do is to ax me fur it and you shall have it. I dont keer what it mought be."

Then long as the old 'oman had said so much, the old man was afeard the dock mought think curis if he didn't say sump'n too, so quick as he coul swaller the ball in his throat, and and on-choke his-sef, he 'lowed "Dock, dock, I haint got the gift of gab like my ole 'oman, but I ken tell you this much dock, all of 'em ken say what they please agin you, but henceforth-and-forever-mind you for-iver Rodock, I, Thomas A. Rodock is your frien', and I ken tell 'em all another thing that you, Dock Hunter, Dr. Griffin Hunter haint to be sneezed at, no sir ree you haint to be sneezed at," and while they was both a clingin' to the docks hands he looked up and seed Miss Nora Fulton.

It was a bright sunshiny mornin' the latter eend of September and Miss Nora Fulton had rid over to Owl Hollow to take the Rodock gals some books to read. It was like old Miss Rodock said, ther want no tellin' how much she hadn't larnt them gals, sense she had been a-teachin' in the settlement, and they thought the sun riz and sot in Miss Nora, for she was monstrous good to 'em, she had giv 'em things to read, and she had told 'em about places whar she had been and what all she had seed and they 'lowed they could listen to her talk forever and never git tir'ed.

Miss Nora thought Secesh was the smartest gal for her chances that she had ever seed, and she tuck pertickler pains to larn her all she could, and Secesh was thankful to her, and had loved her next to her own folks, tel the dock got acquainted with her. She couldn't find nothin' in her heart agin Miss Nora, but it kurt her to think that Miss Nora's chances to git the dock was so much better than her'n, but she kep it all to herself. She sung to her'n ever at her spinin' wheel, and when she went to milk the cow; and folks thought ther wasn't nothin' on her mind. But the dock's good face was allers before her, she seed him in her dreams, and she seed him all day while she was busy with her work for she wasn't a gal to idle away her time. She tried to study about sump'n else, and tried to that sump'n about him to hate so as to keep from lovin' of him, but the more she tried the wusser she got, and it made her mad at herself, kase she had n't never said nairy word of love to her, and she knowed in reason he never would.

When Miss Nora rid up to the bars she had her critter's bridle all stuck full of pretty black gum, sassyfac and sweet gum leaves, red, yaller, and green, and brown. "Light and come in," says the old man Rodock, lettin' loose the dock's hand. "Yes come in," says the old 'oman, "for Renny's monstrous sick, and I know in reason the sight of you will do her a power of good." The dock went out and hope her off'n her ridin' nag, and as they stood thar a minute and talked Secesh was a lookin' at 'em from the kitchen door and gin a groan and 'lowed to herself, "Ah law, I wish he never had er seed her, or I never had er seed him one er tother." Miss Nora lit and come in, and the dock got on his critter and rid off, and as he come in sight of granny Sharp's he hearn the high tempered quarrelin old soul a wearin' of a hickory out on poor little Peggy Marandy.

SIR THOMAS, THE BOSS CAT.

A London Cat the Owner of Which is Said to Estimate as worth $500,000.

London Letter to the Boston Herald.

"Come along" said Miss Fite, a noted dealer in cats, at the cat show the other day, "come along and look at a few I raised myself. I have taken many prizes for cats, for this is the sixteenth annual cat show at the Crystal Palace, and I've had cats in every one of them. Before the 8th of October all entries have to be made, and you pay three shillings and sixpence for each separate cat entered, and for each small group of kittens, which if too young to be taken away from the mother, may be sent with her. Each competitor must be packed in a separate basket. If a person don't want to sell cats, ye don't want to say so, they can put on a fancy price, though if sold, 10 per cent is charged on all sales. The workingmen have really the finest cats on show."

All this having been duly catalogued to me, we pushed through the crowds to look at the cats of all ages, styles and colors. Little girls had been brought thither by their nurses. It was as good as a show to hear them exclaim delightedly at the various "kitties." I never saw a youngster who did not love a cat, and "pretty pussie" was charmed ad lib. by the little folks. There were short-haired cats, long-haired cats, black cats, white cats, tabby cats, Persian, Angora, tortoise-shell cats, and only one Maltese cat. There were cross cats, amiable cats, cantankerous cats and sleepy cats, and, as if by common consent, and realizing that they were all on their good behavior, there was scarcely a "meow" in the crowd, save from the throat of some tiny kitten who was being bamboozled out of its proper share of dinner by its pestiferous little brother or sister kit.

Three little kittens, who possibly had "lost their mittens," for "they all began to cry," were named Fluffy, Puffy and Tuffy. These were half Persian, and were ten shillings ($2.50) apiece. In the next cage sat a dignified kitten as black as coal, named Tinker, only eight weeks old priced at $5. Lottie and Tottie, two little "swells," one black, one yellow, gamboled about their proud mother, who winked knowingly at the scrutiny of the moving crowds. "Now," said my funny little spinster guide, "here is one of my family." And she halted before a pure Persian, which bore a price ticket of £1,000 and had taken half a dozen prizes.

Five, ten, twenty and one hundred pounds were frequent prices tacked on their cages; but when we came to Cossime, late Tiger, lying on an embroidered satin cushion trimmed in English point lace and marked £100,000 or $5,000 I simply took a back seat, metaphorically. Well, Cossidine was a pretty tabby cat, but I don't think I'll ever own him, unless he's raffled for at a shilling a try. One gentleman, evidently of a sporting turn of mind, who values his blue Persian at £1,000, gave his address on a printed card, as follows: "Dan Viola, by Miss Ackland's Pizza and Sultan; sire Romeo, by Mrs. Powell's Lady Flora and Snap, all winners of numerous prizes." The owner of this menagerie, named Midget, one and a half years old, was a physician of south Norwood, who evidently is not anxious to sell his cat.

STRANGE USES TO WHICH THE CANDLE FISH IS PUT.

A Tribe of Indians Who Eat and Burn the Candle Fish—How They Catch and Dry Them—The Oil Stored in the Stalk of a Sea Weed—The Fish for Medicine, Etc., Etc.

"Turn out the gas," said a collector of curiosities, who had just returned from an extended trip, to a Times writer, "and I'll show you something new in the way of illumination."

The speaker had unrolled from a thick bundle of Chinese paper several objects that had an ancient and fishlike smell and thrusting one of them into a brass candlestick after the writer turned off the gas, he lighted a match and touched it to the end of the object. A moment later a clear, yellow light illumined the room.

"Yes, it's a fish," said the collector in reply to a question. "Just take this Times and read a line or so and be one of the few who have read by the light of a dead herring."

The writer did so and found that he could read with the greatest ease, the light being equal to that of an ordinary candle.

THE CANDLE FISH.

"Yes, it is curious," continued the naturalist, "but nothing when you get used to it. I've got so that if I should see a man use himself as a candle I shouldn't be much surprised. But this idea of using fish is a queer one. I first observed it when I was on the north shore of British Columbia. I made a trip all through the country for the purpose of obtaining a skeleton of the rare rhytina that was killed off about a hundred years ago, and if I didn't find that I ran into some other curious things well worth knowing. I had lived in an Indian village for nearly a week before I heard anything about the candle fish, and one beautiful moonlight night was standing on the beach when I saw something that appeared exactly like the reflection of the moon, only it was in the wrong direction. I called the attention of a native, who was not far off, to it, and immediately it seemed to throw him into the greatest excitement. He sang out, 'Eulachon!' as loud as he could, and in a few moments at least fifty men were on the beach launching their canoes. There was so much confusion that I could not learn what was the matter, but I tumbled into one of the canoes and off we went.

There were two men in all the boats but ours. I making a third. One sat in the stern and paddled, while the other stood in the bow with a curious instrument in his hand that until now I had not observed. It looked like an enormous rake or comb, made of a piece of pine at least eight feet long, with a hole for a grip at the top, the lower part thinning off to an edge, into which was driven sharp iron or bone teeth from three to four inches apart, so that the weapon resembled a great comb held by the back. Its use was soon evident and I saw that it was an arrangement for fishing. The ripple I had seen on the water was an enormous school of fishes, called by the natives eulachon, and to surround them now seemed to be the chief object.

A GRAND FISH HUNT.

"The canoes were swiftly paddled out until they were all upon the outside, and then they rushed at them full speed, each man wielding his comb-like scoop and dashing it into the sparkling mass that gleamed like silver, and at every stroke so thick were the fishes that the teeth of the comb came up covered with their impaled forms. These were quickly jerked into the boat and another dash made, and so on until the school was finally driven in shore, where the excited natives leaped into the water, knee deep in the throng, and fairly scooped them into their canoes, where their vivid phosphorescence made them look like molten gold. The school seemed so terrified and demoralized that they hugged the shore, and if the men had had nets instead of those outlandish combs, they could have captured millions where they only took thousands. The boats were rapidly filled, however, and in an hour the excitement was over and the canoes were hauled by the exhausted fishermen upon the beach. In the morning they were emptied on the shore and the catch handed over to the squaws, who took the entire matter of curing in hand. They seated themselves about their respective piles and, taking sticks pointed at the end, rapidly strung the fish up on them by piercing them through the eyes. Cross pieces were then placed upon them to prevent their falling off, after which they were taken by children and placed in the smoke at the top of their sheds.

FOOD AND FUEL.

"No, there was no cleaning or scaling at all; they were exactly as they came out of the water. When thoroughly dried they have a flavor of wood smoke, and then are taken and packed in large frails, made of cedar bark and rushes of various kinds. Now they are stowed away on a scaffolding, made of high poles, and are not touched until cold weather, as they form a winter supply, or cache. The natives call them, in our tongue, the candle fish, and they not only eat them, but use them to burn, as I have shown you. Previous to this catch I had had no light, but after I luxuriated in a candle every night and wrote my reports and took my notes all by the light of the eulachon. The little fish seems fairly bubbling over with oil, so much so that I tried to fry one, and, turning away for a few moments, I returned to find the back and other bones jumping around in a lot of fat; the flesh had melted and actually turned into oil. You can squeeze it out of them, and you have no idea of its value to those people. The oil is a medicine; as fuel it keeps them warm, gives them light and is a healthy food in its dried state. When eaten, they are swallowed bones and all, or are partly mellowed. A candle fish is given to a child to suck on, just as we would give it a stick of candy here. When they burn them they take a pointed stick, insert it in the ground and make a slit in the other end, into which a candle fish is thrust and lighted. There is no trimming or smoking, and when the light is no longer needed it is blown out and the remainder of the candle eaten; so there is no loss, you see, in these dips. Sometimes the fish are extremely abundant, and the surplus are all made into oil that is used for a variety of purposes by the natives.

OIL STORED IN A STALK.

"What do they stow it in? Well, nature again comes to the rescue and they go to the ocean for their bottles as well as their oil. One of the great sea weeds that grow off the coast has a hollow stalk that is about as large as a champagne bottle. These are cut into lengths holding three pints or more and filled with oil when fresh and make perfect bottles.

"The candle fish is allied to the smelt and is known scientifically as the mallotus pacificus. In former days it was found in the vicinity of British Columbia in vast quantities. The mouth of the Columbia river is said to have been a famous place for them, but the factories and the steamers have gradually driven them off, so that now there are only a few places, comparatively speaking, where great numbers can be found.

"There is only one thing," continued the speaker, "in the way of fish that I have ever seen to beat this, and that was in Africa, where they used a live fish as a doctor. Yes, instead of sending for a doctor they would send after this fish, and I don't know but what there was about as much sense in it as there is in a good many of our nostrums. I first noticed this peculiar cure on the old Malabar river, where I went several years ago on a collecting tour. I was awakened one night by dreadful groans and cries, and getting up to see what was the trouble I learned that a child in the adjoining hut had been taken sick. Upon going in to see if I could do anything I found the woman filling a great basin with water. Into this was placed a catfish, the one we know as malapterus electricus, that they took from a gourd that served as an aquarium and into the water they then forced the child, making it pick up the fish. That it received a shock at first was evident, as it dropped it and yelled all the louder; but the women made it again take hold of the fish, and whether it did any good or not I am unable to say, but the child soon stopped crying and seemed better. Possibly the fish benumbed it." "Then it was electric?" said the writer. "Certainly," was the reply. "The fish was the common electric catfish, common in African rivers. When first taken they give quite a powerful shock, something like that received from these street machines, and when examined they show quite a complicated battery.

MEDICINE IN A FISH.

"The next morning," continued the traveler, "I made some inquiries and I found that the catfish was a sort of African soothing syrup and given to babies quite regularly or anyone else who happened to need a dose. As soon as a native child began to complain a tub or vessel of water was brought out and several of the fish caught if they were not on hand and the child made to get into it and play with the fish. Not only do they do this to cure the sick, but in some tribes the mother, when washing their infants in the morning, invariably make them take a shock by touching the fish. This, they said, made the baby grow to a strong man. The children, however, objected to it, and the squalling and screaming when the little fishes were brought out was something appalling. The children are also made to drink the water in which the fish have been, and, finally, the fish itself is eaten, so that the remedy is a veritable cure-all, and can be taken externally or internally as the case may be.

"It is curious to note that the old Greeks and Romans used the torpedo in the same way, and even the water that surrounded it was supposed to contain the means of miraculous cure. This was the primitive electric cure that has developed into the artificial battery of to-day."

A PRINCE'S PLEASURES.

The Way in Which "Tummy" Wales Amuses Himself.

London Cor. San Francisco Argonaut.

I dare say you may remember a story which got out last year about a practical joke that was played at Cowes during the yachting week on a lady named Mrs. Cust, whose house at that time every year is a favorite resort of the prince of Wales and his followers. It seems that Mrs. Cust was told that the French cabinet minister, M. Waddington, was in Cowes, and the prince requested that he be invited to dinner by her to meet his royal highness. The invitation was, of course, given, and the dinner took place. After dinner the gentlemen came into the drawing-room, and there, in Mrs. Cust's presence, an altercation soon arose between M. Waddington and Lord Charles Beresford. The rudest, most insulting epithets were applied to the French people in general, and M. Waddington in particular, the war of words ending in M. Waddington being hustled out of the room into the garden, and thrown over the wall into the road. Shortly after he presented himself again, covered with dust, when, at the earnest solicitation of Mrs. Cust, who was almost in a faint, a peace was patched up. Another row soon began, ending as before. The prince throughout the proceedings was convulsed with laughter. Somehow the affair reached the ears of the French ambassador in London, and he wrote to Lord Granville about it. Then the truth had to come out. It wasn't M. Waddington at all, but "Bull Run" Russell, who had dressed up to represent him; the whole thing being concocted by Lord Charles Beresford for the amusement of the prince of Wales.

Such was last year's fun, and here is what happened this year. After dinner, when, as before, all the guests were assembled in the drawing-room, an old woman, dressed in a French costume, with very short skirts, suddenly made her appearance, and one of the company being requested to play some lively opera bouffe airs on the piano-forte, she proceeded to dance the can-can. She danced with much spirit and vivacity, not altogether, perhaps, as a modest old woman should, and, as usual, the prince of Wales was in shouts of laughter. At last she sat down amid a round of applause, and then a quadrille was formed, the old woman requesting the prince to be her partner. Although not exactly the proper thing, he couldn't refuse. After the quadrille she as suddenly disappeared, and people were wondering who she was, when the door was thrown open and in walked Sir Harry Keppel. It needed but a glance to see that he it was who had been masquerading as the ancient French damsel, and great was the merriment thereat. On the whole, when one reflects, it was not a very elevating sight.

Sir Harry Keppel is a man of 75, and, notwithstanding his age, is one of the prince's most constant companions and followers. There are people who accuse him of being a great toady, and if one might judge by the exploit just mentioned the charge is not very untrue. Fancy a man of his age and an admiral of the fleet, consenting to such an exhibition of want of dignity on his part, merely for the sake of amusing the prince of Wales!

Mrs. Cust, the lady at whose house this sort of tomfoolery occurs every year for the delectation of "Tummy," is a woman of over sixty. She is a Scotchwoman, and has always been very fast, notwithstanding the fact that she was a Miss Macdonald, daughter of the chief of Clanranald, and very plain in looks. She is an aunt of the present earl of Brownlow.

The Return of the Bustle.

New York Letter in Philadelphia News.

The more approved girls of New York are going rapidly toward distortion and away from those fundamental principles of art which the recent mania for culture ought to have instilled in their minds. The bustle is bound to develop. It is already present, palpably, and every day enlarges it. No longer do the female promenaders remind us of draped goddesses, quite superior to their envelopes, and in outlines corresponding to human beings. They are humped rearward distressingly by means of bustles, and already a sympathetic dimension of skirts implies a return to the hoops of twenty years ago. It is all a great pity. There is no help for it, however, and we can only possess our souls in patient waiting for a cycle of fashion to once more bring around a reign of symmetry. One blithesome young devotee of frivolity assures me that a condemnation of ample drapery is mistaken, because narrow skirts restricted the stride of woman so much that her natural grace was impaired; but surely the utmost freedom of step does not require amplitude of bustle, unless space is desired for obscuring the kicks of a ballet premier.

"My dressmaker is also employed by Cavalazzi, the chief dancer of the Academy of Music opera company," said this informant, "and she is an elaborate costumer in private life, being the wife of Manager Mapleson's son Charles. One day I saw a skirt being made with a facing of the strongest canvas around the hem. What do you suppose was the reason for that unusual addition to the dress? Well, that was a time when we were restricted to steps of about twenty inches each. Cavalazzi was accustomed of course in a professional way, to fling her feet sawmily and in walking she instinctively tended to the same thing. In crossing a gutter, for instance, she would find herself turning forth one foot and away would go the skirt. She was really in danger of extending a limb right through the fabric. This was to be a kick-proof dress."

Very Near to Politics.

From the Detroit Times, ind.

Mr. Coukling is reported as saying that no inducement can draw him nearer to politics than his profession calls him. The official canvass of the votes in New York was a very important feature of the politics of the present year and Conkling's profession enabled him to get nearer to that than his fellow-republicans liked to see him go.

Published Daily and Weekly.

ATLANTA GEORGIA.

THE DAILY CONSTITUTION is published every day in the week, and is delivered by carriers in the city, or mailed postage free at $1 per month, $2.50 for three months, or $10 a year.

THE CONSTITUTION is for sale on all trains leading out of Atlanta, and at news stands in the principal southern cities.

ADVERTISING RATES depend on location in the paper, and will be furnished on application.

CORRESPONDENCE containing important news solicited from all parts of the country.

THE CONSTITUTION,
Atlanta, Georgia.

ATLANTA, NOVEMBER 30, 1884.

INDICATIONS for the south Atlantic states: fair weather, variable winds, slight rise in temperature in southwest portion, nearly stationary in the northeast portion.

PRESIDENT-ELECT CLEVELAND will attend the actors' fund benefit in New York on Thursday night. In giving this encouragement to so commendable a cause, he will receive the willing approval of all.

THE extent of the plague in eastern Kentucky grows alarming. If the story told in our telegraphic columns gives any idea of the condition of affairs, the poor people of the afflicted section certainly deserve the aid of the country. That thousands of people, in a comparatively small section of country, have died of starvation within a few weeks appears to be a horrible reality and suggests immediate attention lest the fatal plague may not confine itself to those few counties which it has visited in its worst form.

It is to be hoped that the depression existing for the past few months, of the manufacturing interests of the country, particularly those in the eastern and middle states, is about at an end. After the wear and consequent turmoil of a heated presidential campaign, business will resume its normal condition and return again to its usual channels of prosperity. Politics, however, is not so much the cause of so unusual a number of manufacturing embarrassments as is the fact that for the past month annual and semi-annual dividends have been generally declared. This slight depression in manufacturing interests generally occurs in the fall and spring of each year.

THE registration books of the city closed last night, and the list of those who will choose for Atlanta its next mayor and council is now complete. It, is very important that a due amount of caution should be exercised by every voter in the choice of those for whom he will cast his ballot to assume charge of the affairs of the city. In it is involved, not only the safety of our business interests, but the maintenance of the city's prestige for that energy and industry which has been secured by a wise administration of municipal affairs. To guarantee this it is necessary that our best citizens be put in those positions which control, for good or evil, the interests of the city. So think well, and on Wednesday next cast your ballot for the man whom you have reason to believe will make a safe mayor and, at the same time, back him with a council in whom you are willing to trust so important a charge.

TO FAIR-MINDED JOURNALISTS.

We believe THE CONSTITUTION has the right to bespeak the attention for a few moments of the fair-minded journalists of the country. We print a reputable paper, and try to keep the rules of honorable journalism. We have some reputation for earnestness and sincerity and honest purposes. This will have not been worth the winning if it fails now to secure us a hearing from the journalists who value country above party, and truth above slander.

Since the election of Governor Cleveland, a few northern papers have been filled with outrageous stories concerning the south. As a rule, these stories appear anonymously, and therefore irresponsibly. They are oftener inventions than exaggerations. They are printed, however, and reprinted, and one is made to complement another. In spite of their absurdity, they command more or less credence from people still excited over the late campaign, and sore over its result.

Had these stories been printed before the election, we should have accepted them as necessary evils of a campaign. But appearing after the election is over, they exhibit a wanton and wretched malice, a mean and impotent rage, from which we feel we can reasonably appeal to the public sense of justice. We are not moved by any fear of their political result. If in the four years that must intervene before another election, the south has not demonstrated that she can safely be admitted to some participation in the administration of our common government, she will deserve to be shut out forever. The injury these anonymous slanderers may work us goes very much deeper than political hap or mishap can reach. We have millions of fertile acres, lying idle for the lack of men to work them. We have forests untouched, mines undeveloped, and water powers running wanton, for the lack of capital. We have a climate that would be an every-day blessing for those who now brave the terrible winters of the northwest, and legitimate opportunity for investment that would give a competence to those who are now eking an income on the low interest and narrow margins allowed for money in the east. The tide of immigration and of investment is turned away from the southern states by these outrageous lies, to the detriment of all concerned.

It is manifestly impossible to answer all the slanders that malignity can invent and anonymity cover. It is even impossible to follow the course of one slander through all avenues into which it travels by ignorance or malice. But we will take three cases and that may be taken as samples of the whole dirty brood. We take them seriatim:

1. The Dublin Riot.—A dispatch was sent to several papers announcing that there had been a deadly riot at Dublin, Ga., between the races, in which several were killed, and that Dublin was a place of 3,000 people. Investigation, from all quarters, demonstrates that there was not only no riot in Dublin (a place of 250 inhabitants) but no disturbance whatever. The people there were as much astonished at the inquiries as the people of Springfield, Mass., would be at inquiries as to how many witches were burned in that city yesterday. There was literally no foundation for the story. No local suggestion on which it could have been built. And yet it was started on its infamous round. It is still travelling. It is still being published. And there are thousands of people who believe that negroes were slaughtered in Dublin by the score on the day after the election.

2. The Rebel Flag.—After Atlanta's first jubilee, inquiries began to pour into the city asking if rebel flags were floated from the state capitol. The inquiries were met with solemn and official denial from the governor, the mayor, and from every citizen who was approached on the subject. The United States flag was flying from the capitol and from hundreds of other points in Atlanta. Three thousand United States flags were sold by one dealer here in a few hours. Not a single confederate flag was seen in Atlanta and none has been seen since the election. In spite of this the story of the rebel flag still travels, and the last copy of the Iowa State Register, received here, has a picture of our capitol drawn with a confederate flag flying therefrom.

3. The Wilkesbarre Letters.—A letter was written from Atlanta to Wilkesbarre and printed there, in which this sentence occurred: "My room-mate has just been brought in nearly dead. He cut off a black man's ears and they got even with him. He will probably die. He kept the ears as a relic." Though published anonymously, it was discovered that the writer was a Mr Richard Smith, of Wilkesbarre, who had lived here for months, and who is a violent republican. His room-mate, Mr. Hays, is also a Pennsylvanian, and had only been in Atlanta a few months. Of course there is not the slightest shadow of truth in the story concerning him—no more than there would be in the rumor that Mr. Blaine had cut off Mr. Conkling's curl. And yet this black man's ears are still being cut off in the northern newspapers, and this room-mate, though perfectly well and at work, is still dying. Mr. Smith denies that the letter was printed as he wrote it. Mr. Hays laughs at the idea of having slit a negro's ears.

4. The Elberton Riot.—A letter was printed to the effect that on election day, negroes were shot down, cut, and stoned in Elberton, and that the house of a republican was attacked. This story was promptly denied. The officials of the town and county over their official seals in the most particular manner, deny that there was any basis for the letter. And yet it travels on and continues to do its dirty work.

We might fill columns with similar canards. The Pandora's box of hate seems to have been opened, and the air is full of evil reports. They are false. They are wholly and meanly and malignantly false. Whenever they are run down they are disproved. Whenever one of the writers is uncovered and asked for proof and particulars, he is obliged to confess that he has written falsely.

We have nothing to hope from the few editors who have committed themselves to this scoundrelly crusade against the honor and credit of a people who fought bravely, endured wrongs with admirable restraint, gathered up the embers of their burned homes, and with unfailing courage set about rehabilitating them. To them we have no appeal to make. But we do desire to lay the above facts and suggestions before the fair-minded journalists of the north. We invite them to send their most experienced correspondents into this section to search out the truth. We ask them to investigate for themselves and to print the truth as they find it. We beg them to shut out the anonymous slanderer from their columns. If they will do this, the south will accept the verdict. The north will discover at once that (as it must discover sooner or later) the south has been outrageously and infamously slandered. If they will not do this, we must be content to wait for the slower process of getting the people of the two sections acquainted by contact with each other. If the latter is the slower process, it is perhaps the surer. In any event the southern people will continue with moderation and frankness. If they can not still the voice of slander, they will be sure that they deserve none of its accusation. And they will rest content in the knowledge that the truth will prevail at last, and vindication must come to a people who have endured in silence and in peace, wrongs that would have drove almost any other people on this earth to desperation and to fury.

NOW FOR BUSINESS.

We have enjoyed a remarkable jubilee season throughout the entire south. The enthusiasm of the people over the re-establishment of honest government has been manifested in a thousand ways. All this was natural and evidently proper.

The next thing in order is business. For nearly a quarter of a century we have not had a fair showing. Our natural resources excited admiration, but immigrants have been slow to bring capital and enterprise among us. We lived under a government administered by a sectional party whose interest it was to misrepresent us to all the world. Strangers hesitated to cast their lot in a section which was under the ban of the party in power. They feared civil feuds, disorder and strife. But these fears can now have no possible foundation. Under a government controlled by the principles of Jackson and Jefferson, the south feels that she is as much a part of the union to-day as she was in the better days of the republic. Satisfaction will beget satisfaction. Confidence will inspire confidence in others. The evident loyalty and peacefulness of a prosperous south will bind other sections more closely to us.

Now is the most favorable time to let the outside world know that we are ready for business, and the best way of doing it is to go to work with a will. We are entering upon the brightest era in our history and it will tax all the energies of our brains and hands to keep pace with our destiny. Again we say, let us settle down to business.

AMERICAN ENGLISH.

The New York World, which has achieved a great success, a success which has been made conspicuous because it has demonstrated the fact that a genuine American newspaper commends itself to a great many people even in New York—the World quotes Mr. Julian Hawthorne as saying that "the English speak a dialect of the English language," and then goes on to say that the English speak a dozen different dialects.

This subject is a very interesting one, too interesting indeed, to be treated briefly, but it is well enough to remind Americans occasionally that no where on earth is the English language spoken with greater purity than in the United States. In England, the English language is a muddle, and, as the World points out, a different twist is given to the tongue by every English actor or lecturer who visits us. Some of them barely succeed in rendering themselves intelligible. In this view of the case it is interesting to ponder over the ultimate fate of the New York snobs and snobbesses who affect the London dialects.

To its other remarks the World adds the suggestive observation that the English spoken in the United States to-day is that which was spoken in all its purity two centuries ago. This fact must be apparent to all who have had occasion to study the different dialects of the common people in this country. The dialect of the negroes, for instance, is thickly strewn with picturesque English words that would be considered obsolete in London, and the language employed by the country people of Virginia and Georgia is really the dialect of Shakspeare. In the employment of words and pronunciation, the cultivated Boston man, in no wise, differs from the cultivated Georgian or Virginian.

As a matter of fact, we have a bigger heritage than we are aware of. Americans have inherited the English tongue in all its old-time purity, and they are to-day the preservers and conservators of the grandest tongue that man has ever employed.

A SENSIBLE colored editor warns his brethren that whisky is the great slaveholder of these days.

WHEN Atlanta ruffles up her feathers and shakes her wings, even the casual spectator is willing to admit that she is considerable of a village.

IF Editor Halstead, of Cincinnati, could have seen the red fire in Atlanta Friday night he would have remarked, by telegraph to his able journal, that Fulton county was engaged in seceding.

WE regret to observe that Deacon Smith is merely vice-president of the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette. Is this one of the results of a fierce and burning southern intolerance.

WHEN the average Bostonian is kept at home the soothing influences of baked beans and codfish balls combine to restrain his impetuous impulses, and he is content to pose before the world as a model of bashful regularity. When the Bostonian goes abroad, however, and spends sometime burning around with princes of the blood royal and other representatives of the effete monarchies of Europe, he naturally acquires their haughty airs and bulldozing ways. On his return to the modern Athens he either has softening of the brain or hardens into an aristocratic tough. This is what is the matter with young Fred Prince, the son of a respected ex-mayor of Boston. About eighteen months ago a tailor made a pair of breeches for Prince, but the bill was not sent in until the other day, after his return from Europe. As no attention was paid to the bill it was presented a second time with the urgent request to settle at once. This fried Prince's blood, and proceeding to the tailor's place of business he knocked the proprietor down, chased his brother around the house, slapped a clerk in the face and threatened to clean out the establishment. At last accounts Prince was under arrest and his wife was almost insane on account of her husband's conduct. The Bostonians now think that Prince's European tour demoralized him.

SOME of the Blainiacs are very mad because Editor McLean, of the Cincinnati Enquirer, sometimes hurls a squib in the direction of Hon. George H. Pendleton. They forget, however, that there is no law to prevent one kind-hearted democrat from abusing another kind-hearted democrat.

FIELD MARSHAL HALSTEAD has issued a proclamation in which, after announcing that the Commercial Gazette is the most distinguished and influential journal in this broad land, he declares that he proposes to establish the republican "case." The truth is, the democrats have already prepared the republican case. It is a burial case.

JUDGE TOURGEE says he would rather go to perdition than to write another book in bed. There is no reason why the judge should write another book in bed, and in fact he is not obliged to write one out of bed. He is a dead issue.

THERE will be a good deal of travel this winter. The usual number of northern and western tourists will go to Florida. An immense number of people from all sections will visit New Orleans to see the exposition. The inauguration of President Cleveland will draw a big crowd to Washington. It is expected that thousands of southerners will visit the national capitol on that occasion, and the hotels and boarding houses in Washington, Baltimore and Alexandria are already looking forward to their coming. It is a difficult matter to overcrowd a city like Washington, but it is thought that its accommodations will prove inadequate on the fourth of March. All this gadding about, this intermingling of the sections is a good thing. When the people get acquainted with each other, sectional prejudices disappear or become greatly toned down. When we know each other better this will be a solid country without any sections.

THERE is no doubt that Cleveland will be the democratic president of the whole country.

THE crown princess of Germany has at last succeeded in toning down Bismarck. For years there has been a coolness between the two, Bismarck scorning the little courtesies of society, and insisting that women were only factors in the problem of the continuance of the German nation. In his old age he has been forced to yield to women, the respect accorded them in civilized society since "LORD" COLERIDGE, who holds a very high social position in England, and who created quite a furore among the weak-minded snobs that represent New York society, appears to be one of the most consummate old wretches in existance. He has been paying his thirty-five year old daughter the wages of a scullery maid. The average American idea of the typical Britisher is not far from correct. The great lords of that country are a very scabby set indeed. But, after all, they are not as scabby as the northern snobs and flunkies that dance attendance on them when they are on this side the water.

IT pleases and touches us when Editor Halstead alludes to us as "Southrons," Editor Halstead is, himself, a gallant and full breasted Northron.

WHEN you see a veteran democratic editor fixing up a cabinet for Cleveland, you may know he is fishing to get his feelings hurt.

IT must be a hard matter for a poor man to live in London. Laborers get about $2 a week, salesmen, $8, bookkeepers, $5, skilled mechanics, $8. A seven-roomed house within three miles of the heart of the city costs $260 a year. Beef and mutton are 24 cents a pound. Clothing is not as cheap as in Philadelphia. Working people live on bread, cheese and beer, with meat once or twice a month. Even on these wretched salaries and with this miserable food they seem to be contented, attend church Sundays, and heartily thank God for the blessings they enjoy. In America it is possible for any skilled workman or clerk, by practicing economy, to save money enough to set him up in business at the age of forty, but such a thing is impossible in England. Nothing but some extraordinary stroke of good fortune ever takes an English workman out of the depths of poverty and makes him independent and comfortable.

IT is well to remember that where there is one man who wants office, there are a hundred thousand who don't want it.

AN effort is being made to establish Chinese colonies in Mexico. The success of this project will menace the labor system of the United States. If the swarming millions of China obtain a foothold on this continent they will spread and complicate our race troubles. The Mexicans will make a big blunder when they open the doors to the "heathen Chinese."

GEORGE ALFRED TOWNSEND says that there never was a street railroad in Washington until the republicans came into power. This is a tremendous argument in favor of Brother Blaine, but, really, we don't suppose that Cleveland has any intention of tearing up the valuable republican street railroads of the capital.

THE recent democratic victory has brought to light a cowboy that owns $75,000 worth of diamonds. This will not be the only fruit of the triumph of the right.

IN New York city during the past twelve months there were 74,647 arrests, but of this number 22,730 prisoners were discharged. The arrests were as follows: Drunkenness, 20,445; vagrancy, 6,275; disorderly conduct, 28,696; felonious assault and battery, 715; burglary, 791; forgery, 54; homicide, 88; robbery, 316. Of those arrested more than a third were natives, less than a fifth were Irish, and about a fourteenth were Germans. About twice as many men as women were arrested.

GEORGE HERMANN, of Middleboro, Mass., claims that he has perfected a perpetual motion machine. The machine has no cogs or gears. The motion is said to be perpetual, but there is no power with it. The inventor is now experimenting to obtain power.

THE wonderful growth of our far western domain defies description. A few years ago Washington territory was almost an unknown waste. It had no railroads before 1871. To-day it has nearly 600 miles of railroads. Several prosperous cities have been built, such as Tacoma, Seattle, and Walla Walla. Commerce is thriving, and the exports of Puget's sound amount to millions of dollars every year. The wheat fields produced last year 5,000,000 bushelf and the cost of production is not over 25 cents a bushel. It costs about 60 cents a bushel to transport it to Liverpool. The completion of the Columbia river locks making it navigable to the Pacific, and the completion of the Panama canal will cut down freight rates about one-half, and shorten the water route to England 10,000 miles.

THE late marquis of Londenderry was a valued and close friend of the earl of Beaconsfield, who was first "taken up" in high society by Lady Londonderry. The marquis was the first great coal owner to abolish "midd emen," which he did by starting a private fleet of co liers and opening in his own name a large coalyard in London. The enterprise proved to be enormously profitable, and was soon imitated by Lord Durham and others. His death is nowhere more sincerely regretted than among his tenants and miners, to whom he was ever kind and generous.

IT is becoming fashionable to use mahogany in almost every kind of fancy and ornamental woodwork, and in the manufacture of furniture and other articles of ordinary use it has taked to a great extent the place of black walnut. MULBERY trees three and four years old will yield to the acre 50,000 pounds of leaves, enough to feed 1,000,000 silkworms. Each female produces an average of 300 eggs. The lowest calculation one in ten, gives 100,000 females yielding 20,000,000 eggs, weighing 40,000 eggs to the ounce, 500 ounces. Eggs sell at from $1.50 to $2 an ounce. The lowest possible yield of eggs per acre is between $900 and $1,000. If, however, the cocoons are reeled off, the profits after deducting all accidents and expenses are safely calculated at $2,000. These figures apply to California and to the southern states.

THE Philadelphia council has before it a measure to check the sale of pernicious literature. The bill provides that persons shall not sell the articles mentioned on any public street without a permit from the mayor. They are forbidden to dispose of or exhibit any obscene book, magazine pamphlet, newspapers, story-paper or picture, or anything devoted principally to the publication of criminal news, detailed police reports or accounts of criminal deeds, or pictures and sensational stories of deeds of bloodshed, lust or crime. The fines collected are to go to the society to protect children from cruelty.

ONE does not need to be old to remember the school atlas in which to the westward of the twenty-four states was mapped a big blank expanse across which was printed the legand, "Great American Desert—unexplored regions." The United States government agricultural bureau, reporting on the corn crop of the year, which exceeds 1,800,000,000 bushels, and is the largest ever known, tells us that the best yields this year, as in 1883, were found in what has been designated "the great American desert." The "arid regions" in the vicinity of one hundredth meridian produced heavy crops of maize of high quality.

Jubilee Notes.

Too much praise cannot be awarded to the committee of the young men's democratic league, who conceived and carried out the late democratic jubilee. There was not a fault in the plan or in its execution. The young men worked earnestly and worked wisely and at the last moment found under the enlarged aspect of the occasion that they must very materially increase the expenses if they would meet the demands made upon them by the vast crowd in attendance and maintain the honor of Atlanta. They did this without hesitation, relying upon the people who profited by the affair to bear them out without loss. It is manifestly unjust to these young gentlemen to leave upon their shoulders the burden of this deficiency. They have given their time and their work, and should not be expected to contribute more money than they have already given. The merchants and business men who profitted by the vast crowd that thronged the city for two days, will we have no doubt promptly make up what is needed. An appeal will be made to them in behalf the committee of the young men's democratic league, and it will not go unheeded. A list of all who have subscribed and may hereafter subscribe and the amounts given, will be printed in THE CONSTITUTION.

Captain John Milledge deserves the thanks of every one, not only the league but the public, for the promptness and wonderful ability with which he made up and managed the procession. His work was unequaled in the history of processions

A Rumored Insurance War.

It is rumored that there is a difference between the Atlanta Home insurance company, and the local board of Underwriters that may develop into a highly interesting war. The difference is not clearly stated, but it is connected with the proposed withdrawal of the Home insurance company and the tariff of local rates. It is probable that the matter will develop in a day or two.

"One of the Finest."

Mr. Gus Williams appeared at DeGive's last night in "One of the Finest," and captured the heartiest applause at the hands of a large audience. The play is full of richest humor, which Mr. Williams presents in an inimitable way. Besides there is woven through the play a thread of romance and adventure that balances it off nicely and makes it please an audience greatly. "John Mishler," a German policeman of New York, "One of the Finest," is the leading character, and is played by Mr. Williams. Mr. George A. Bailey as "Hugh Hickman," the heavy villian, and Miss Isabel Waldron as "Ruth Hickman," his wife and accomplice, but who subsequently reforms, were excellent. Mr. De Loss King as Mort Divine, the masher, was good. Little Camille Campbell, as the newsboy, while on the stage only a moment, gave a vivid representation of the street arabs. The other characters were decidedly excellent, and not one member of the company failed to gain the hearty good will of the audience. The company is unusually well balanced, while Mr. Williams, by his own humor, kept the audience in a perfect roar. He is an accomplished comedian and gives an evening of clean but none the less enjoyable fun. The matinee was well attended, and that audience, like the one last night, went away highly pleased.

The Fire This Morning.

Mr. Randall's companions came in for a full share of the honors of the occasion.

"Yes," rejoined the redoubtable ex-confederate colonel, "that's easy enough said. But the conditions are somewhat reversed here. During a fight we had more rocks than men to use, and here we have more

SOUTHERN OUTRAGES.

What the Correspondent of the New York Times Wrote from Atlanta.

MR. E. G. DUNNELL who came to the south for the purpose of investigating the charges of intimidation and fraud made by Mr. Blaine against the people of the south, telegraphed the following to the Times from Atlanta:

ATLANTA, November 26.—A search of a day in Atlanta is corroborative in its results of the statements obtained in Augusta tending to refute Blaine's assertion about the employment of violence, murder, and fraud on the part of Georgia democrats to deprive the negroes of their suffrages in the recent election. Mr. Emory Speer, who was appointed by President Arthur as district attorney of the northern district of Georgia, was a democrat in congress who voted with the republicans on some propositions, particularly those guarding the protected manufacturing interests of the country. Calling upon him in his office in the United States building I obtained from him a frank statement, the substance of which I repeat. He said: "I have heard of no acts of murder or violence in the late election, nor have I heard of any attempt to interfere with the right of the negroes to vote. I know the people of this state and I do not believe they desire to wrong the colored man in any way. If there had been any acts of violence I should have heard of them as the prosecuting officer of the government. None have been brought to my attention either officially or unofficially. As a protectionist, I feared the democratic platform and candidates, but I do not believe that the election of Cleveland and the success of the democratic party is a menace to the rights of the negroes. On the contrary, you may rest assured that the assurances of Senators Colquitt and Brown to the meeting of the colored men held last night are sincere, and they fairly represent the desire and purpose of the great body of our citizens."

Mr. Speer tried the Georgia kuklux cases, which resulted in the conviction, by a jury composed mainly of white men, of several persecutors of negroes, and he believes that these convictions had a wholesome effect in restraining any disposition which might have been felt among the ruder whites to interfere with the colored citizens.

Mr. W. A. Pledger, a colored man, and the chairman of the republican state committee, is surveyor of customs at Atlanta. He could give no explicit instance of violence. He had heard of no murder, and did not believe that the negroes were in danger of a return to slavery or of any curtailment of their rights following democratic success. Mr. Pledger stated, however, that he believed the democrats would be able to divide the negro vote, the solidity of which he regarded as unfortunate for both whites and blacks. The voting population of Georgia is 140,000 whites and 93,000 blacks. It was pointed out to Mr Pledger that only 95,000 whites and 48,000 blacks had voted. He admitted that many of the negroes had not registered or paid their taxes, and said that their indifference was accounted for partly by the indifference of the democrats, whose vote fell off about 80,000.

On the street I stopped several colored men whom I met on their way home from work or while at work. I found that they had all neglected to register, some because they could not read, and did not hear that notices to register had been published in the paper, and others because they were not prepared to pay the arrears of taxes due, and without payment of which neither white man nor black could vote.

At the capitol, where the legislature was in session, I found Governor McDaniel, Attorney General Clifford Anderson, State Treasurer Hardeman, Senator Davidson, president pro tem of the senate, Speaker Little of the house of representatives, and many members of both houses. They were all exceedingly surprised at Mr. Blaine's speech, which they regarded as an unwarranted assault upon Georgia. Governor McDaniel spoke earnestly and at length of the friendly relations which had existed between the whites and negroes. He had not observed any evidence of fright. On the contrary, when he had been taken out of his office on the day after election by a crowd of democrats who were beside themselves with joy, and had been carried to the steps of the custom house, wrapped up in United States flags, he had made a speech which was heard by a large number of negroes, who appeared to be in no sort of fear that the jubilant democrats would harm them. Acting President Davidson, in the senate, introduced a resolution touching the reports about the disposition of the people of the state, which assured the black citizens that nothing would be done to interfere with or abridge their rights, and it was adopted and went to the house for its concurrence.

The Atlanta people are very indignant at the publication in northern papers of reports that represent the people here as very much alarmed about the alleged hostile attitude of the negroes and of false reports of incendiary fires and mobs, caused by the colored people. They have had a chance to visit their vengeance upon one unfortunate person who was responsible for some unfavorable reports. Richard Smith, of Wilkesbarre, Penn., temporarily residing in this city, wrote home to his brother after the election, telling him that a republican was not safe; that his roommate had been abused and killed because he was a republican; that a democratic acquaintance had cut off a negro's ears and carried them around in his pockets as trophies, and that he saw rebel flags flying at many places after Cleveland's election. The only part of the story that was at all true was that his roommate had been bruised in a row with some democrats. He was brought to account for his assertions after the letter had been printed in a Wilkesbarre paper. He quoted a colored letter-carrier named Parker as his authority for the statement as to the display of rebel flags. Parker, who says he never told Smith any such thing, hunted up this manufacturer of southern outrages, and slapped his face till he begged to be allowed to go in peace. That Smith is in no personal danger may be inferred from the fact that he was pointed out to me on the streets to-day. It is not considered likely that he will care to remain here after a public castigation by a negro for the offense of campaign lying.

Bottled Air for the Voice.

From the London Truth.

The room was strewn with copies of a pamphlet by the doctor. It is all about himself and his researches. It sets forth how he analyzed Italian air, to whose influence, he said, we owe the most beautiful voices in the world; how he found it saturated with peroxide of hydrogen and free ammonia; how it occurred to him to collect and condense these gases, and cause them to be inhaled with common air in certain proportions by people with weak voices; and how the result was practically to Italianize the voice. After reading this astonishing assertion, I eagerly turned the pages to discover who Dr. Carter Moffat was. I soon found that he was all right. For seven years he was first demonstrator at the Royal college of Edinburgh, besides being professor of chemistry at Glasgow. He went out to examine mines and mineral earths for the Italian government some years ago, and so valuable were his services that he was awarded a gold medal at Turin, and received a decoration of honor. It was at that time he carried out his experiments on the air of the Abruzzi regions with the startling effects which have ended in the invention of the ammoniaphone. He came home, threw up all his professional prospects, took a farm outside Glasgow, built his own laboratories and for nine years employed himself in various scientific researches and experiments chiefly connected with gases and their inhalation. The interior of the ammoniaphone is, I am told, occupied by wicks, saturated with peroxide of oxygen and free ammonia, and by air-chambers regulating the transmission of these gases through a little mouthpiece into the lungs. A couple of deep inhalations will suffice for a test. It was, I confess, with profound scepticism that I placed the little silver mouthpiece to my lips and drew a deep breath. A strong, choking, burning flavor of peppermint nearly took my breath away, but it was not unpleasant, and I persevered, alternating each pull with a good gasp of common air to follow. I had previously been asked to say a sentence or two in my natural voice, and after two or three pulls at the ammoniaphone, I was requested to repeat the same words, without using any extra exertion. I was really startled at the involuntary loudness of my own voice, and a friend who accompanied me, and who was a greater sceptic than myself, fairly broke out laughing at the result. Dr. Carter Moffat smiled benignly, and told me that he had now 30,000 persons using the ammoniaphone with the same results.

MACON MATTERS.

A DULL SATURDAY IN THE CENTRAL CITY.

An Abduction Case—Masterson Comes Down—The Board of Commissioners—Personal and General Mention of Incidents About the Hub of Central Georgia, Etc., Etc.

MACON, November 29.—[Special.]—A negro named Charles Harper abused his wife. She left him, taking the child away with her. He went for it and beat her unmercifully. She refused to give it up, and hid it at a friend's house. He went last night and abducted it. The mother watched him. She went with Officer Martin to get him. He was arrested. She secured the child. He was given fifty days in the chaingang to-day by the recorder.

Masterson Declines.

MACON, November 29—[Special.]—At a meeting of citizens recently for the purpose of nominating aldermen for the approaching municipal election, among the nominees from the first ward was Mr. C. Masterson. To-day he declined on account of ill health.

The friends of Mr. Charles Damour are pushing him for the position. He is a young man, identified with the city's interests, and will be a good selection.

The Road Commissioners.

MACON, November 29.—[special.]—The board of commissioners had a meeting to-day, and appointed a committee of nine, with Hon. Robert Nisbet chairman, to go to Atlanta to appear before the legislature in connection with the repealing of the changang act of 1877 now pending. The city council has selected Hon. Felix Corput, mayor, and Colonel Sam H. Jemison, city attorney, to oppose the repeal.

An Exciting Run.

MACON, November 29.—[Special.]—To-night as the Eufaula train come in at 6:21 the carshed was the scene of the wildest excitement. A negro was seen to suddenly dash through the shed and run towards the approaching engine. It was feared he would be crushed to death. He jumped over the cow catcher and rushed for the lower end of the shed. He was closely pursued by a white man who but ran him and cops turned him near the mail transfer clerk's office. The negro proved to be Hiram Robertson, of Marshallsville. His pursuer Deputy Sheriff Miles W. Crocket, of that place. The negro was wanted in Marshallsville on a bench warrant for carrying concealed weapons, and was reported as a dangerous character. He has been a fugitive from justice for two years. Mr. Crocker has been in the city all day with the warrant looking for him. To night, while in the shed, he saw the negro and called a police officer. When he did so the negro saw him and darted off. He was captured and tied. He was taken to Marshallville to-night.

A Gin House Burned.

MACON, November 29.—[Special.]—The ginhouse of Mr. Robert Gilbert, eleven miles from Macon, was destroyed by fire last night. Several bales of cotton was destroyed; loss about $1,500. Cause, negroes ginning, let lamp turn over on floor and caught the cotton.

Personal and General.

MACON, November 29.—[Special.]—Mr. R. J. Fitzgibbon, the efficient official stenographer of the Macon circuit, will report some important Cenual railroad cases in Eufaula, Ala., next week.

Misses Claudia and Lula Montford, two bright young ladies of Butler, spent a few days with friends in Talbotton this week.

A young German was before the recorder today, claiming to have walked from Kansas to Macon, and could not get work. He asked for lodging at the barracks last night, and was given a cell. He was given the day to leave the city in or get work.

Trees are being placed in Proudfit park, on Poplar street, opposite the Corbett house.

The mortuary report this week has been seven—five whites and two colored.

Allen Clenton and Joe Tripp, two well known colored politicians, figured before the recorder today for fighting and being disorderly.

The lecture room of the First Baptist church is undergoing the finishing touches. New stained glasses are being put in the windows and water closets have been placed.

A thief entered the residence of Mrs. W. E. McAndrew, No. 17 Bond street, and robbed it of a pet canary bird, to-day.

An attachment was issued to-day against Dora Walton, a member of the demi-monde, by Philip Reidlinder. Her baggage was attached.

The spelling match between the public libraries of Macon and Atlanta, is being worked up finely at this end of the line.

A party composed of Messrs. Felton, Solomon, Lockett, Baxter, Taylor, Beggs, Johnston and others, will leave on the 15th, for a deer hunt and camping frolic, about twenty miles from Brunswick, to be away ten days.

Colonel R. W. Wrenn, of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroad, spent the day in Macon.

Mr. E. J. Procter, of Terrell county, passed through the city to-night, enroute to Milledgeville, with a crazy negro. WYNTON.

They Gave Him the Money.

From an Exchange.

"You say you want $5,000?" asked the bank cashier.

"That's it."

"But you are a stranger."

"Yes, and broke, too."

"Can you give us an indorser?"

"No."

"Then we can't give you the money."

"Yes you can."

"But, sir, you have no security."

"That's all right. I intend to start a skating rink up town next week and——"

"Oh, that alters the case. Here you are. What did you say—$5,000 or $10,000?"

A Great Scheme.

From the Chicago News.

"No, sir, I gannod drust you for dot pants."

"Why not, Mr. Grindstein?"

"Pecause you never vill bay me."

"I know, but I've got a scheme by which yon can make some money."

"Vat ish dot?"

"You know Goldspeckel, your rival across the street?"

"Yes."

"Well, if I tell him you trusted me for a pair of pants, he'll trust me for a coat and vest. Don't you see? A coat and a vest are worth five times as much as a pair of pants. You'll lose only $4 while he is losing $20."

"Vell, on dose gonditions you gan have der bants."

An Observing Policeman.

From the Chicago News.

"Officer, what is the charge against this woman?" asked the police justice.

"That's no woman, your honor. That's a man dressed in woman's clothes."

"How do you know?"

"Why, I watched him on the street and he passed four women with new winter cloaks on and never once turned to look at them."

"Seventy-five and cost."

A Card.

ATLANTA, November 28.—Editors Constitution: We know whereof we speak, and wish to give through the columns of your paper good reasons why Dr. H. G. Hutchison, one of the candidates for alderman, should at the election to be held Wednesday, December 3d, be elected to a position on the aldermanic board.

1. He is a man of strict integrity, fine judgment, intelligent, conservative and discreet. During his residence for a number of years in the city of Atlanta, he has not only fully identified himself with every interest that would stimulate her progress and advance in every legitimate channel the cause of her people, but has won the confidence, respect and esteem of all classes of her citizens.

2. He is an investor of his hard-earned means in Atlanta property, and as a property holder and man of the people, is fully identified with every interest affected by questions of finance and taxation.

3. He has by honest toil and close attention to business attained that degree of success and prosperity that wins the confidence of men in all the branches of business, trade and labor, thus possessing and presenting qualifications so necessary in the proper management of affairs under municipal government.

4. He is free from complication, has steadily refused to make pledges to any person or of any character save one—"which is for well-regulated, properly managed and honestly administered government"—and if elected goes into office ungrammelled and free to act, as he will act, for the best interest of the city and a liber people.

No one can truthfully assert that these reasons are not facts, and being facts they appeal in this contest, regardless of position, pursuit or place, to the consideration of every voter in the coming election, for their interest is his interest and in his hands will be guarded and protected.

There are citizens here who knew him before he left his home in Virginia years ago, to cast his lot with Atlanta and her people, and the community from whence he came bears testimony of his integrity, honesty and efficiency. His elevation to the aldermanic board we feel sure will redound in the interests of as well as

THE H. I. KIMBALL HOUSE.

Mr. Kimball Still Insists that it Will be Ready to Receive Guests January 1st.

A CONSTITUTION man chanced to drop in at the office of Mr. H. I. Kimball yesterday and found the board of directors of the Kimball house company in session, and was just in time to hear the following conversation:

"When did you say you would have the house ready to open," asked President Howell?

"The north half will be ready this year, and unless we have unprecidented bad weather the entire building on the first day of February next," answered Mr. Kimball.' "Well," said Mr. Howell, "if this was any other place but Atlanta, and you were any other man than H. I. Kimball, we should say you had discounted the time at least three months, but if you say you are going to do it, that settles it."

To this sentiment all the directors gave ready and hearty assent. Mr. Howell then turned to Messrs. Scoville and Beermann and asked—

"Will you be ready with your cooks, your clerks, your servants and everything necessary to take care of people if Kimball gives you the house?"

"Our arrangements are perfected in every detail, and you may just bet that we will be ready in five minutes after we get the word 'ready,'" said Mr. Scoville.

These statements put every one present in good humor (as they doubtless will thousands of people who are anxious to partake of the benefits to accrue from the opening of this grand hostelry, and the party adjourned to go through the building. The reporter was pleased to accept the invitation to accompany them and they were joined by a number of insurance men.

The Stevens hoist, which has performed the work of fifty men in hoisting all of the brick and mortar to construct this huge structure, has been converted into a freight and passenger elevator, and the remarks that were made as one after another stepped on to the little platform and was shot up to the eighth floor, clearly indicated that they felt "their ascension" to be absolutely necessary to the fulfillment of Mr. Kimball's promise. Geo. Adair stood and watched them go up—looked up through the narrow opening, took a long breath and stepped on. Soon after he became enthusiastic and became profuse in his expressions about the magnificent views, the large rooms, the wide halls, the splendid ventilation, the spacious closets, the admirable arrangements for families, etc., etc. The party at once took in the situation, and declared him the leader of the "investigation." Said he:

"Come back this way, gentlemen, and especially you insurance men, and I will show you what we mean by fire proofing. We do not claim that it is absolutely fire proof, but is what the insurance men call slow burning."

"Yes," chimed in Mr. Parkins, the superintendent, "it is slow burning. I have watched it from the first brick, and I will wager anything that when weare done, or take any of these rooms that are done, that I can build a good size fire in the middle of the room and then take a street car, go to the old rolling mill, and get back in time to put out the fire before it has got outside of that room."

Mr. Kimball then took the party into a room just ready to plaster, said he:

"Every room in this house is separate and distinct from every other room—I mean in the flooring, the ceiling, and the walls. You see the way the plastering in the wire lathing protects the wood work absolutely. You see that between every story we have bricked up eight inches above the floor line, then the wire goes down to the floor and a narrow baseboard is over that, between the floor and ceiling there is two inches of fireproof material, which also serves as a deafener. So, if a fire should start on the floor and burn through the boards, it could not go below; if it ran along under the floor to the partition, there it strikes the bricks, as you see, and its only chance to get outside of the room is by burning the door. The great danger in large buildings is that the fire starts in one room, burns through the floor, runs along the joist, up a partition, perhaps several stories, and is liable to break out in any part of the building one or two hundred feet from where it starts. You see, gentlemen, we stop fire at every partition, and my word for it, rats as well, and whoever lives in this house won't be disturbed by rats running up and down the partition walls at the head of his bed."

"The gentlemen gave this matter very careful attention, and the insurance men asked many questions, and all were perfectly satisfied that the structure was safe."

"Now," said Colonel Adair, "show us your sanitary arrangements, that we have voted you so much money to pay for."

"Well, here you are. Now, in the first place, we have the best closets ever constructed. But one other hotel in this country has had the courage to stand the cost. You will notice that the whole closet is one solid piece of porcelain; there is not a valve or anything of the kind about it—nothing to rust, corrode, or catch dirt, and it is as simple and clean as your old fashioned china wash bowl. That large, six inch pipe is the soil pipe; it connects with a 12 inch iron pipe in the basement and through a trap with the sewer, and runs up twenty feet above the roof for venting. That three inch iron pipe ventilates this closet. Each closet has a separate pipe and like others above and below connects with this large ventilating pipe. The four inch pipe is to ventilate the tub and basin and has no connection with the soil pipe and has no connection with the sewer. This two inch pipe is the waste for the basin and tub and has connection with the sewer beyond the soil pipe trap and flushing hydrant. This pipe is for the safes under the fixtures and has no connection with the sewer. These five smaller pipes are the supply and circulating pipes. Circulating pipe is pipe in which we keep up a constant circulation of hot and cold water—for instance—this pipe is two hundred feet from the boiler, and to avoid waiting for water to travel all that distance after a person opens the valve we keep up a constant circulation and one gets hot water at once on opening the valve. This large galvanized iron pipe is for ventilating the room, all of these other appliances are for ventilating the fixtures, this is for the room. In the basement at the bottom of each line of these ventilating pipes there is a patent contrivance in which a gas jet is kept burning constantly that creates a current, and these pipes running clear from the basement to the top of the house have an opening to each bathroom on the line, and the strong current created below take every particle of impure air and keeps the room perfectly ventilated. Our public baths and closets are all connected with large air ducts built in the wall into which we exhaust steam and thus create a powerful draft. In short, gentlemen, the sanitary arrangements of this house are unexcelled by any house in this country. I won't except even the best private residence."

The party went on from room to room. Every detail being explained. On reaching a very large room on the second floor workmen were noticed putting up square blocks of tiling.

"Is this the dining-room?" asked the colonel.

"No, sir; this is our kitchen, and it is what we call absolutely fire-proof. That is all I am going to tell you about it now, but if you will come in in thirty days you will see the finest kitchen in the world."

From there the party went to the ladies' ordinary, which is just receiving the finishing touches of decoration under Mr. Wheeler's personal direction.

"Now, gentlemen, you have seen at least two hundred rooms that are practically finished. We have over a hundred carpets ready, ten car loads of furniture on the way, and everything moving as fast as four hundred men can push it. Do you see any reason why you may not all take dinner and sleep here New Years."

Of course nobody saw any reason and separated feeling happy.

An alarm of fire was turned in yesterday afternoon from box 61. It was caused by a burning chimney on Rawson, corner Frazier street. No damage.

Four men charged with vagrancy were run in yesterday by the police department.

A fine bouncing boy arrived at Mr. Clarence Angier's Saturday night.

LULA BURST'S RIVAL.

Mrs. Coleman Gives an Exhibition of Her Magnetic Powers at the Library.

On Wednesday evening last a number of gentlemen assembled in the parlors of the Young Men's library to witness the magnetic powers of Mrs. Coleman, the rival of Lula Hurst. Mrs. Coleman returned from New York two weeks ago looking very much improved. She is larger than Lula Hurst and is an exceedingly handsome and attractive lady, being in that respect unlike the magnetic maiden from collard valley. She was becomingly attired and gave every indication of being a lady of refinement. Among the gentlemen who called to witness the exhibition were the following: Mr. N. P. T. Finch, Mr. Burton Smith, Mr. Martin Amarous, Mr. O. C. Fuller, Mr. E. T. Byington, Mr. Robert Smith, of Chicago, and a few others.

Mrs. Coleman proposes to do anything that Lula Hurst does.

The tests were made in an informal way, but the exposition of the strange power was quite interesting.

Mr. Burton Smith, who, like his brother, Mr. Hoke Smith, is a skeptic in the matter of magnetic girls, was the first to put his muscle against the "force."

He took a seat in a chair, and firmly braced himself and held on tightly.

Mrs. Coleman placed the palms of her hands against the back of the chair, and held them there a moment, smiling while the company looked on with interest.

In about ten seconds the chair seemed to become vivified. It raised up on one leg. It hopped up on another. It jumped forward. Mr. Smith struggled. The chair made a big lunge, and he was landed on the floor red in the face from exertion, while the fair magician smiled as sweetly and as serenely as a May morning.

"Just like Lula Hurst," said Mr. Smith.

"How's that?"

"Some force."

"Muscle?"

"That's a different question."

"Electricity?"

"My judgment is reserved."

Another gentleman took the chair, caught a good hold, and seemed determined to control it or perish in the attempt. But the chair went over with such force that one of the legs was snapped off.

The next trick tried was the trick stick. A gentleman took a stout stick in his hands, grasping it firmly, with his hands about fifteen inches apart. Mrs. Coleman placed her open hands on the stick. Her fingers were not even closed around it, suddenly the stick began to tremble, it moved, it jumped, and in an instant was wrested from the gentleman's grasp and sent flying across the room.

The stick was then placed with one end on the floor and the other firmly held by a gentleman. A young man stepped over to move it, but failed. Mrs. Coleman then laid her palms against the stick, and it flew up.

These tricks were repeated to the entire satisfaction of the company that there is something exceedingly mysterious about Mrs. Coleman's power.

The famous umbrella trick has never been tried by Mrs. Coleman but it will be tried in a few days and there is considerable interest as to how it will turn out.

It is probable that Mrs. Coleman will appear at DeGive's before long under the auspices of the Young Men's library.

Rough on Joe Howard.

From the New York World.

That ancient journalist, Flavius Josepheus Howard, commonly called Joe, writing to a melancholy Blaine organ in Philadelphia, gives a doleful picture of the business outlook in New York. He says that times are dull, many stores are for rent and scores of business men are despondent, all on account of Cleveland's election. There is always a dulness in New York about the beginning of cold weather that even republican legislation—and we have had twenty-four years of it—cannot remove. Many business men of the republican persuasion who bet their money on Blaine are closing their stores now. Scores of men who lost every dollar they had because of that ridiculous little plurality in this state swear that they never saw such a blue and dismal outlook at this season of the year. Some people even go so far as to intimate that there is a prospect that the venerable Flavius Josephus Howard will be going about in a dyed duster eating snowballs before New Year's day. Mr. Howard lost seven thousand dollars by the failure of Mr. Blaine to 'get there," and, his view of the hardness of the times of the country may be largely due to this bit of misfortune.

Politeness Which Did Not Pay.

From Life.

There was once a polite conductor on the Broadway line of horse cars, and he got into the bad habit of stopping when anybody wanted to get off. The careful superintendent heard of it, but paid no attention for a while. But then the conductor got bolder, and would say, "thank you," whenever anyone gave him the fare. This was more than the careful superintendent could stand, and so next morning the polite conductor was fired. He was somewhat surprised at this, and asked the careful superintendent about it, and got this wise reply:

"My friend, when you said 'thank you,' it meant either that you were trying to show respect for the public, or that you were collaring the fare. In either case you ought to be fired."

FINANCE AND COMMERCE.

Bonds, Stocks and Money.

CONSTITUTION OFFICE,
ATLANTA, November 20, 1884.

The market for the week has been a repitition of last week in the matter of demand and supply, the supply being in excess of the latter.

Desirable securities are scarce, and in the general run cannot be bought at prices netting over six per cent, while in State of Georgia bonds buyers are fortunate if they get a five per cent return on their investments. This condition cannot be expected to last indefinitely, but will probably continue through the winter months while money is plentiful, but when the summer comes again lower prices will prevail.

Some prices are marked up from one to two points. Central railroad stock and debentures are stronger and in fair demand at prices quoted Georgia Pacific firsts have also recorded a further advance, and sales are reported at 80¾. The condition of this road and its earning capacity justifies the belief that its first mortgages are a sound investment, and a further advance in them need not be surprising.

The New York market for the week has simply held its own, with the exception of two or three stocks, which have advanced 3@5 per cent. The railroad war there continues, but with a somewhat abated vigor, and from the evident "tiredness" of the contestants, an end is liable to be put to it at any moment—perhaps within the week, and with that drawback removed an upward turn in speculative stocks would likely be seen.

Money 8@10 per cent.

New York exchange buying at ⅛ discount and par selling at ⅛ premium.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Stocks as Reported in the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, November 29.—The stock market opened dull, but generally firm. The market showed usual slight fluctuations, Grangers, Trunk Lines, Pacific Mail and Oregon Transcontinental were stronger and Lake Shore weak, Lackawanna was the feature being especially strong and leading the market. The market closed firm at or near the highest point of the day. Lackawanna's strength was due to favorable rumors regarding the company's part in the proposed allotment pool. Compared with last night's closing prices ¼ to 1⅞ per cent higher, except for Lake Shore and Omaha which were ⅜ to 1 per cent lower. Sales 226,110 shares.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movements in Grain and Produce.

By telegraph to The Constitution.

CHICAGO, November 29—The leading markets on change to-day were generally heavy and lower. The opening was general steady on cable advices of 2d advance, but the posting of two more loads of wheat in Brooklyn, a report from the northwest that the elevators were full to overflowing and the fact that the bulk of the crowd are long, soon worked the market off 1c in January wheat and 2½c in November corn, and brought about a heavy close. Wheat opened steady and fractionally higher, but about the only strength in the market was for the first hour. New York grains eased off rapidly under lack of demand from traders on the other side, and receipts here were heavy with prospects of very free offerings during the coming week. Reports of stocks in Minnesota elevators were very discouraging to bulls. No. 2 spring sold from 73¾c to 74½c. The market close heavy at a decline of about 1c from opening figures.

Corn was very irregular for November, which was not wanted, and fell off 2½c from the highest point, closing 2½c lower than yesterday. The other options held up with more firmness, but nevertheless were weak and lower, falling off ½@⅝c. Trading was moderately active, but was confined to the local crowd and brought out some big operators. No. 2 cash ranged from 35¼@38½c.

Oats continued steady but inactive, traders keeping out of the market and expecting a break because of the unnatural distance between the prices of corn and oats.

Provisions were moderately active, but prices were steadily downward for want of support in sympathy with the other markets. Cash pork sold at $10.90@$11.00.

Lard sold from $6.77½@$6.85—inside for immediate delivery,

Brewer's Lung Restorer.
Some of its Wonderful Cures.
My daughter's cough has been very much loosened and lessened, while her strength has increased considerably since she commenced using Brewer's Lung Restorer. We can scarcely hope for permanent recovery, but are encouraged very much indeed by the change in her condition while using the Lung Restorer. We used it with the permission and under the supervision of our physician, who is very favorably impressed with it. I think. I sincerely wish you success in your efforts to heal the sick. Yours truly, W. B. MCGILBRAY, Richmond, Va.
With my experience I must pronounce Brewer's Lung Restorer the best lung remedy made. Four of my brothers and sisters had died with consumption, and about three years ago I became so exhausted by a long continued cough, accompanied with low fever and night sweats, that I could barely get about, and my friends gave up all hope. I considered myself that I could not sleep at all. After trying several lung medicines I began the use

THE CONFERENCE.

THE FOURTH DAY OF THE EIGHTEENTH SESSION.

The Committee on Temperance Reports Approving the Local Option Bill which is Before the Legislature—The Report of the LaGrange Female College—Notes of the Day.

The fourth day of the eighteenth annual session of the north Georgia conference opened with an undiminished attendance of members and visitors. Devotional exercises were conducted by W. T. Hamilton, of the conference.

Rev. W. A. Candler, from the special committee appointed to confer with the temperance committee of the general assembly, reported that they had conferred with that committee and approved of the bill for a general local option law framed by that committee, and would recommend the members of this conference to use all their influence to have the law adopted. Referred to committee on temperance.

Who are admitted into full connection: F. P. Langford, B. F Payne, Francis O. Favor, W. W. Braswell, F S. Hudson.

The report of LaGrange Female college was submitted by Rev. J. W. Heidt, the president. The college is increasing in favor and prosperity. One hundred and 19 pupils attended last session and the attendance at the fall session has been largely increased. The debt of $5,000 has been paid off. More room is needed, and $40,000 is required to enable the college to meet the demands on that score. Eleven teachers are employed. Nearly all the pupils are members of the church. Most of the graduates have entered upon some self sustaining work. No girl is turned away for insufficient means. Referred to education committee.

Rev. J. B. Hawthorne, pastor of the First Baptist church Atlanta, and Rev. M. B Wharton editor Christian Index and pastor First Baptist church Montgomery, Ala., introduced to the conference

What traveling preachers elected elders?

Howard L. Crumley, Thomas J. Christian, N. E McBryer, Melancthon B. Phillips, J. B Allen, E T. Hendricks.

What local preachers elected deacons?

L. B. Mildcan, John J N. Kenny, G T. King, W. A. Cooper, J. M. Armstrong, B F. Harris, Geo K. Potter, Sherman K. England, J. A Askew, W. A. King, R C. Manly, H. L. Embry, R B Brooks, J S. Seppington, L. C. Daigett, W R. Rymson, John T. H. Miller, C. M. Leubetter, W. P Ford. Transferred to North Mississippi conference, J. A. Timmerman.

At 11 a. m., conference gave way for the centenary exercises, and adjourned until 3 p. m.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. A. J. Jarrell, of the conference. What local preachers are elected elders? Doctor F. Rutherford, Russel Ayres, Paul F. Connally, J. H. Callahan, A. A. D. Latimer, Robert Todd, J. H. Elder, W. M. McIntosh, David C. Brown.

The board of finance distributed $8,884.65 among fifty claimants. $600 was collected more than assessed for the bishop's fund.

Rev. W. D. Andrews and J. L. Culver moved that a committee of five be appointed to consider what change of relations is necessary in trustees of church property by legal enactment. Motion carried and W. D. Anderson, W. M. Session, W. S. Thomason, C. A. Evans and J. L. Culver, appointed as said committee.

L. D. Palmer, of the publishing house, addressed the conference in a concise and excellent manner.

The credentials of Rev. D W. Bussey were recognized, and the presiding elder authorized to employ him as a supply.

Those admitted into full connection were called in front of the bishop, and the usual questions propounded to and answered satisfactorily. The addresses of the bishop were terse and to the point. He never fails to make a decided impression.

What traveling preachers are elected deacons?

J. H. Little, B. F. Payne and F. O. Favor.

CENTENARY SERVICES.

At 11 a. m. Trinity was filled to its fullest capacity.

After the singing of the hymn, "I Love Thy Kingdom, Lord," Rev. J. E. Evans read the 121st psalm and held in prayer. The congregation sang, "How Firm a Foundation."

When Rev Jesse Boring announced as his text the 13th, 13th and 14th verses of the 48th psalm. It was a discourse on the centenary of American Methodism, and he would give a brief history of it. John Wesley was regarded as the founder of it. But John Wesley was never a Methodist in one acceptation of that term, but was a member of the Episcopal church, and never severed his connection with it. He never intended to organize a church, outside of the church of England. He only united with other young men of that church for prayer, their own spiritual growth, as well as the of the church. It was necessary to form societies for this purpose, and the name Methodists applied to them in derision. England was filled with these societies, but they were all within the Church of England, receiving the sacraments at the hands of her ministers. These societies were formed in America, and remained in the Episcopal church until the revolutionary war, when the Episcopal church here severed themselves from the church of England. In 1771 Francis Asbury came here as superintendent of these societies. In 1784 the Methodist church was organized in Baltimore at the Christmas conference. Up to that time they were known as societies. Since then they have been known as churches and classes. The history of Methodism by Dr Stephens and that by Bishop McTyeire and Bishop Wightman is a good authority on this point. The first conference was held in 1744 by Wesley in Great Britain, and in 1766 the connection numbered 20,000 members. In 1771, when Asbury came to America, there were only 60 societies on the American continent chiefly in New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore. There were only a few local preachers from England and Ireland here. But Mr Asbury preached and converted the people. From societies they grew into circuits, then into quarterly conferences, then into informal annual conferences, then into informal general conference and then into a general conference and a delegated general conference, which last is the only legislative body in the church. To-day Methodism in all its branches in America numbers 4,315,729 against 2,364,742 for the Baptists, 801,488 for the Presbyterians, 387,619 for the Congregationalists, and 348,591 for the Episcopalians. All these were in America and had their churches and schools 100 years before Methodism was organized here.

To what can this unparalleled success be ascribed?

It is all of grace, under providential direction from the doctrines of Methodism.

Methodism teaches the fall of man, his depravity and his redemption.

It teaches that man is totally fallen by the Adamic transgression, and that the penalty was death in all its modes—death of body, soul and mind—immortal death—the end of the Adamic race. Every descendant of Adam owes his redemption from death to the mediation of Christ. God proposed to people this world with the Adamic race, and He executed that purpose by the gift of his son. God did not permit Adam to fall—he suffered him to do so. Man was a free agent, capable of doing right or wrong. God is never taken by surprise. The sentence of death pronounced against Adam was not executed because Christ was a Lamb slain from the foundation of the world. Redemption was co-existent with the fall.

The fall and the redemption was universal. Man must be born again. The doctrine of entire sanctification—consecration of body, soul and spirit was preached from Asbury down. It was no theory but a verity. The speaker dwelt upon the connection between regeneration, justification, sanctification and the witness of the spirit in developing, maturing, and perfecting the Christian.

Another elemement of success was a consecrated church and a sanctified ministry. The speaker dwelt upon the vital importance of the itinerancy to the church and the essentiality of connectionalism. Go it alone has true right to call and qualify and give success.

After singing "Waft, waft, ye winds, His story," Rev. C. A. Evans led in prayer, and the benediction was pronounced.

MISSIONARY AND CENTENARY SERVICES.

At 7 o'clock p m the missionary and centenary services were held in Trinity. Rev J W Heidt read the 49th chapter of Isaiah. After singing, Rev J S Hopkins, president of Emory college, lead in prayer. After singing, Rev J H Baxter, secretary of board of missions, read annual report. $6,882 were reported for missions. Twenty seven missionaries and five presiding elders were supplied from this fund. The report from the mission station were on the whole encouraging.

Mr. J. S. Stewart, treasurer of the centenary and mission funds, reported conference collections $8,506.65.

Foreign missions, $17 034.10.

Women's missions, $4,668 25.

Grand total collections for missions, $28,810 10.

Centenary collections $54 124.74.

Conference claimants, $8,884.

Bishop's fund, $1,020.

Church extension fund, $2,529.60.

Total fall, $36,262 40

Rev. W. H Potter delivered a terse and eloquent address on missions. He commented upon the fact that while church members grew wealthy, preachers did not. Preachers received miserable salaries in Georgia than anywhere else (save in Virginia.) He congratulated the conference upon the increase in the spirit of giving.

Rev. A G Haygood, in an earnest and impassioned effort, dwelt upon the importance of missionary effort and its effect in changing the lives of men by changing their thoughts. Men gave according to their faith. Men gave liberally to advance political parties or business enterprises of their faith in it. He did not charge that Christians did not contribute more liberally for want of faith, but perhaps it was due to lack of information. The missionary enterprise was the characteristic movement of the nineteenth century. He referred in a strain of thrilling eloquence to the effect of the Bible in India, and spoke of the importance of Africa with its two hundred millions. We have no church interest there. The only connection was that of Paine institute at Augusta. He concluded with a graphic picture of the missionary development in Atlanta in the next ten year. A call was made for contributions, and in a few moments about $1,000 was contributed. Paine institute was generously recollected along with China and home missions. The meeting closed at ten o'clock and all retired from the church feeling that it was good to have been there.

NOTES.

The LaGrange female college is in the full Heidt of prosperity. The appointment of Rev. W. C. Dunlap as commissioner of Paine institute is generally approved. There is no readier or more interesting worker.

Yesterday while a distinguished member of the Nashville publishing house and a distinguished Georgia divine were engaged in conversation a little fice dog jumped over the lap of the Nashville gentleman striking him on the hand. Supposing the dog to be mad, water had to be kept from his sight for some time.

If the conference could be prevailed upon to give up its treasurer, President Cleveland would find him just the man for secretary of the treasury.

The members of conference are invited to visit THE CONSTITUTION office Monday from 12 to 2 p. m., to see our new press in operation.

BEAUTIFUL WINDOWS.

What a Whitehall House Did During the Procession Friday Night.

"Beautiful!"

"Isn't it lovely?"

"Just exquisite!"

"Never saw anything to equal it!"

Hundreds of exclamations similar to the above were heard by those who stood in front of the handsome window of Freeman & Crankshaw, during the grand procession Friday night. That these gentlemen merited the unstinted praise so universally accorded them, is a fact that needs no confirmation from those who know their taste in arranging beautiful displays. But on this occasion they outstripped all their former efforts.

The left window, looking into the store, was filled with a rich collection of fine bronzes, pedestals, plaques, vases and other fine art goods, all arranged with a view to giving the best possible effect. In the rear, some six or eight feet from the front was a lovely brass pedestal five feet high, on top of which was a vase containing an arrangement of rich foliage plants. On either side of this was a high lamp, mounted on a stand made of brass and copper enamel. Then, ranging down to the front window, were a lot of other exquisite goods, every one a masterpiece of art work. On the floor of the window were a dozen pieces of cut glass, dishes, pitchers, stands, etc., which reflected a million times from the numbers of wax tapers all through the display the lovely things around them. The effect of lighting this window was wonderful. It looked like a grotto—the cave of some lovely goddess, rivaling in beauty and splendor any of the stories of oriental luxuries and richness told of in the "Arabian Night's" stories. Indeed, it would be difficult to imagine anything more fascinating than to stand before this window and watch the ever constant changes in effect caused by the quivering lights. It was a picture of such loveliness, a peep into fairy land so enchanting, that leaving it under half an hour was impossible, everything that the hand of art had fashioned into tasteful design was there, and every piece seemed to fit exactly where it belonged. And it was all the more beautiful because the work of arranging the articles was done by Mr. Charles Crankshaw in an hour.

The other window, arranged with a different effect, was almost as beautiful as the one just mentioned, though the effect sought to be obtained was altogether different. On a rich plush cover the jewels of every country in the world flashed forth the lights that danced around them. Diamonds fashioned into designs of crescents, crosses, stars and grotesque figures, nestled in their velvet beds beside an array of emeralds, amethysts, garnets, rubies, sapphires and other precious stones, making the one ground on which they rested suggest the firmament on a bright night with Venus and her coterie of lesser lights filling space. Added to all these were countless flags in miniature, rich Turkish draperies and portieres, the whole backed by a cross of American colors which lent an effect as patriotic as it was beautiful. For hours before, during and after the procession, there was such a dense mass humanity around these windows as to make passing impossible. All the time people were leaving the windows entranced by their beauty only to send back a dozen others who had before them. Into the crowd stood there until the lights were extinguished and the charming pictures lost to view.

"Housekeeping in the Sunny South."

This is the title of a new cook book gotton up by Mrs. E. R. Tennent, of Marietta, Ga., and published by Jas. P. Harrison & Co., of Atlanta. No pains or expense have been spared to make it the most perfect book of its class ever published. The receipt for making F. M. Jack's famous bread is published for the first time.

It is alone worth the price of the book. The great fault with most cook books on the market are their extravagant demands which render them valuless to the masses. This will suit the plainest and most economical as well as the millionaire who can afford the costliest luxuries. The best housekeepers, bakers and confectioners not only of the south but of every section have contributed their tried and valued receipts. The list is, indeed a brilliant one. The book contains four hundred pages, is elegantly printed on the finest cream toned paper and bound in cloth. It will appear February 1st. Send your orders now to MRS. E. R. TENNENT, Marietta, Ga.

We take great pleasure in indorsing the above publication by Mrs. Tennent as being in our view the most perfect and admirable book of the kind yet offered to the public. It is indeed the one housekeeper's manual prized above all price.

Mrs. E. R. Tennent is having a new cook book published which will be out about the first of February. It will be entitled, "Housekeeping in the Sunny South," and from what we know of Mrs. Tennent's accomplishments, taste and skill, it will be far superior to anything of the kind on the market. We predict for it great popularity.

THAT GAME OF BALL.

The "Young Ladies' Baseball Club" Defeat a Picked Nine.

Fully one thousand people witnessed the game of baseball at Athletic park yesterday afternoon between the "Young Ladies' baseball club" a traveling team and the "home nine," composed of local players. There were only a few ladies present, but the audience enjoyed the game. The Atlanta nine was made up of Williams 1 b., Lilienthal s. s., Dixon 2 b., Finney l. f., Johnson 3 b., Lewis c., Palmer p., Boyd c. f., Ehlers r. f. The home team won the toss and started to the field, but the audience would not stand this, and made the boys take the bat and give the visitors the "out."

Miss Emmerson, a brunette, who was attired in a "Dolly Varden" frock, regulation length, went into the pitcher's box and sent in hot curves to the man at the bat. Miss Lawrence, a decided blonde who wore a solid red dress, also of regulation length, wore the gloves and caught for Miss Emmerson. The nine was captained by Miss Elliott, who played first base, and she handled her team with skill. The game was decidedly amusing, and the audience was in a roar all the time. Girls on a baseball field are novelties in Atlanta, and Atlanta always enjoys a novelty. Of course there was no good playing, but there was lots of laughing, and that was what the crowd wanted. The girls beat the game by a score of 8 to 5.

We have had to replenish our stock in all departments. Our M. Rich, now in New York, is buying everything of the latest at low prices. M. Rich & Bros.

BURNED TO DEATH.

David Thurman, an Old Atlantian, Dies a Horrible Death at His Home.

David Thurman, the night watchman at the Atlanta cotton compress, died late Friday night from the effects of the burning he received Thursday morning at the compress, an account of which was printed in Friday's CONSTITUTION.

Mr. Thurman, though exposed a great deal to the cold, was not allowed to have any fire, and in order to keep his feet and legs warm he would wrap a great deal of loose cotton around them and confine it by winding a piece of burlaps around the cotton. This kept his limbs warm, but in keeping them warm Mr. Thurman found death. Late Wednesday night, or rather early Thursday morning, Mr. Thurman ignited a match for the purpose of lighting a lantern to go on a tour of inspection through the building. When he drew the head of the match across the box it blazed up, but the head dropped off and falling on the cotton about his legs set it on fire. The cotton was exceedingly inflammable and in a second Mr. Thurman was one sheet of fire. He dropped upon the floor, as soon as he realized his condition, and rolled over and over in hopes that the blaze could be extinguished, but before he succeeded his legs were horribly burned. His face and hands, too, were terribly scorched, and all the hair was singed from his head. Mr. Thurman suffered terribly, and as soon as possible was removed to his home, 29 Thurmon street. There he lingered in great pain until about one o'clock Friday night, when he died.

Mr. Thurman was well known in Atlanta. He was born and raised in this city, and for a number of years was a night watchman in the Central railroad yard. He was about fifty years of age and weighed over two hundred pounds. He was at one time a member of the Atlanta police force. He was a son of Benjamin Thurman, who, during his life, was well and widely known in Atlanta.

HOPKINS NOT DEAD.

A Negro Lives Twenty-four Hours With a Jugular Vein Cut.

Pope Hopkins, the negro man who was so badly wounded by George Anderson Friday night, has surprised several physicians by living. Immediately after Hopkins was stabbed by Anderson, Dr. Fred King was called in, and after examining the wound, stated that the jugular vein had been severed, and that Hopkins could not live any time. Hopkins was then lying on the floor in a pool of blood. As much as two gallons of blood must have flowed from the wound, and at one o'clock Hopkins was so weak from the loss of blood that he could not turn over or handle himself in any way. Believing that Hopkins' death was liable to occur at any moment, Bob Stevenson, the proprietor of the bar room sent for Coroner Hilburn. That gentleman responded promptly, and when he reached the place he found that the one important witness to the entire affray was a negro from South Carolina and in order to secure the negro for a witness the coroner had him locked up. Hopkins, however, disappointed everybody by living through the night, and at 6 o'clock yesterday morning he was removed to his home on Chapel street, and Dr. Roach was sent for about dark yesterday evening. Dr. Rooch said that Hopkins might worry through the night but that he would certainly die.

DECORATIONS.

A Chat With Henry Harman, the Artist Decorator—His Wonderful Talent.

Mr. Henry Herman, the decorator who designed and trimmed the triumphal arch on Marietta street, for the grand rally on Friday night, was met by a reporter on yesterday and had with him the following conversation:

"How long have you been decorating?"

"Some three years. I was in New York and a firm engaged me to trim their store in Charlotte. Decorating was then an unknown thing to me, but being possessed of a determination I undertook the job, and need only say that for a year and a half I astonished myself as well as the public in the decorations of the store."

"After leaving Charlotte where did you go?"

"I was engaged by a firm in Athens and there is where I found my talent was unlimited. They spared no expense and with that at my command, their openings was said to be the grandest in the south."

"Do you confine your decorations only to stores?"

"Oh no, sir. I dress windows and stores for grand openings or for any occasion; also fairs. If you remember, the Volunteer Guards' fair at Savannah was trimmed by me."

"How about private residences?"

"Well, I am right there. Receptions, sociables and so on I trim in elegant designs, and very handy to arrange all the details, so that with the glare of lights a grand effect can be produced."

"Well, I should think you would be a good hand to keep to help to arrange entertainments?"

"I can take a parlor and get up the entire stage effects for an amateur performance, even to painting scenery and designing costumes, and I may say I have a talent as a humorist and vocalist, or what is termed low comedy."

"How about Christmas decorations?"

"In Athens at a Christmas opening I had life size figures and scenery to represent Santa Claus, Old Mother Goose, Jack the Giant Killer Little Red Riding Hood, and so on. I can make similar displays for windows, or for any occasion. I also arrange floats for street displays, mottoes, monograms, etc."

"Where does your decorations come from?"

"I get them from Cincinnati and intend to open a branch house here, where I can supply the trade. I desire to remain in Atlanta, and if I meet with success I can only say that I shall do all that I can to bring the decorating business on an equal with that of the north."

"Have you met with success since your arrival here?"

"I have been here but a short time, and have done remarkably well, but it takes time. I will not confine myself to Atlanta alone, but will decorate throughout the state, and I may say the entire south. There is always expositions, fairs, receptions, entertainments, etc., that need a decorator and trimmings and I will be always ready to be on hand at a moment's notice."

"Where is your office?"

"At Mr. D. C. Fitchford's, No. 28 Whitehall, where all orders can be sent."

"I wish you success, and can assure you the patronage of the Atlanta public."

"Thanks: I hope to meet you again."

Booming!

That's the term! John Keely's business is literally "Booming!" His trade has assumed immense proportions; so much so that it requires herculean labor to supply its demands. John Keely seems to be fully up to the requirements of of the case, for his stock is well kept up, his patrons find what they want, and, his strong point is —the prices are right! This is what keeps his trade "Booming," and the truth of the matter is, that John Keely, as a merchant, would make his mark in any large city—fully as clearly defined as he has here—where it really seems as if the principal efforts made by competitors are shown in the effort to imitate him. His energy knows no limit, his unflinching perseverance is a marvel and his close, earnest attention to business is positively a guarantee of successful issue from every undertaking into which he enters. The Captain offers now the largest, most complete stock of dry goods perhaps to be found in the South, and it is our great pleasure to chronicle the fact that he is selling them very rapidly. He has had hard work in building up his glorious business, and we rejoice with him in the enjoyment of a princely patronage. Be sure to read the Captain's large advertisement in this issue. The political cyclone seems to have driven him to some poetical effort, but he promises not to be guilty of any more, so we have agreed to print it just this time.

Frauds and Humbugs.

The rage of the present day seems to be to imitate and counterfeit everything which has value. In fact it is now accepted as a recommendation to any article to be imitated. If this were the only effect of these frauds it would be well; but there are many unsuspecting persons who are imposed upon, and the object of this notice is to caution the public in regard to the numerous imitations, frauds, counterfeits, etc., gotten up to imitate Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) and sell on the faith of its merit.

These things are of course never brought out by honest men, for honest men not only do not steal but they do not make the attempt to do so. As many of these thing are gotten up by humbugs—they are per se frauds—some of them bearing the lie on their faces, and containing poisonous mixtures of mercury or potash or both. Swift's Specific is put up only by this company. We will give $1,000 to any one who will bring us a counterfeit with proof to convict the forger. The Swift Specific Co., Drawer 3, Atlanta, Ga.

One Thousand Dollars Reward will be paid for the detection of counterfeits of Swift's Specific S. S. S., with proof to convict the forger. We also caution the public against the numerous imitations with which the country is being flooded. A man who is mean enough to get up an imitation to deceive, is certainly not to be trusted in the quality of goods which he puts up. All of these imitations which we have examined, contain either mercury or potash or both, and are consequently dangerous [illegible]

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC COMPANY, Drawer 3, Atlanta, Ga.

THE NEW CAPITOL.

State Pride is the Strength of the Republic, and the Glory of the American Union.

From the Thomasville Times.

"We hope that the empire state of the south may be given a capitol of which she may be proud. She is able to build a first-class capitol, and it should be done. If an additional appropriation is necessary, it should be made."

From the Gainesville Eagle.

We are far from charging any wrong upon the commissioners. We believe that they were actuated by the purest of motives, and in making the contract they did the best they could under the circumstances, but we are uncompromisingly opposed to substituting a soft limestone, procured in a distant state, for Georgia granite and marble. Our reasons for this are abundant, and, to our mind, conclusive.

The contract contemplates the use of oolitic limestone, which his softer and cheaper than granite and marble. Now, let the actual difference in the cost of using these various kinds of stone be ascertained, and then, if need be, let the legislature supplement the appropriation with a sum sufficient to cover this difference. In this way our home material will be substituted and no wrong done. By all means let the capitol be constructed out of our own products—stone, wood, iron, slate, lime, sand, and in short everything that goes to make up the building. If to do this additional appropriation should be required let it be made, but in any event let us have a Georgia capitol made out of Georgia material.

From the Wesleyan Advocate.

Georgia has all the material in her own bosom out of which to build her capitol; it will cost $150,000 more to build it of her own material than of imported material. It will cost $1,150,000 to build it of her own material, but when it is done the state will have the capitol and the $1,500,000.

From the Atlanta Constitution.

* * * "If the legislature wishes to add a quarter of a million dollars, or whatever is necessary to substitute marble for limestone, we should be glad to see it done. We should rejoice in it."

From the Christian Index.

We want no opera house follies, mansard extravagancies or "Queen Anne" nonsense in our state edifice. We think $1 200,000 a small sum for a capitol building for the great state of Georgia to pay. Tennessee's capitol cost $5,000,000. North Carolina's several million, and so with Alabama. It is very much desired that the building be constructed as far as practicable of Georgia material and by Georgia workmen.

It was certainly the desire of the legislature that the new capitol should be constructed of Georgia material, so far as possible. While Georgia has the best "granite rock" and as fine "marble" as can be found in the country, it is the duty of our lawmaking powers to do all that can be done for the development of the same. It would give employment to hundreds of Georgians, enhance the wealth of the state and increase the taxable values of those sections wherein this granite and marble exist in inexhaustible quantities awaiting development and a market.

From the Cartersville Free Press.

It is to be hoped that the legislature will at once look into this matter and have the contract so modified as to give to Georgia all possible opportunity of furnishing the material for the erection of her own state capitol.

SENATOR JOSEPH E. BROWN

says: "I greatly prefer that the legislature would make an additional appropriation and direct that the building be made of Georgia marble. It would do much more credit to the state, and $100,000 or $200,000 difference ought not to be a consideration. As a tax payer I would cheerfully pay my part of the additional cost."

GEORGIA'S NEW CAPITOL.

From the Sylvania (Ga.,) Telephone, November 21.

The capitol question has been brought before the legislature at the present session, and we think, properly so. We hope this general assembly will not be as dwarfed in their views upon the question as the preceding one. Georgia's new capitol building should be the pride of the state and should be built of material from within her own borders, than which none can be found more suitable.

From the Atlanta Evening Journal.

To build the capitol out of Georgia marble would please the people and give satisfaction and pleasure to coming generations of Georgians.

I could add thousands of like expressions from our most intelligent and thoughtful citizens of all parts of the state, indicating the general desire of the people that the present capitol contract be modified, under the clause wisely provided by the commissioners, so as to substitute Georgia granite or marble in lieu of the foreign oolitic limestone in the construction of our capitol.

Surely "the voice of the people" on this subject will be heeded. If this general wish of the people is not respected by the authorities, what becomes of our fond democratic motto, that ours is a government by the people, for the benefit of the people? And what becomes of all our glowing representations of our fine granites and excellent marbles and other valuable resources, if we import a soft oolite sandstone from a distant state, to build our capitol? And if, forsooth, the plea of poverty or niggardliness be made, what becomes of our boasted pre-eminence, as the empire state of the south?

Proud citizens of Georgia, let us have faith, and hope that the authorities will give ear to "the multitude of counsel;" and that they will duly and dispassionately, consider this question on its true merits, in the light of state pride, and the common wellfare, and that we shall yet have, indeed, a state house worthy the renown of our grand old commonwealth and her prospective glory.

YESTERDAY'S PROCEEDINGS OF THE SENATE AND HOUSE.

The Two Houses Meet and Proceed With the Business in Hand—The Roll Called for the Introduction of New Matter—A Number of Bills Introduced and Read.

The senate met at the usual hour, President Carlton presiding.

Mr. Day gave notice that he would move a reconsideration of that part of journal of yesterday relating to the recommittal of the bill "to alter and amend section 4743 of the code." The motion prevailed.

Mr. Cabaniss gave notice that he would move a reconsideration of that part of the journal relating to the loss of the bill "to authorize the judges of supreme court to employ a short hand writer." The motion prevailed.

Mr. Fallgant, chairman of the committee on special judiciary, submitted a report recommending the passage of the following house bills: "To change the time of holding the terms of the superior court in the county of Taylor," also, "to repeal an act to provide an additional system of working public roads so far as the same relates to the counties of Cobb, Cates and Pulaski."

On motion of Mr. Cabaniss, the rules were suspended, and the house bill "to amend charter of the city of Griffin, so as to abolish the office of marshal and create that of chief of police. Bill read third time and passed and transmitted to the house.

Mr. Russell, chairman pro tem. committee on enrollment, reported the enrollment of the house bill granting local option to the county of Bartow.

Mr. Smith, chairman of committee on agriculture, submitted a report recommending the passage of the bill "to further protect landlords in collecting rents and all amounts due for supplies furnished tenants to make their crops, by declaring the title to the crop to be in the landlord until the same are paid."

The senate went into executive session to consider the message, and the following nominations by the governor were confirmed: Charles G. Campbell, to be judge of the county court of Decatur county; W. M. Harrell, to be solicitor of the county court of Decatur county; Wm. F. Dicken, to be judge of the county court of Henry county; Mr. Charles E. Wingfield, to be judge of the county court of Wilkes county; and James B. Neal, to be judge of the county court of McDuffie county.

The following house bills were read a first time: A bill to provide for an election in Henry county on the question of abolishing the board of county commissioners. Special judiciary committee.

A bill to authorize the mayor and aldermen of the city of Savannah to lay down and construct in the streets and lanes of said city such sewers and drains as may be necessary, and to assess upon the owners of lots abutting on so much of such street in which sewers and drains may be laid under the act, the cost of such improvement, and to authorize the mayor and aldermen of city of Savannah to lay down, etc. Special judiary committee.

The committee on penitentiary was granted leave of absence for a few days.

The body then adjourned.

There is a general cry for public roads all over Texas.

America Ahead.

The American manufacture of a remarkable floor covering, "LINOLEUM," is now acknowledged to be so superior to the foreign article that only inferior grades can be imported. Beyond all controversy, the superiority of the American make of these goods is proven. The home made goods make a perfect floor cloth of durability and artistic effect beyond dispute. The Walton Trade Mark with the word "LINOLEUM" is on the back of every square yard. All carpet dealers keep it. In use, the foreign will look dirty and dingy, the American, bright and clean.

Chicago Weather.

"I arrived at Chicago at 6 o'clock P. M., one day in June, 1884. The day had been terribly hot and the railroad ride from Detroit a foretaste of Purgatory. The Western Metropolis was an oven. Everybody puffed and perspired. Lake Michigan lay still and breathless as the Atlantic just before a cyclone. Sleep was hopeless. There was no nervous force left in the town. Even the hotel clerks stood unblushing in their shirtsleeves. Mercury 95 degrees—plus. Now listen. Twenty four hours later fires were lighted for warmth everywhere, and doors closed to exclude the strong northwest wind. A touch of Winter swept the city from the Stock Yards to Lincoln Park."—Correspondence Eastern Journal.

Is it strange that lung and chest diseases figure so largely in the vital statistics of the Occidental Metropolis? Here is something to the point:

CHICAGO, September 28, 1884.

Messrs. Seabury & Johnson:—All who are familiar with this city are aware that it has a very trying climate. People with weak or diseased lungs run a great risk in living here. At least such has been my experience. Physicians tell me I have a cavity in my right lung, and judging from what I have suffered, I think they are right. Two years ago I began the use of Benson's Capcine Plasters, and since then I am almost wholly free from pain in the chest. I am satisfied that had it not been for Benson's plaster I should have given out long ago and stopped working. As it is—by the soothing, healing and protective influence of the plaster—I lose little or no time from my business. I deem it a duty, as it certainly is a pleasure, to say this, for the information of the people of this city who have any trouble similar to mine. I am connected with the Chicago Telephone Company, and shall be glad to relate my experience to anyone who may call upon me. Yours,

Almost a Miracle

A REMARKABLE STORY.

A few days ago a gentleman of high standing in Atlanta met Dr. J. Bradfield on the street, and related the following, in which all ladies are deeply interested:

"For the past eighteen months my wife has been an invalid, caused from womb trouble, consequent of menses, etc., and I have tried everything I could hear of in the way of medicine, and have had several of our best physicians attending her to one of whom, (calling him by name) I paid one hundred and sixty-three dollars. Instead of improving or getting any relief, she gradually grew worse, and I had almost given up hope, and really did not believe she would ever get up from a invalid's bed; but a friend of mine who knew of the case suggested the use of and although he stated that he knew of a similar case being cured by it, and indorsed it highly himself, I was so discouraged I did not believed it would do her any good; but as a last resort I bought a large bottle of it and she began taking it, and from the very first a marked change took place. She began to improve rapidly, her appetite returned, her whole system was built up, and to-day she is as well and sound as ever in her life, and I am under life-long obligations to you and your remedy, for it undoubtedly saved her life." He added, "I wish every lady in the world so afflicted would try it, as I know it will cure them."

Bradfield's Female Regulator,

We Claim and Can Prove Beyond a Doubt,

By the largest and most undoubted testimony:

That this Remedy will cure all womb troubles.

That this Remedy will cure leucorrhœa or whites.

That this Remedy will restore the menstrual functions.

That this Remedy will stop excessive monthly flow.

That this remedy will relieve painful menstruation.

That this remedy will build up the system as a tonic.

That this remedy will cure all female disorders.

"CHANGE OF LFE."

If taken during this period, so critical, it stands without a rival.

Twenty Years Extensive Trial has only served to Fix and Widen the great reputation of Prof. Civiale's Method.

READ.—For young, middle-aged and even old men suffering from weakness, debility or impotency, we know of no remedy so certain to cure or so thoroughly endorsed by the entire medical profession as those of the CIVIALE AGENCY. We know them to be regular and reliable specialists.—World, Sept. 2.

Indeed were it not for our personal knowledge of the skill and integrity of the Medical Director of the Civiale Agency, we should deem ourselves more than guilty were we to utter a word of endorsement, &c. This theory and practice of medicine, as originated by Prof. CIVIALE, is an advantage over everything known for this class of diseases, and in it many a nervous youth and impotent man will find health and happiness.—N. Y. Tribune & Farmer, July 26.

Speaking of Prof. Jean Civiale we note as follows: "At a very early age, while a pupil of Dupuytren, at the Hotel Dieu in Paris, his attention is said to have been called to his future discovery and after many years of perseverance he succeeded in perfecting and introducing it to the medical profession, &c. He was the teacher of several generations of lithotritists, became a member of the MEDICAL ACADEMY and an officer of the Legion of Honor."—Appleton's Encyclopedia, For 16, pages 6 and 8.

We can only say that we earnestly hope for the sake of French Medical Science, that the success of these remedies will be as great in America as it has been in France.—Le Gazette des Hopitaux, June, 1882.

We visited New York in person and found that the Civiale Remedial Agency was composed of a number of physicians and surgeons, whose equal for skill it would be difficult to find; &c., &c.—Dr. W. H. HALL, in the Washington, D. C. Health and Home.

SOCIAL GOSSIP.

THE FEATURES OF THE WEEK CHRONICLED.

Entertaining Our Company—The Movement of Our People Abroad—Marrying and Given in Marriage—Topics of Interest to Our Lady Readers—Theatrical Matters, Etc.

In strictly society matters, the city has been rather quiet during the week. The great democratic jubilee pretty much absorbed the time and attention of people both in and out of society. Quite a number of visitors have been in the city during the week, some to witness the legislature, others attending the North Georgia conference, and many to witness or take part in the celebration over the election of Cleveland. Various entertainments, dinings, etc., were given complimenting to the large number of guests.

Important Announcement.

Young gentlemen, it is no longer the proper caper to wear a buttonhole, or a geranium flower and leaf, or a rose bud on the lappel, but a single orange hued chrysanthemum.

Grand Ball.

Invitations have been received in this city to a grand ball of the Mutual Aid association at the German Artillery hall, Charleston, S. C., on Wednesday evening, December 10th.

The Minuet Club.

The Minuet club, noted last season for its pleasant entertainments, is at work arranging for a complimentary hop. The club will be entertained by one of its prominent members before the season of advent arrives.

Roll of Drum.

The "Roll of Drum," a military drama, will be rendered in Chattanooga in January. The entertainment will be under the auspices of the Chickamauga Guards, and will be managed by Mr P. R. Abert. There is every reason to believe that the entertainment will be a highly enjoyable one.

Shall Atlanta Have One?

Redfern, the famous English ladies' tailor, who is dressmaker to her royal highness the princess of Wales, has an establishment in London, one at Cowles and one in Paris, will open a branch house in New York. He has leased the large four story brown stone mansion directly next to Delmonico's.

Dainty Dresses.

Padding at the top of sleeves is now frequently omitted.

Plain velvet, velveteen and rich colored silk is for dressy toilets.

Handsome costumes are made of gros grain combined with stamped velvet.

To make a dress light in weight, silk is the best material for the foundation skirt.

Prune velvet, combined with pale lilac, trimmed with appliques of velvet flowers, forms a beautiful reception toilet.

Have Taken Leave.

Misses May and Bell Weedon, who have been visiting relatives in Atlanta, are now at home in Sandersville.

Miss A. Appling, who has been visiting in Atlanta, has returned to her home in Chattanooga.

Mrs. J. G. Edmunson and children, after quite a visit to Atlanta, are at home in Americus.

Misses Sallie Parrott and May Johnson, of Cartersville, visited this city during the week.

Mrs. Senator Lewis, who has been visiting in Atlanta, is again at her home in Alpharetta.

Floral Items.

Bavaria is used now very much in bouquets.

The rose is the most popular of all flowers.

The chrysanthemum is now the rage.

The most popular way, for ladies, of wearing roses now is to have a few tied in a loose bunch with an abundance of green leaves and fastened to the dress.

Stiff bunches of flowers no longer find favor with the ladies, and a new way of adorning one's self is to have one perfect rose carelessly pinned to the dress.

Lilies and sunflowers have now ceased to be the ideal emblem of the esthetics.

Thanksgiving.

Some of the papers are discussing as to the origin of thanksgiving. Perhaps the stern old puritans, in inaugurating this institution in the very morning of American history, may have called to mind the words: "Thou crownest the year with Thy goodness, and Thy paths drop fatness. They drop upon the pastures of the wilderness, and the little hills rejoice on every side. The pastures are clothed with flocks; the valleys also are covered over with corn; they shout for joy; they also sing."—Psalm lxv: 11-13.

Married.

M WHORTER—SKELTON.

At the residence of the bride, at 3 o'clock in the evening of the 25th instant, Mr. W. A. McWhorter, of Franklin county, Ga., to Mrs. M. W. Skelton, of Atlanta.

BISHOP DOUGLAS.

Mr. James Bishop, Jr., was married to Miss Minnie Douglas in Talbotton, on Tuesday last, at the Methodist church, by the Rev. W. C. Lovett. The following were the attendants: Mr. A. P. Persons with Miss Susie Campbell; Mr. Will J. Hall with Miss Lizzie Robbins; Mr. B. R. Calhoun with Miss Laura Willis; Mr. J. C. Couch with Miss Lula Daniel; Mr. John Heath with Miss Maggie Matthews; Mr. T. H. Persons with Miss Lucy Kimbrough.

Fashion Items.

An English "ladies tailor," is about to open an establishment near Delmonico's in New York.

The reviled bustle goes on increasing like the Nile.

Watered ribbon, with a border of velvet on each edge, is one of the novelties just brought out.

White Marseilles bed quilts show flowers and trails of vines stamped in their natural colors. These are new and effective.

Artificial flowers will be less worn this season than last.

Miss Fannie Davenport wears a dress in the second act of "Fedora" which cost $2,000.

The leading color in Paris is, canard, the green of a duck's plumage, winter grey, cinnamon, myrtle, bronze, red mahogany.

A Dining.

One of the most enjoyable affairs of the past week, and one that will be pleasantly remembered, was a dining on Friday given to Bishop Granberry, by Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Hemphill, at their delightful residence 400 Peachtree street.

The hours of the dining were ruled by entertaining conversation and friendly intercourse and passed away charmingly. The dinner was a most beautiful display of the culinary art.

The guests were Bishop Granberry, Judge A. M. Speer and lady, Rev. W. H. Speer and lady, Rev. W. O. Butler and lady, Mrs. Anna Carmichael, Rev. H. J. Adams, Rev. T. R. Kendall, Colonel T. P. Westmoreland and Mr. E. P. Chamberlin.

Notes on Gastronomy.

Ice cream at dinner parties is obsolete.

Many soups can be improved by a dash of wine.

Roman punch is now served at dinner parties in tiny pasteboard pink pond lilies.

Cut-glass solid bowls with the spoon-handles of cut crystal are extremely elegant.

Only unsophisticated people make chicken salad of lettuce when there is plenty of celery in market.

Frog leg croquettes are the latest thing in that line. They taste very much like chicken croquettes.

Oysters and terrapin are regularly shipped from New York every week to a number of English noblemen.

There is an increased perfume of roast turkey and mince pie in the atmosphere around Atlanta just now.

Square, flat and low shapes are preferred for new tea, breakfast and coffee sets, whether of silver, gold or delf.

Victor Hugo eats dried herring and crackers every night before going to bed; thinks that it assists his digestion.

The Gentler Sex

A pretty woman is made prettier by being prettily dressed.

Milton did not hold it unbecoming the dignity of manhood to pen the power and influence of woman.

All chivalrous men have a contempt for Euripides, who charged Jove for having sent woman into the world only to reduce man to bondage with her charms.

Do not forget that the science of clothes is not only the science of being modest and keeping warm, but the science of looking well, and to look well is the duty of every woman.

If Nature does a woman an injustice and has been parsimonious in giving her beauty, she should counteract the injustice by a recourse to the ingenuities of art—the innocent deceptions of the toilet table and the wardrobe.

Clemens Alexandrinus denounced the looking-glass—asserted "that every woman who looks in the glass violates a divine commandment, for she makes an image of herself for idolatrous purposes." This old Egyptian father is wrong. When a woman looks in her glass she does not worship her own reflected loveliness, but O! how she prepares the way for others to worship her.

Our Guests.

Mrs. C. R. Pringle, of Sandersville, is visiting in Atlanta.

Mrs. Alice G. Bryans, of Conyers, visited Atlanta last Friday.

Mrs. Barrett, of Calhoun, has been visiting in Atlanta during the week.

Miss Emma Hiles, of Walhalla, S. C., came vero to see Atlanta's jubilation.

Miss Nora Rosser, of Calhoun, has been visiting friends in the city during the week.

Mrs. J. G. Davis, of Perry, has been visiting friends in the city during the week.

Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Goodrich, of Augusta, have been visiting in Atlanta during the week.

Mrs. G. W. Wells, of Calhoun, is spending several weeks with relatives and friends in Atlanta.

Miss Robbie Graham, a charming young lady of Conyers, is visiting relatives at 108 Marietta street.

Mrs. J. W. Cunningham and Miss Estha Guneis, of Oxford, Alabama, were in the city during the week.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Herndon, of Social Circle, have been guests of Mrs. S. V. Brown, of this city, during the week.

Miss Georgia Van Diviere, of Walhalla, S. C., is on a visit to her brother, Mr. L. R. Van Diviere, of the Richmond and Danville railroad.

Mrs. Bessie Dawson, of Greenesboro, who has been visiting Mrs. C. Davis, 348 Whitehall street, has returned home.

Miss Mollie Richards, one of Conyers' most estimable young ladies, made a brief visit to friends in Atlanta last week.

Dr. R. C. Davis, Dr. S. J. McElroy and Mr. W. S. Hunter, of Seneca, South Carolina, were in the city during the week.

As to Brides.

At her marriage, Miss Astor wore a $75,000 diamond necklace.

Fans still continue to be a fashionable and popular gift for a bride to give to her bridesmaids.

The favorite morning dress for a bride is of delicately tinted cashmere trimmed with swandown.

Fawn colored silk and brown brocade velvet, trimmed with point lace was a recent bridal dress in New York.

Recently each bridesmaid at a wedding received a fan with a lace pocket handkerchief attached to the bow of the handle.

The money paid for the music at Miss Astor's wedding would have covered the expenses of an average "society" wedding.

One of Miss Astor's wedding presents from her father was $100,000 worth of 7 per cent, paying stocks which have many years to run.

The eight bridesmaids of Miss Astor wore dresses of white silk and faille, hand embroidered and trimmed with lace, made in Paris, and presented by the bride.

Little hats and bonnets are now worn by brides maids, especially at church weddings. With white costumes they are made of elaborately shirred tulle and foille, and ornamented by a cluster of humming birds, or more frequently pretty flowers. When tulled dresses are worn the bonnets are made the same color and trimmed with velvet as well as flowers.

Two hundred and fifty dollars will cover the amount necessary to pay the cost of undertaking of an moderately expensive trousseau for a bride. For dresses, included in a trousseau, there should be a wedding dress, a visiting dress with a wrap, a dinner dress, and an evening dress. A hat for ordinary street wear, a bonnet to be worn with visiting dress and one for evening wear. A wedding dress of white Ottoman, could be made for from $150 to $175. The underskirt forming the three front breadths made of silk brocade, a narrow plaiting of Ottoman showing beneath it. The princess dress, forming a long train behind, is looped up very high on the left hip with a knot of ribbons. The front deapery is adorned with knots, or rather rosettes of ribbon, beginning at the lower edge, and continuing up the front at intervals until they reach the knot of ribbon on the left. The Directoire open corsage is trimmed with lace, or bead embroidery; cuffs to match. Rosettes of ribbon are placed at intervals down the waist. A long tulle veil falling almost to the extremity of the train, which is trimmed with a puffing and a plaiting.

Personal and Otherwise.

Now is the proper time for the oyster festival.

The arrivals at the hotels are daily increasing.

Dr. L. M. Gillam left Monday last for a visit to Florida.

Fashionable walking canes are made of ebony, malacca and welanga.

Holiday goods of various kinds are beginning to appear in the shop windows.

Since cold weather set in and the election of Cleveland, business has improved.

Lent next year begins February 18, Ash Wednesday, and Easter will fall on the 5th of April.

Stores and shops are becoming more and more crowded every day—buying Christmas presents.

Miss Ida Price, of Cartersville, is spending some time with the Misses Gillam, 108 Capital avenue.

Ladies who saw Mrs. Langtry in Atlanta may feel an interest in rumors of her probable change of name.

Mrs. John T. Simonton has returned home to Greenville, Ga., after an extended visit to relatives in this city.

Mme. Ristori has a company of 38 people. The baggage of the company fills two cars. She has 86 trunks.

Christmas is coming. One can catch the faint echo of its melody, and the first breath of its inspiration.

There is a movement on foot in New York to do away with the decollete dress. The argument is that decency and health are against it.

Theater parties are in as high favor as ever in New York, and the Star, Wallack's and the Madison Square theater are just now the objective points.

Rumor says that a wedding will come off on South Pryor street soon. Yet no one on that street has volunteered to still curiosity exactly on the subject.

Mrs. Judge, of New York, has Sunday evening receptions at her elegant home, at which the only guests are the little cash girls from the large dry goods stores.

A well-known young lady of the city will soon leave for a several weeks' visit to a neighboring city, and several young men seem troubled with "hearts bowed down by weight of grief."

One day the past week a young lady and gentleman of this city were out buggy riding on one of the country roads, and had a break-down, causing a long walk. No doubt the words of Mrs. Micawber suggested themselves to the young lady—"I never expected to be reduced to this."

DeGive's Opera House.

On Tuesday, December 2nd, Rev. Dr. Talmage will occupy DeGive's opera house, and lecture on "Ingersolism." The great divine is peculiarly fortunate in the selection of his subject, especially in these days of infidelity and atheism. The people of Atlanta have had the pleasure of hearing Dr. Talmage on several occasions, and such too is his reputation that it is unnecessary to bespeak for him a generous patronage. The lecture is said to be replete with eloquence and humor.

On Wednesday 3rd, Thursday 4th, and Friday 5th with matinee, the opera house will be occupied by Miss Fannie Louise Buckingham. Her repertoire embraces "Dick Turpin," "Toodles," the "French Spy," "Mazeppa," etc. Miss Buckingham has just closed successful engagements in Savannah and Charleston. In speaking of her "Mazeppa" in Charleston, the News of that city says:

The Academy of Music was well filled last evening by an audience which comprised a fair proportion of ladies, the attraction being the appearance of Miss Fannie Louise Buckingham in a dramatised version of Lord Byron's well known poem "Mazeppa." Perhaps no one in the audience knew exactly what to expect upon the rising of the curtain; but it is probably true that a tragedy was most generally anticipated. It was not a tragedy, however, despite the fact that the plot is essentially a tragic one, and the performance abounds in representations of tragical incidents. One could not weep over the sufferings of a Mazeppa who evidently did not suffer, and who looked as rosy and handsome when bound on the back of her wild, untamed Ukraine steed, at the end of his race, as when she was making love in the character of the page Cassimir, to the fair Olinska. Miss Maggie Pierce as Olinska had the difficult role of sorrowing alone, of all the cast and of all the audience, and counterfeited grief remarkably well under the circumstances, until the moment of her deliverance allowed her to join in the general hilarity.

Miss May Hill, as Zemila, "with songs," relieved the situation by a touch of naturalness which was always pleasant and at times refreshing, and was well supported in her songs and by-play by Mr. Harry Mortimer, comedian. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rea, who are said to be the oldest dramatic couple on the American stage, well represented the venerable characters assigned them. Mr. Rea made a most august and ancient Tartar king, Ab der Kahn, and as such was sharply contrasted with the awkward young Tartar troopers of this city.

The wild Ukraine steed was a beautiful milk-white animal, having apparently no more vicious propensity than that of viciously nibbling at every "supe" that came within his reach in the course of the evening. His impromptu chase of the troopers over the mountains was undoubtedly the event of the occasion, and was highly appreciated and loudly applauded.

The whole performance was decidedly unique, and was evidently greatly enjoyed as such. It is proper to add that it compared favorably, in respect of general propriety, with one, at least, of the operas recently presented on the same stage, and with others that have escaped harsh criticism."

Saturday afternoon at matinee, and Saturday night, the opera house will be occupied by Miaco's Dumpty Dumpty troupe. The company is a good one, and the specialties are excellent. There is a contortionist in the company, and to see him is worth the price of admission. Atlanta never goes back on a Dumpty Dumpty performance, especially when of the character of Miaco's.

Nine O'clock German Club.

The Nine O'clock German club will give an elegant german on Monday night at Concordia hall, complimentary to Miss Semmes, of New Orleans, who is the guest of Miss Birdie Hill.

The Hubner Club.

This popular and well established literary organization, the Hubner club, had an unusually fine evening Thursday. The club was invited to Colonel Avery's residence, in compliment to the president of the senate, Hon. H. H. Carlton, and his wife and the Hon. B. Z. Herndon, the member from Whitfield, and his wife. The attendance was very large and the exercises varied and delightful.

The opening exercise was a bright instrumental piece on the piano by Miss Lillie Wurm and Miss Corinne Warlick. Then followed an admirable "Trust" by Mr. Geo. Downs. Little May Avery played a difficult instrumental piece, a "Nocturne," with remarkable expression and power. The next piece was one of the features of the evening. Mrs. Plowman (Betsy Hamilton) and Mrs. Hubner and Little Ida Hubner represented, in regular country costume, one of Betsy Hamilton's inimitable rustic sketches published in THE CONSTITUTION; Mrs. Plowman represented old "Miss" Freshour, and Mrs. Hubner old "Miss" Green. There has been nothing on the stage to surpass this. Mrs. Plowman is as good at rural characterization in person as with her pen, while Mrs. Hubner is especially gifted in this matter. The laughter of the spectators was continuous and uproarious. Little Ida did her part perfectly. These old country women were perfect.

Miss Minnie Quinn recited most pathetically the poem of "Elizabeth," rendering it with fine effect. Miss Maud Allensworth also gave a fine recitation, "Cassandra Brown." Miss May Avery played on the violin some difficult selections from the opera of Martha, with piano accompaniment by Miss Lilie Wurm. This little girl is only twelve years old and is a master of both the piano and violin.

Professor Dales's reading of Artemas Ward's famous Mormon lecture, was inimitable. The absurd points were given with a rich humor. Mr. C. W. Hubner gave the following beautiful original Thanksgiving poem:

SONG OF THANKSGIVING.

Almighty God! who reigneest
The sovereign Lord of all,
But yet in mercy deignest
To mark the sparrow's fall;
Who didst create and fashion
The stars unnumbered host
Yet looked with compassion
On creatures of the dust.

With tears of deep contrition
For duties left undone
We lay our heart's petition
Before thy holy throne;
Our faults and sins forgiving
Bid thy stern chastenings cease
Teach us by holier living
To find the paths of peace.

Turn not away unheeding,
Thy mercy beaming face,
Give us though poor our pleading,
The riches of thy grace;
Who to thy love unbounded
Hath limit ever known?
On this our hope is founded,
On this, and this alone.

Our sowing and our reaping
How hath thy favor bles'd!
Beneath thine eye, unsleeping
How tranquilly we rest.
By fruitful fields and waters,
Crowned toil in sunshine basks,
While peace and all her daughters
Ply glad their golden tasks.

To thee our sins confessing,
Their guilty stains remove,
And grant us still, thy blessing,
The bounty of thy love;
Protect the state, O, Master!
With thine almighty arm
From danger and disaster,
Contention and alarm.

With fire from heaven riving
The fabrics of their hate,
Thwart, Lord, the traitors striving
To harm our ship of state;
Their work made unavailing,
With ruin overwhelm,
And grant her prosperous sailing,
Thy hand upon the helm.

Miss Jennie Morgan sang a song with feeling. Miss Ada Allensworth made an excellent recitation. Miss Ida Hubner rendered that exquisite poem of "Dame Goodrich," by Mrs. Cleveland, of Greenville, S. C., with wonderful power for a little girl. Miss Lillie Wurm followed with a brilliant piano solo. Mrs. Hubner gave that comical "Widow Bedott" with rich humor. Mrs. Plowman, by request, read Betsy Hamilton's Country School Exhibition published in THE CONSTITUTION, and convulsed the gathering with laughter.

Dr. Carlton and Mr. Herndon were both called on and made graceful little talks, cordially praising the exercises. Colonel Avery was called on and read an unpublished poem of Mr. Paul H. Hayne about the little dog Fidel.

Stage Items.

Ristori's receipts for a week in Philadelphia were $14,800.

Sims, the author of the "Lights o' London," and other popular English plays, cleared $150,000 last year.

Emma Abbott has ordered a solid gold crown set with ten large solitaires, to decorate her head when she appears in Semiramis.

When playing "Lady Macbeth," Bernhardt always kept to the literal historical accuracy of the piece, and appeared on the stage with her feet as nature fashioned them.

Ristori plays in English, and not in Italian. Her tour is proving enormously successful. The supporting company is pronounced the finest ever organized in this country.

Theo has ninety-six pairs of silk hose. Some of them are tastefully painted, Minnie Palmer has the largest collection of stockings of any American actress. Mrs. Florence will only wear lisle thread stockings, white or brown in color.

Miss Clara Morris' portrayal of the character of "Miss Mutton" is intense in its realism and fidelity to nature. In the most affecting scenes tears gather to the eyes of many ladies in the audience, and many handkerchiefs are used up.

There is no sign of age about Ristori, a powerful striking face, erect carriage, dignified and endowed with a wonderful magnetism. As "Elizabeth" she wears jewels and costumes that would have worthily adorned the wardrobe of a queen who left 3,000 dresses when she died.

"To have seen so great an actress as Ristori," says the Philadelphia Press, "is a treat, the memory of which ought to be cherished. The great artist gives us a better idea of tragic acting than we have had assuredly since the fire of Cushman's genius went out out with Cushman's life."

Thomas Keene is doing a large business this season. Why not? He is a more than good and is a big brained actor. He has ideas and strong ones, of all his characteristics, and he has the carriage of his convictions. He has had an interrupted success throughout the election excitement illustrating Shakspeare's tragedies.

It is not generally known that Miss Henrietta Crosman, the beautiful girl who played "Edith" in the Private Secretary here, is a neice of the celebrated Stephen C. Foster, who wrote "Way Down Upon the Swanee River," and many other popular southern songs. Miss Crosman was born and reared in Wheeling, West Virginia. This is her second season on the stage, and her rapid rise in the profession is the result of her grace, beauty and talent. The south will yet be proud of her as a bright particular star.

HIDDEN TREASURES.
FOR THIRTY-FIVE YEARS IN COMPARATIVE OBSCURITY.
Its Wonderful Powers Declared Public, Bringing Sunshine and Happiness to Thousands.
A REMARKABLE SPECIMEN.

From the Athens, Ga., Banner Watchman.

"You are looking like a new man," remarked a Banner-Watchman reporter to Mr, J. J. Head, a prominent merchant of our city, yesterday.

"You can truthfully say that I am looking better, feeling better and I am a great deal better than I was last winter," remarked Mr. Head.

"Would you mind giving me a history of your sufferings and what brought about the great change?"

"Not in the least. I feel it a duty I owe to mankind generally to let them know what wrought such a change in my appearance and health. I have suffered from the worst case of Eczema that any man ever did suffer with. I had it five years and until life had become a misery to me. I was broken out with sores from my feet to my knees; my hands and arms to my elbows were in a terrible condition, and my head and face were horrible to look at. I have suffered the tortures of the damned from this dreadful disease, and nothing seemed to give me any relief. I went to the Hot springs of Arkansas, the Mecca for all who suffer from skin and blood diseases, and found no relief, after spending a large amount of money. I then went to all the watering places of East Tennessee, determined to see if there was not some mineral water that would erase these horrible blotches from my face, legs and arms. East Tennessee and all its famous waters did no good, and I came back home determined to try what virtue, if any, were in doctors and medicine. I did so to my heart's content. I have taken not gallons, but barrels, of different kinds of medicine, and consulted the best physicians that I could find, and still no relief came. I had suffered for five long years, and after all my travels to watering places, and all the medicines I had taken, I still found myself worse at the end of the five years. I had spent large sums of money to get relief, and none came. It seemed to me that it was about time I was losing faith in doctors, medicine and health giving waters. I was about making up my mind that this eczema was incurable; that there was no relief for me, and that I should have to suffer to the end of a miserable existence. I was persuaded to use the B. B. B., a patent medicine manufactured in Atlanta. I had become thoroughly disgusted with patent medicines, but after some persuasion concluded to try it. I commenced to improve after the first bottle, and up to the present time have taken only ten bottles and I consider that I am a well man. Look at my arms, legs and face," remarked Mr. Head. "There is not much sign there now, as you can see. Only the scars left by the sores is all that can be discerned. The B. B. B. did it all. I attribute it to nothing else. I am now 48 years old, and I feel like I was a young man again. The B. B. B. cannot be too highly recommended by any one who has tried it. It does all that it claims to do, and does it quickly, too. You do not have to deluge nor drench yourself with a hundred bottles of this medicine to get relief, but as soon as the first bottle is taken you can see that relief is at hand. I wish the B. B. B. company all the success possible. They have brought me out again to health and happiness."

"Do you think this disease will ever come back on you again?" asked the reporter.

"You can see for yourself that the skin on my arms and face looks healthy and clear, and has the appearance of being entirely void of anything like the dreadful disease, from which I think I am entirely free."

I hereby certify that I have known J. J. Head for a number of years, and take pleasure in stating that he is a high-toned gentleman and worthy of belief, and all that he says about his wonderful cure I know to be correct.
J. H. DORSEY, Mayor.

I testify that I have known J. J. Head for a long time, and know him to be perfectly reliable and trustworthy, and that his cure is most wonderful. W. L. WOOD.

STATESMEN ARRIVIN

THE CONGRESSIONAL RUSH
THE FEDERAL CAPITAL.

The Arrival of the Georgia Members Noted
Randall's Gratification With His Atla
Trip—How Mr. Calkins, of Indiana, Sold Himself—Other Capital News.

WASHINGTON, November 30.—To the C tution:—Mr. Randall and party returne night. They are enthusiastic over their lanta reception. They were deeply impr and highly gratified at the evidences of pr ism and thrift they saw in Georgia.

Congressmen Hammond, Hardeman, H
nan and Reese arrived to-night. Cong men Blount, Clements, Candler Crisp, were already here. Senator quitt and Congressmen Turner and Ni will arrive to-morrow and Senator Br day or two later.

The senate will open with a rather th tendance, but a large majority of repre tives are already here, and by the tim gress is called to order, the house will b filled.

The democrats have been having a deal of fun with Mr. Calkins, of Indiana has been in the city for s days past. Just before the clo the last session, he told most of friends on the democratic side good-bye, invited them to his inauguration as gov of Indiana. During the gubernatorial paign he resigned his seat in congress, spoke of his election as certain. He u being governor by eight thousand votes, threw away his seat in the house. He

The Members Assembling for the Op of the Second session.

WASHINGTON, November 30.—The session of the forty-eighth congress will to-morrow at noon. One member of th ate and two members of the house hav during the recess, and two members house have resigned. It is probable tha first proceedings in both branches will swearing in of the new members to f vacancies thus created. If this is a panied by the customary announce of deaths, the two houses probably adjourn at once as a mark of r to the memory of the deceased. Precede such cases, however, give reason for the that no formal announcements of the will take place to-morrow, or if they do place, will follow the reading of the presi message. In this case there will proba no unusual delay in the appointment o joint committee to notify the president readiness of the two houses receive his annual message. A greater num ber of the appropriation bills are in readiness for the consideration of the sub-committees of the house committee on appropriations tha have been prepared at so early a date number of years. These bills include t tinates for the Indian, army, navy, m academy, consular and diplomatic, pos
District of Columbia, appropriations, members of the appropriations com are of the opinion that er two of these bills will be ready to to the house this week. It has been su ed by a number of representatives, tha gress take a recess about the middle month to give an opportunity for the bers to attend the opening of the Ne leans exposition, and that during thi posed recess the appropriation committ consider the appropriation bills, so as t most of them ready to report to the ho the change in the rate. Though the rate was in force during the quarter

September 30, 1883, the sales of stam for that quarter were $137,271.85 less th average for the three remaining quarter the 2-cent rate; the anticipated change rate having led to a serious falling off sale of stamps. That the loss of reven not greater must be regarded as gratif view of the fact that the estimates on the change was based contemplated a the first year of about $8,000,000. It is the prediction has been fully verified t reduced rate would greatly stimulate correspondence, and lead to the subs of sealed enclosures for postal cards a circulars. One of the minor benefits r from the change of postage is the redu the number of insufficiently prepaid pealed in letter-carrier postoffices to other places.

POSTOFFICES AS SINECURES.

At different times during the year ough investigation was made, under rection of the chief postoffice inspecto first and second-class offices. The these investigations was gratifying to partment. Dishonest and negligent were discovered. The former were r and the latter reprimanded and more structed in their duties. In a large of cases where postmasters were disco be short in their accounts it was owing ligence or a lack of ability to manag fairs of their offices. Too many post feel warranted in regarding their pos sinecures, and feel free to give their a to other business, content to draw the ries as officials, leaving the work of m their offices to others. This should allowed. Postmasters at first second class offices should be require their entire time to their official du should not be permitted to engage other business that requires any p the time for which they are paid by ernment. This result should be about if it requires a statutory ena effect it.
